

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

DO not know where to find in any play a catastrophe so grand, so solemn, and so surprising as this [of The Broken Heart]. This is indeed, according to Milton, to "describe high passions and high actions." The fortitude of the Spartan boy who let a beast gnaw out his bowels till he died without expressing a groan, is a faint bodily image of this dilaceration of the spirit and exenteration of the inmost mind, which Calantha with a holy violence against her nature keeps closely covered, till the last duties of a wife and a queen are fulfilled. Stories of martyrdom are but of chains and the stake; a little bodily suffering; these torments

On the purest spirits prey
As on entrails, joints, and limbs,
With answerable pains, but more intense.

What a noble thing is the soul in its strength and in its weaknesses! Who would be less weak than Calantha? Who can be so strong? The expression of this transcendent scene almost bears me in imagination to Calvary and the Cross; and I seem to perceive some analogy between the scenical sufferings which I am here contemplating, and the real agonies of that final completion to which I dare no more than hint a reference.

Ford was of the first order of poets. He sought for sublimity, not by parcels in metaphors or visible images, but directly where she has her full residence in the heart of man; in the actions and sufferings of the greatest minds. There is a grandeur of the soul above mountains, seas, and the elements. Even in the poor perverted reason of Giovanni and Annabella we discover traces of that fiery particle, which in the irregular starting from out of the road of beaten action, discovers something of a right line even in obliquity, and shows hints of an improvable greatness in the lowest descents and degradations of our nature.

CHARLES LAMB.

JOHIN FORD.

- 1586. John Ford was baptised at Ilsington, in Devonshire, on April 17th.
- 1602. He was admitted to the Middle Temple.
- 1606. He published Fame's Memorial, an elegiac poem on the death of the Earl of Devonshire, and dedicated it to the Countess. Also, a pamphlet called Honor Triumphant, "in honour of all faire ladies and in defence of these foure positions following I, Knights in Ladies service have no free-will. z, Beauty is the mainteiner of valour. 3, Faire Lady was never false. 4, Perfect lovers are onely wise."
- 1612. The Prince of Wales died.
- 1613. Ford's comedy, An ill Beginning has a good End, was acted at the Cockpit. This was one of the plays destroyed by Warburton's cook.
- 1615. Ford's Sir Thomas Overbury's Life and untimely Death (an event which had taken place two years previously), probably an elegy or a pamphlet, was entered in the Stationers' books.
- 1616. Shakespeare died.
- 1618. Sir Walter Raleigh executed.
- 1620. Ford published The Line of Life, a prose pamphlet.
- 1622. The Witch of Edmonton, a tragedy by Rowley, Dekker, Ford, &c., was probably acted about this time.
- 1624. The Sun's Darling, a masque by Ford and Dekker, was acted at the Cockpit.
- 1625. Fletcher died.
- 1628. The Lover's Melancholy was acted at the Blackfillars and Globe theatres.
- 1631. Dryden born.
- 1632. Prynne published his Histrio-Mastix.
- 1633. 'Tis Pity She's a Whore, The Broken Heart, and Lave's Sacrifice were all printed in this year.
- 1634. Perkin Warbeck printed.

1635. Ben Jonson died.

1637. Hampden refused to pay ship-money.

1638. Ford's comedy, The Fancies Chaste and Noble, was printed; and his tragi-comedy, The Lady's Trial, acted at the Cockpit.¹

1639. Massinger died. It is probable that at about this period Ford left London to live at his native place, Ilsington.

1640. Election of the Long Parliament.

1641. Actors lament their "sad and solutary conditions." "Projectors are downe, the High Commission Court is downe, the Starre-Chambre is down, and (some think) Bishops will down, and why should we then that are farre inferior to any of these justly feare, least we should be downe too." (The Stage-Players-Complaint.)

1642. The Civil War began, the Register of the Master of the Revels was closed, and on the 2nd of September was published the Ordinance of the Lords and Commons commanding "that while these sad causes and set-times of humiliation do continue, public stage plays shall cease and be forborne."

"Deep in a dump John Forde was alone got, With folded arms and melancholy hat."

HAT vivid touch of portraiture is the one record that has come down to us concerning Ford. His shy and reserved temperament corresponds to his artistic position: he stands alone. Of himself he has nothing to tell us beyond one early and perhaps not over-serious allusion, in

Other plays of Ford's, or which now only the names are known, were two comedies, The London Merchant and The Royal Combat, a tragedy called Beauty in a Trance, The Bristowe Merchant and The Fairy Knight, both written in conjunction with Dekker, and A late Murther of the Sonne upon the Mother in conjunction with Webster. The three first-named plays were immolated by Warburton's cook.

the youthful Fame's Memoria, to an unkind mistress—

"The goddess whom in heart I serve Though never mine, bright Lycia the cruel, The cruel-subtle."

Little, also, is recorded of him; of that little nothing that is not to his honour; while the tone of his dedications is manly, independent, and, towards his personal friends, affectionate. That he was not afraid to take a losing side is shown by his Fame's Memorial, an elegy which, called forth as it evidently was by the strange story of the lady, Penelope, Countess of Devonshire, to whom it was dedicated, is the earliest witness to Ford's interest in the problems of romantic passion.

Born in the north-west of Devonshire, and issuing from an old-established nest of Fords, while on the mother's side he was the grandson of the Lord Chief Justice Popham, John Ford came up to London at an early age to be trained to the law, becoming eventually, it is probable, a trusted agent for several noblemen, and he refers to his business with that ostentation not uncommon in people who know that their true calling is elsewhere. During the years of his London life he wrote many plays, some of which have perished; they were received with a remarkable share of applause, and gained for their author a general esteem among the decreasing minority who cared for plays. After nearly forty years spent in London he seems to have retired, just before the outbreak of the Civil War, to his native place. According to a faint tradition he married and had children, ending his days as peacefully as he might; for Ilsington was in the centre of a Royalist district, and is known to have suffered heavily at the hands of the Parliamentary forces.

Ford was more than forty years old when the earliest surviving play written by himself alone was first acted. The Lover's Melancholy, although as a whole it is rather dreary, reveals his peculiar style already at its highest point of development. This style, with its slow, subtle' melody, its sudden pauses on the suspension of a long breath, its words that are gestures, has nothing of the half delirious freedom of Marlowe or Beaumont, those strong-winged poets of an earlier and more robust age. This artist wrought, laboriously, cool, lucid lines that are sometimes absolutely frozen. In his second extant play, 'Tis Pity She's a Whore, Ford touched the highest point that he ever reached. He never after succeeded in presenting an image so simple, passionate, and complete, so free comparatively from mixture of weak or base elements, as that of the boy and girl lovers who were brother and sister. The tragic story is unrolled from first to last with fine truth and clear perceptions. At one point only is it possible to detect any failure in Ford's grasp of the situation. When at the climax of their histories Giovanni stabs Annabella, her feeble exclamation, "Brother unkind!" fails to carry the impress of truth, and falls short of the tragic height of passion to which we are uplifted. Such a failure of insight is rare with Ford, much rarer than touches of extravagant physical horror like the introduction of Annabella's heart on a dagger. It is profitable to compare 'Tis Pity She's a Whore with a rather similar play by Beaumont and Fletcher, A King and no King. Dryden thought that this play was the finest that Beaumont and Fletcher ever wrote; it is certainly full of splendid rhetoric, tragic or tender, always broad, various and facile in style; but for the qualities of insight and sincerity, for fineness of moral perception, for the sure and deliberate grasp of the central situation, Ford's play is as far above Beaumont and Fletcher's, with its shifty conclusion, as it is below it in all the qualities which make a play effective on the stage. The Broken Heart is a monument of sorrows, a Niobe group of frozen griefs. There is little movement, no definite plot or story; only this row of heart-broken figures-Orgilus, Panthea, Ithocles, Calantha, with many forms of minor melancholy:

The unity of the play lies in the cumulative touches by which these figures are realised for us, and by which we are lifted naturally to the heroic self-restraint of Calantha. Into Love's Sacrifice, the history of the ardent and reckless Bianca, Ford has put his subtlest work, marred though it is by the feeble and foolish sentiment of the conclusion. The story of the youth who falls in love with his friend's wife, and when he has aroused in her stronger nature a passion far deeper than his own, shrinks back realising his falsehood, is true to nature and wrought with Ford's finest art and insight. But we can only smile when we hear these lovers—celebrated as miracles of chastity and truth. In so complete a moral collapse as this (unless we choose to regard it as intentional irony), as well as in the occasional touches of forced material horror with which he startles us, Ford shows that he was the child of a society tainted by the affectation of purity, and a court that had ceased to be national and robust—both soon to vanish like a fantastic dream. In Perkin Warbeck he laid aside his characteristic defects, and also his characteristic merits, to achieve a distinct dramatic success. It is the least interesting of his plays for those who care for the peculiar qualities which mark Ford's genius, but it certainly ranks among our best historical dramas. Ford's interest in psychological problems may be detected in his impartial, even sympathetic, treatment of Warbeck; but for the most part this play is an exception to every generalisation that may be arrived at concerning his work. It is of a masculine temperature, with few flaws, and of fine characterisation throughout. These five plays embody whatever is best in Ford's work.

"Hid in a rock of fire, Guarded by ministers of flaming hell"—

Of his remaining plays, The Lady's Trial contains most that is beautiful in language and character: The Fancies Chaste and Noble has a little that is characteristic, set in a weak and absurd story; The Sun's Darling, a "moral masque," of which Dekker wrote the larger and happier part, exhibits Ford's most level and frigid manner. The Wilch of Edmonton, a noble and more human work of art than any of these, was written in conjunction with Dekker and Rowley.1 It contains a few touches that are unmistakably Ford's, together with much without being very characteristic, has been plausibly assigned to him; on the whole, it is one of those plays, not uncommon at that time, in which two or more writers united to produce something that was unlike their individual work, and often superior to anything they produced singly. Ford's early work in prose and verse may be neglected.

The burden of a passionate and heavy-laden heart—that is the centre of every picture that Ford presents to us; on the painting of it he lavishes all his care. The rest of the canvas is filled in with a rapid and careless hand. superior persons are generally uninteresting. As to his comic figures, it is for once impossible to go beyond the dictum of Gifford: they are "a despicable set of buffoons." He is reckless of consistency in action or time, indifferent generally to dramatic effect, but when the mysteries of the heart are in question he elaborates his art to the highest point. The conflict between the world's opinion and the heart's desire he paints and repaints, not as a moralist browbeating the cynical or conventional world, but as an artist, presenting problems which he does not undertake to solve save by the rough methods of the tragic stage. It is the grief deeper than language that he strives to express. He seeks in his own words to

"Sigh out a lamentable tale of things
Done long ago, and ill done; and when sighs
Are wearied, piece up what remains behind
With weeping eyes, and hearts that bleed to death."

He is a master of the brief mysterious words, so calm in seeming, which well up from the depths of despair. He concentrates the revelation of a soul's agony into a sob or a sigh. The surface seems calm; we scarcely suspect that there is anything beneath; one gasp bubbles up from the drowning heart below, and all is silence. He is rich in those words and lines of sweet and subtle music—

"Parthenophil is lost, and I would see him; For he is like to something I remember, A great while since, a long, long time ago."

When we think of Ford we think of Giovanni and Annabella, passionate children who had given the world for love; of the childish sophistry with which they justified themselves, and of their last marvellous dialogue through which pierced a vague sense of guilt—a lurid shadow cast from the world they had contemned. We think of that Bianca (she that "owned the poor style of Duchess") who had thrown such scorn on her lover that he vowed never to speak to her again of unlawful love, and who comes to him in his sleep the night after, unclad and alone, in the last abandonment of passion. We think of Flavia in The Fancies Chaste and Noble, coldly dismissing her first husband with the one sign of tenderness as she turns at length to her new husband:-

"Beshrew 't, the brim of your hat Struck in mine eye."

We think of Calantha, still gracious and calm in the festive dance, as the leaden messages of awful death are shot at slow intervals in her ear, —her father, her friend, her lover,— still gracious and calm until her duties are ended. "When one news straight came huddling on another, Of death! and death! still I danced forward; But it struck home, and here, and in an instant.

They are the silent griefs which cut the heart-strings; Let me die smiling."

Ford is the most modern of the tribe to whom he belonged. When Shelley in his last days began a new drama, of which only fragments remain, he reproduced with added sweetness the tones and cadences of Ford's verse; and the writers to-day who seek, and in vain, to revive our ancient drama on its old lines, instinctively ally themselves with Ford. When we enumerate his great qualities we are enumerating the qualities which make him an ineffectual dramatist. Notwithstanding the ungrudging admiration of his relatives, legal friends, and fellow dramatists, and the "generally well received" report of the outside public, he could at no time have been a really popular playwright; and with the exception of Perkin Warbeck his plays have probably never been represented in more recent times. He was a sensitive observer who had meditated deeply on the springs of human action, especially in women. Of none of his fellows, even the greatest of them, can we say this. They have left us pictures of women which are incomparably more tender, or picturesque, or tragic than the searching, deliberate art of Ford could compass. But they looked nearly all from the outside, and were satisfied with the gracious or gorgeous stage-pictures which they knew so well how to present. This man writes of women not as a dramatist nor as a lover, but as one who had searched intimately and felt with instinctive sympathy the fibres of their hearts. He was an analyst; he strained the limits of his art to the utmost; he foreboded new ways of expression. Thus he is less nearly related to the men who wrote Othello, and A Woman killed with Kindness, and Valentinian, than to those poets and artists of the naked human soul, the writer of Le Rouge et le Noir, and the yet greater writer of Madame Bovary.

BANKSIDE AND ITS THETHEATRES.

HE Bankside in Southwark was from an early date, even before the days of Henry VIII., one of the favourite resorts of Londoners. It was a semi-rural spot, very easy of access, either by walking over Old London Bridge or by means of the river, at that time a delightful and much frequented highway.
Swans floated beneath London Bidge; magnificent barges were frequently to be seen; and in the reign of James I. (according to Taylor, "the Water Poet") "the number of watermen, and those that live and are maintained by them, and by the only labour of the oar and scull, betwixt the bridge of Windsor and Gravesend, cannot be fewer than forty thousand; the cause of the greater half of which multitude bath been the players playing on the Bankside."

Various amusements—sports, shows, fencings—took place on the Bankside long before any theatres arose there. Chief among these amusements were bull-buitings and bear-baitings at Paris Garden, and when the theatres began to grow up here—as at a later day they grew up along the opposite Strand—the baitings and plays were to some extent combined, the stage being movable. Rose, close to the Bear and Paris Garden, was the first theatre built on the Bankside. Its origin and exact date are not known; it may have existed even before 1584, when it was called the Little The Swan Theatre was at the western end of the Bankside. the year 1600, and it was here that Ben Jonson's Bartholomew Fair was first acted in 1614. The building was demolished in 1656 and houses were built upon its site. About a year previously seven of the bears belonging to the Bear Garden had been shot by order of Pride, then Sheriff of Surrey, by a company of soldiers. Pure Garden itself became a theatre in 1613. In Dekker's Untrussing of the Humorous Poet we find it thus ailuded to:—

"Tucca. Thou hast been in Paris Garden, hast not?

Horace. Yes, captain, I ha' played Zulziman there."

The most famous of all the Bankside theatres was the Globe, built on the site occupied by Barclay's Brewery in Park Street. A view with a detailed notice of the Globe Theatre will be found in the volume of The Best Plays of Webster and Tourneur.

Many pers as connected with the theatres lived on the Bankside—Beaumont and Fletcher, Henslowe, Alleyn, Kempe, Lowin. The Falcon Inn was the favourite resort of dramatists and players; and St. Saviour's, close by, 15 the burial-place of Gower, Fletcher, Massinger, Str Edward Dyer, the poet, Shakespeare's younger brother, Edmund, and Henslowe, the manager.

THE LOVER'S MELATICHOLY.

THE BANKSIDE AND ITS THEATRES.

HE Bankside in Southwark was from an early date, even before the days of Henry VIII., one of the favourite resorts of Londoners. It was a semi-rural spot, very easy of access, either by walking over Old London Bridge or by means of the river, at that time a delightful and much frequented highway. Swans floated beneath London Bridge; magnificent barges were frequently to be seen; and in the reign of James I. (accord-

Various amusements—sports, shows, fencings—took place on the Bankside long before any theatres arose there. Chief among these amusements were bull-baitings and bear-baitings at Paris Garden, and when the theatres began to grow up here—as at a later day they grew up along the opposite Strand—the baitings and plays were to some extent combined, the stage being movable. IR HENRY HERBERT licensed this play for the stage in 1628, and it was acted by the King's Servants at the Blackfriars and Globe Theatres. It was published in the following year, and was the first play that Ford printed, perhaps on account of its success on the stage. In one of the commendatory poems prefixed to the quarto we read:—

"Nor seek I fame for thee, when thine own pen
Hath forced a praise long since from knowing men."

And although this appears to be Ford's earliest extant play, we know that plays of his had been acted during the previous fifteen years. For the material of the masque and the passage leading up to it, Ford was indebted to Burton's Anatomy of Melancholy, published a year or two previously. The play was revived at Drury Lane in 1748 by Macklin, for his wife's benefit; apparently without success.

To his worthy Friend the Author. MASTER JOHN FORD.

I write not to thy play: I'll not begin To throw a censure upon what hath been By the best approved: it can nor fear nor want The rage or liking of the ignorant. Nor seek I fame for thee, when thine own pen Hath forced a praise long since from knowing men. I speak my thoughts, and wish unto the stage A glory from thy studies; that the age May be indebted to thee for reprieve Of purer language, and that spite may grieve To see itself outdone. When thou art read, The theatre may hope arts are not dead, Though long concealed; that poet-apes may fear To vent their weakness, mend, or quite forbear. This I dare promise; and keep this in store, As thou hast done enough, thou canst do more.

In a copy of verses prefixed to Massinger's Emperor of the East, Singleton calls himself "the friend and kinsman" of that poet.

To my Worthily Respected Friends,

NATHANIEL FINCH, JOHN FORD, ESQUIRES,

MASTER HENRY BLUNT, MASTER ROBERT ELLICE,

and all the rest of the

NOBLE SOCIETY OF GRAY'S INN.

My Honoured Friends,

HE account of some leisurable hours is here summed up, and offered to examination. Importunity of others, or opinion of mine own, hath not urged on any confidence of running the hazard of a censure. A plurality hath reference to a multitude, so I care not to please many; but where there is a parity of condition, there the freedom of construction makes the best music. This concord hath equally held between you the patrons and me the presenter. I am cleared of all scruple of disrespect on your parts; as I am of too slack a merit in myself. My presumption of coming in print in this kind hath hitherto been unreprovable, this piece being the first that ever courted reader; and it is very possible that the like compliment with me may soon grow out of fashion. A practice of which that I may avoid now, I commend to the continuance of your loves the memory of his, who, without the protestation of a service, is readily your friend.

JOHN FORD.

¹ He had previously printed "Fame's Memorial," and, probably, other poems, now lost.

To tell ye, gentlemen, in what true sense The writer, actors, or the audience Should mould their judgments for a play, might draw Truth into rules; but we have no such law. Our writer, for himself, would have ye know That in his following scenes he doth not owe To others' fancies, nor hath lain in wait For any stolen invention, from whose height He might commend his own, more than the right A scholar claims,1 may warrant for delight. It is art's scorn, that some of late have made The noble use of poetry a trade. For your parts, gentlemen, to quit his pains, Yet you will please, that as you meet with strains Of lighter mixture, but to cast your eye Rather upon the main than on the bye, His hopes stand firm, and we shall find it true, The Lover's Melancholy cured by you.

KALA, Waiting-maid to THAMASTA.

Officers, Attendants, &c.

SCENE-FAMAGOSTA in CYPRUS.

THE LOVER'S MELATICHOLY.

ACT THE FIRST.

SCENE I .- A Room in the Palace.

Enter MENAPHON and PELIAS.

EN. Dangers! how mean you dangers?
that so courtly

You gratulate my safe return from dangers?

Pel. From travels, noble sir.

Men

These are delights;

If my experience hath not, truant-like, Misspent the time, which I have strove to use For bettering my mind with observation.

Pel. As I am modest, I protest 'tis strange. But is it possible?

Men.

What?

Pel.

To bestride

The frothy foams of Neptune's surging waves, When blustering Boreas tosseth up the deep And thumps a thunder-bounce?

Men.

Sweet sir, 'tis nothing:

Straight comes a dolphin, playing near your ship, Heaving his crooked back up, and presents A feather-bed to waft ye to the shore As easily as if you slept i' the court.

Pel. Indeed! is't true, I pray?

Men. I will not stretch

Your faith upon the tenters.—Prithee, Pelias, Where didst thou learn this language?

Pel. I this language!

Alas, sir, we that study words and forms
Of compliment must fashion all discourse
According to the nature of the subject.
But I am silent:—now appears a sun,
Whose shadow I adore.

Enter AMETHUS, SOPHRONOS, and Attendants.

Men.

My honoured father!

Soph. From mine eyes, son of my care, my love, The joys that bid thee welcome do too much Speak me a child.

Men. O princely sir, your hand.

Amet. Perform your duties where you owe them first; I dare not be so sudden in the pleasures
Thy presence hath brought home.

Soph.

Here thou still find'st

A friend as noble, Menaphon, as when Thou left'st at thy departure.

Men.

Yes, I know it,

To him I owe more service—

Amet.

Pray give leave:

He shall attend your entertainments soon, Next day, and next day: for an hour or two I would engross him only.

Soph.

Noble lord!

Amet. Ye're both dismissed.

Pel.

Your creature and your servant.

[Exeunt all but Amethus and Menaphon.

Amet. Give me thy hand. I will not say, "Thou'rt welcome;"

That is the common road of common friends. I'm glad I have thee here—O, I want words To let thee know my heart!

Men. 'Tis pieced to mine.

Amet. Yes, 'tis; as firmly as that holy thing Called friendship can unite it. Menaphon, My Menaphon, now all the goodly blessings That can create a Heaven on earth dwell with thee! Twelve months we have been sundered; but henceforth We never more will part, till that sad hour In which death leaves the one of us behind, To see the other's funerals performed. Let's now awhile be free.—How have thy travels Disburthened thee abroad of discontents?

Men. Such cure as sick men find in changing beds I found in change of airs: the fancy flattered My hopes with ease, as theirs do: but the grief Is still the same.

Amet. Such is my case at home. Cleophila, thy kinswoman, that maid Of sweetness and humility, more pities Her father's poor afflictions than the tide Of my complaints.

Men. Thamasta, my great mistress, Your princely sister, hath, I hope, ere this Confirmed affection on some worthy choice.

Amet. Not any, Menaphon. Her bosom yet Is intermured with ice; though, by the truth Of love, no day hath ever passed wherein I have not mentioned thy deserts, thy constancy, Thy—Come, in troth, I dare not tell thee what, Lest thou mightst think I fawned upon 1—a sin Friendship was never guilty of; for flattery Is monstrous in a true friend.

Men. Does the court

Wear the old looks too?

¹ So the old edition; probably equivalent to "fawned."

Amet. If thou mean'st the prince, It does. He's the same melancholy man He was at's father's death; sometimes speaks sense, But seldom mirth; will smile, but seldom laugh; Will lend an ear to business, deal in none; Gaze upon revels, antic fopperies, But is not moved; will sparingly discourse, Hear music; but what most he takes delight in Are handsome pictures. One so young and goodly, So sweet in his own nature, any story Hath seldom mentioned.

Men. Why should such as I am Groan under the light burthen of small sorrows, Whenas a prince so potent cannot shun Motions of passion? To be man, my lord, Is to be but the exercise of cares In several shapes: as miseries do grow, They alter as men's forms; but how none know.

Amet. This little isle of Cyprus sure abounds In greater wonders both for change and fortune Than any you have seen abroad.

Men. Than any

I have observed abroad: all countries else To a free eye and mind yield something rare; And I, for my part, have brought home one jewel Of admirable value.

Amet. Jewel, Menaphon!

Men. A jewel, my Amethus, a fair youth;
A youth, whom, if I were but superstitious,
I should repute an excellence more high
Than mere creations are: to add delight,
I'll tell ye how I found him.

Amet. Prithee do.

Men. Passing from Italy to Greece, the tales Which poets of an elder time have feigned

Sorrow.

To glorify their Tempe, bred in me Desire of visiting that paradise. To Thessaly I came; and living private, Without acquaintance of more sweet companions Than the old inmates to my love, my thoughts, I day by day frequented silent groves And solitary walks. One morning early This accident encountered me: I heard The sweetest and most-ravishing contention That art and nature ever were at strife in.1

Amet. I cannot yet conceive what you infer By art and nature.

Men. I shall soon resolve ye. A sound of music touched mine ears, or rather Indeed entranced my soul. As I stole nearer, Invited by the melody, I saw This youth, this fair-faced youth, upon his lute, With strains of strange variety and harmony, Proclaiming, as it seemed, so bold a challenge To the clear quiristers of the woods, the birds, That, as they flocked about him, all stood silent, Wondering at what they heard. I wondered too.

Amet. And so do I; good, on!

Men. A nightingale,

Nature's best skilled musician, undertakes The challenge, and for every several strain The well-shaped youth could touch, she sung her own; He could not run division with more art Upon his quaking instrument than she, The nightingale, did with her various notes Reply to: for a voice and for a sound, Amethus, 'tis much easier to believe That such they were than hope to hear again.

Amet. How did the rivals part?

¹ Vide (Ford says) Fami. Stradam, lib. ii. Prolus. 6. Acad. 2. Imitat. Claudian. This story has been paraphrased by Crashaw, Ambrose Philips, and others.

Men.

You term them rightly;

For they were rivals, and their mistress, harmony.Some time thus spent, the young man grew at last
Into a pretty anger, that a bird,
Whom art had never taught cliffs, moods, or notes,
Should vie with him for mastery, whose study
Had busied many hours to perfect practice:
To end the controversy, in a rapture
Upon his instrument he plays so swiftly.
So many voluntaries and so quick,
That there was curiosity and cunning,
Concord in discord, lines of differing method
Meeting in one full centre of delight.

Amet. Now for the bird.

Men.

The bird, ordained to be

Music's first martyr, strove to imitate
These several sounds; which when her warbling throat
Failed in, for grief down dropped she on his lute,
And brake her heart. It was the quaintest sadness,
To see the conqueror upon her hearse
To weep a funeral elegy of tears;
That, trust me, my Amethus, I could chide
Mine own unmanly weakness, that made me
A fellow-mourner with him.

Amet.

I believe thee.

Men. He looked upon the trophies of his art,
Then sighed, then wiped his eyes, then sighed and cried,
"Alas, poor creature! I will soon revenge
This cruelty upon the author of it;
Henceforth this lute, guilty of innocent blood,
Shall never more betray a harmless peace
To an untimely end:" and in that sorrow,
As he was pashing it against a tree,
I suddenly stept in.

Amet.

Thou hast discoursed

A truth of mirth and pity.

¹ Dashing.

Men.

I reprieved

The intended execution with entreaties
And interruption.—But, my princely friend,
It was not strange the music of his hand
Did overmatch birds, when his voice and beauty,
Youth, carriage, and discretion must, from men
Endued with reason, ravish admiration:
From me they did.

Amet.

But is this miracle

Not to be seen?

Men. I won him by degrees
To choose me his companion. Whence he is,
Or who, as I durst modestly inquire,
So gently he would woo not to make known;
Only—for reasons to himself reserved—
He told me, that some remnant of his life
Was to be spent in travel: for his fortunes,
They were nor mean nor riotous; his friends
Not published to the world, though not obscure;
His country Athens, and his name Parthenophil.

Amet. Came he with you to Cyprus?
'Men.
Willingly.

The fame of our young melancholy prince,
Meleander's rare distractions, the obedience
Of young Cleophila, Thamasta's glory,
Your matchless friendship, and my desperate love,
Prevailed with him; and I have lodged him privately
In Famagosta.

Amet. Now thou'rt doubly welcome:

I will not lose the sight of such a rarity

For one part of my hopes. When d'ye intend

To visit my great-spirited sister?

Men.

May I

Without offence?

Amet. Without offence.—Parthenophil Shall find a worthy entertainment too.
Thou art not still a coward?

Men.

She's too excellent,

And I too low in merit.

Amet.

I'll prepare

A noble welcome; and, friend, ere we part, Unload to thee an overcharged heart.

[Exeunt.

SCENE II.—Another Room in the Palace.

Enter RHETIAS, carelessly attired.

Rhe. I will not court the madness of the times; Nor fawn upon the riots that embalm Our wanton gentry, to preserve the dust Of their affected vanities in coffins Of memorable shame. When commonwealths Totter and reel from that nobility And ancient virtue which renowns the great, Who steer the helm of government, while mushrooms Grow up, and make new laws to license folly; Why should not I, a May-game, scorn the weight Of my sunk fortunes? snarl1 at the vices Which rot the land, and, without fear or wi Be mine own antic?3 'Tis a sport to live When life is irksome, if we will not hug Prosperity in others, and contemn Affliction in ourselves. This rule is certain, "He that pursues his safety from the school Of state must learn to be madman or fool." Ambition, wealth, ease, I renounce—the devil That damns ye here on earth. Or I will be Mine own mirth, or mine own tormentor.—So! Here comes intelligence; a buzz o' the court.

[&]quot;Snarl" as well as "girl," is commonly made a dissyllable by our poet: he passed his youth in the neighbourhood of Dartmoor, and probably adopted the practice of that wild district.— Gifford.

² i.e. Carelessly.

³ Buffoon.

Enter PELIAS.

Pel. Rhetias, I sought thee out to tell thee news, New, excellent new news. Cuculus, sirrah, That gull, that young old gull, is coming this way.

Rhe. And thou art his forerunner?

Pel. Prithee, hear me.

Instead of a fine guarded page we've got him
A boy, tricked up in neat and handsome fashion;
Persuaded him that 'tis indeed a wench,
And he has entertained him: he does follow him,
Carries his sword and buckler, waits on's trencher,
Fills him his wine, tobacco; whets his knife,
Lackeys his letters, does what service else
He would employ his man in. Being asked
Why he is so irregular in courtship,²
His answer is, that since great ladies use
Gentleman ushers to go bare before them,
He knows no reason but he may reduce
The courtiers to have women wait on them;
And he begins the fashion: he is laughed at
Most complimentally. Thou'lt burst to see him.

Rhe. Agelastus, so surnamed for his gravity,³ was a very wise fellow, kept his countenance all days of his life as demurely as a judge that pronounceth sentence of death on a poor rogue for stealing as much bacon as would serve at a meal with a calf's head. Yet he smiled once, and never but once:—thou art no scholar?

Pel. I have read pamphlets dedicated to me.—Dost call him Agelastus? Why did he laugh?

Rhe. To see an ass eat thistles. Puppy, go study to be a singular coxcomb. Cuculus is an ordinary ape; but thou art an ape of an ape.

² Court etiquette.

i.e. With a livery richly laced or turned up.

³ The story is in Pliny, who tells it of Crassus, the grandfather of the unfortunate Crassus who fell the victim of his rapacity in Parthia.—Gifford.

Pel. Thou hast a patent to abuse thy friends.—Look, look, he comes! observe him seriously.

Enter Cuculus followed by GRILLA, both fantastically dressed.

Cuc. Reach me my sword and buckler.

Gril. They are here, forsooth.

Cuc. How now, minx, how now! where is your duty, your distance? Let me have service methodically tendered; you are now one of us. Your curtsy. [GRILLA curtsies.] . Good! remember that you are to practise courtship. Was thy father a piper, sayest thou?

Cril. A sounder of some such wind-instrument, for-sooth.¹

Cuc. Was he so?—Hold up thy head. Be thou musical to me, and I will marry thee to a dancer; one that shall ride on his footcloth,² and maintain thee in thy muff and hood.

Gril. That will be fine indeed.

Cuc. Thou art yet but simple.

Gril. D'ye think so?

Cuc. I have a brain, I have a head-piece: o' my conscience, if I take pains with thee, I should raise thy understanding, girl, to the height of a nurse, or a court-midwife at least: I will make thee big in time, wench.

Gril. E'en do your pleasure with me, sir.

Pel. [Coming forward] Noble, accomplished Cuculus!

Rhe. [Coming forward] Give me thy fist, innocent.

Cuc. Would 'twere in thy belly! there 'tis.

Pel. That's well; he's an honest blade, though he be blunt.

² i.e. A horse's cloth housings.

¹ Grilla's answer is meant to intimate that her father was a sow-gelder. Sow-gelders, it appears, used formerly to blow a horn. So in Fletcher's Beggar's Bush, act iii. sc. i:

[&]quot;Enter Higgen disguised as a sow-gelder, singing as follows,
Have ye any work for the sow-gelder, oh?
My horn goes to high, to low, to high, to low."—Dyce.

Cuc. Who cares? We can be as blunt as he, for's life.

Rhe. Cuculus, there is, within a mile or two, a sow-pig hath sucked a brach, and now hunts the deer, the hare, nay, most unnaturally, the wild-boar, as well as any hound in Cyprus.

Cuc. Monstrous sow-pig! is't true?

Pel. I'll be at charge of a banquet on thee for a sight of her.

Rhe. Every thing takes after the dam that gave it suck. Where hadst thou thy milk?

' Cuc. I? Why, my nurse's husband was a most excellent maker of shittlecocks.

Pel. My nurse was a woman-surgeon.2

Rhe. And who gave thee pap, mouse?

Gril. I never sucked, that I remember.

Rhe. La now, a shittlecock maker! all thy brains are stuck with cork and feather, Cuculus. This learned courtier takes after the nurse too; a she-surgeon; which is, in effect, a mere matcher of colours. Go learn to paint and daub compliments, 'tis the next step to run into a new suit. My Lady Periwinkle here never sucked: suck thy master, and bring forth moon-calves, fop, do! This is good philosophy, sirs; make use on't.

Gril. Bless us, what a strange creature this is!

Cuc. A gull, an arrant gull by proclamation.

Enter CORAX, passing over the stage.

Pel. Corax, the prince's chief physician!
What business speeds his haste?—Are all things well, sir?
Cor. Yes, yes, yes.

Rhe. Phew! you may wheel about, man; we know you're proud of your slovenry and practice; 'tis your virtue. The prince's melancholy fit, I presume, holds still.

² i.e. A dealer in paints and cosmetics for ladies.

¹ The kennel term for a bitch-hound. This anecdote is taken from Burton, who took it from Giraldus Cambrensis. The late Sir Harry Mildmay had a sow-pig that would apparently do all that Cuculus thinks so monstrous, without having sucked a brach for the matter.—Gifford.

Cor. So do thy knavery and desperate beggary.

Cuc. Aha! here's one will tickle the ban-dog.1

Rhe. You must not go yet.

Cor. I'll stay in spite of thy teeth. There lies my gravity. [Throws off his gown.] Do what thou darest; I stand thee.

Rhe. Mountebanks, empirics, quack-salvers, mineralists, wizards, alchemists, cast-apothecaries, old wives and barbers, are all suppositors to the right worshipful doctor, as I take it. Some of ye are the head of your art, and the horns too—but they come by nature. Thou livest single for no other end but that thou fearest to be a cuckold.

Cor. Have at thee! Thou affectest railing only for thy health; thy miseries are so thick and so lasting, that thou hast not one poor denier to bestow on opening a vein: wherefore, to avoid a pleurisy, thou'lt be sure to prate thyself once a month into a whipping, and bleed in the breech instead of the arm.

Rhe. Have at thee again!

Cor. Come!

² Disposition.

Cuc. There, there! O brave doctor!

Pel. Let 'em alone.

Rhe. Thou art in thy religion an atheist, in thy condition² a cur, in thy diet an epicure, in thy lust a goat, in thy sleep a hog; thou takest upon thee the habit of a grave physician, but art indeed an impostorous empiric. Physicians are the cobblers, rather the botchers, of men's bodies; as the one patches our tattered clothes, so the other solders our diseased flesh. Come on.

Cuc. To't, to't! hold him to't! hold him to't! to't, to't!

Cor. The best worth in thee is the corruption of thy mind, for that only entitles thee to the dignity of a louse,

¹ A dog kept fastened up on account of its fierceness. The term was also applied to dogs employed in bull and bear baiting.

a thing bred out of the filth and superfluity of ill humours. Thou bitest anywhere, and any man who defends not himself with the clean linen of secure honesty; him thou darest not come near. Thou art fortune's idiot, virtue's bankrupt, time's dunghill, manhood's scandal, and thine own scourge. Thou wouldst hang thyself, so wretchedly miserable thou art, but that no man will trust thee with as much money as will buy a halter; and all thy stock to be sold is not worth half as much as may procure it.

Rhe. Ha, ha, ha! this is flattery, gross flattery.

Cor. I have employment for thee, and for ye all. Tut, these are but good-morrows between us.

Rhe. Are thy bottles full?

Cor. Of rich wine; let's all suck together.

Rhe. Like so many swine in a trough.

Cor. I'll shape ye all for a device before the prince: we'll try how that can move him.

Rhe. He shall fret or laugh.

Cuc. Must I make one?

Cor. Yes, and your feminine page too.

Gril. Thanks, most egregiously.

Pel. I will not slack my part.

Cuc. Wench, take my buckler.

Cor. Come all unto my chamber: the project is cast: the time only we must attend.

Rhe. The melody must agree well and yield sport, When such as these are, knaves and fools, consort.

[Exeunt.

SCENE III. An Apartment in the House of THAMASTA.

Enter Amethus, Thamasta and Kala.

Amet. Does this show well?

Tha. What would you have me do?

Amet. Not like a lady of the trim, new crept
Out of the shell of sluttish sweat and labour
Into the glittering pomp of ease and wantonness,
Embroideries, and all these antic fashions
That shape a woman monstrous; to transform
Your education and a noble birth
Into contempt and laughter. Sister, sister,
She who derives her blood from princes ought
To glorify her greatness by humility.

Tha. Then you conclude me proud?

Amet. Young Menaphon,

My worthy friend, has loved you long and truly:
To witness his obedience to your scorn,
Twelve months, wronged gentleman, he undertook
A voluntary exile. Wherefore, sister,
In this time of his absence have you not
Disposed of your affections on some monarch?
Or sent ambassadors to some neighbouring king
With fawning protestations of your graces,
Your rare perfections, admirable beauty?
This had been a new piece of modesty
Would have deserved a chronicle!

Tha. You're bitter;

And, brother, by your leave, not kindly wise. My freedom is my birth's; I am not bound To fancy your approvements, but my own. Indeed, you are an humble youth! I hear of Your visits and your loving commendation To your heart's saint, Cleophila, a virgin Of a rare excellence. What though she want A portion to maintain a portly greatness? Yet 'tis your gracious sweetness to descend So low; the meekness of your pity leads ye! She is your dear friend's sister! a good soul! An innocent!—

Amet.

Thamasta!

1 i.e. According to kin.

Tha.

I have given

Your Menaphon a welcome home, as fits me; For his sake entertained Parthenophil, The handsome stranger, more familiarly

Than, I may fear, becomes me; yet, for his part,

I not repent my courtesies: but you—

Amet. No more, no more! be affable to both; Time may reclaim your cruelty.

Tha.

I pity

The youth; and, trust me, brother, love his sadness:

He talks the prettiest stories: he delivers

His tales so gracefully, that I could sit

And listen, nay, forget my meals and sleep,

To hear his neat discourses. Menaphon

Was well advised in choosing such a friend

For pleading his true love.

Amet.

Now I commend thee;

Thou'lt change at last, I hope.

Tha.

I fear I shall. [Aside.

Enter MENAPHON and PARTHENOPHIL.

Amet. Have ye surveyed the garden?

Men.

'Tis a curious,

A pleasantly contrived delight.

Tha.

Your eye, sir,

Hath in your travels often met contents Of more variety?

Par.

Not any, lady.

Men. It were impossible, since your fair presence Makes every place, where it vouchsafes to shine, More lovely than all other helps of art Can equal.

Tha. What you mean by "helps of art," You know yourself best: be they as they are; You need none, I am sure, to set me forth.

Men. 'Twould argue want of manners, more than skill, Not to praise praise itself.

Tha.

For your reward,

Henceforth I'll call you servant.1

Amet.

Excellent sister!

Men. 'Tis my first step to honour. May I fall Lower than shame, when I neglect all service That may confirm this favour!

Tha.

Are you well, sir?

Par. Great princess, I am well. To see a league Between an humble love, such as my friend's is, And a commanding virtue, such as yours is, Are sure restoratives.

Tha. You speak ingeniously.—2

Brother, be pleased to show the gallery

To this young stranger. Use the time a while,

And we will all together to the court:

I will present ye, sir, unto the prince.

Par. You're all composed of fairness and true bounty.

Amet. Come, come.—We'll wait thee, sister. This beginning

Doth relish happy process.

Men.

You have blessed me.

[Exeunt Menaphon, Amethus, and Parthe-Nophil.

Tha. Kala, O Kala!

Kal.

Lady?

Tha.

We are private;

Thou art my closet.

Kal.

Lock your secrets close, then:

I am not to be forced.

Tha.

Never till now

Could I be sensible of being traitor

To honour and to shame.

Kal.

You are in love.

Tha. I am grown base.—Parthenophil—

Kal.

He's handsome,

1 i.e. Acknowledge you as a lover.

² i.e. Wittily.

Richly endowed; he hath a lovely face, A winning tongue.

Tha. If ever I must fall,
In him my greatness sinks: Love is a tyrant,
Resisted. Whisper in his ear, how gladly
I would steal time to talk with him one hour:
But do it honourably; prithee, Kala,
Do not betray me.

Kal. Madam, I will make it
Mine own case; he shall think I am in love with him.
Tha. I hope thou art not, Kala.

Kal. 'Tis for your sake:

I'll tell him so; but, 'faith, I am not, lady.

Tha. Pray, use me kindly; let me not too soon
Be lost in my new follies. 'Tis a fate
That overrules our wisdoms; whilst we strive
To live most free, we're caught in our own toils.
Diamonds cut diamonds; they who will prove
To thrive in cunning must cure love with love. [Exeunt.

ACT THE SECOND.

SCENE 1 .- An Apartment in the Palace.

Enter SOPHRONOS and ARETUS.

OPH. Our commonwealth is sick: 'tis more than time

That we should wake the head thereof, who sleeps

In the dull lethargy of lost security.

The commons murmur, and the nobles

The court is now turned antic, and grows wild, [grieve; Whiles all the neighbouring nations stand at gaze,

And watch fit opportunity to wreak

Their just-conceived fury on such injuries

As the late prince, our hving master's father,

Committed against laws of truth or honour.

Intelligence comes flying in on all sides;

Whilst the unsteady multitude presume

How that you, A and I engross,

Out of particular americon,

The affairs of government; which I, for my part,

Groan under and am weary of.

Are. Sophronos,

I am as zealous too of shaking off

My gay state-fetters, that I have bethought

Of speedy remedy; and to that end,

As I have told ye, have concluded with

Corax, the prince's chief physician.

Soph. You should have done this sooner, Aretus,

You were his tutor, and could best discern His dispositions, to inform them rightly.

Are. Passions of violent nature, by degrees Are easiliest reclaimed. There's something hid Of his distemper, which we'll now find out.

Enter CORAX, RHETIAS, PELIAS, CUCULUS, and GRILLA.

You come on just appointment. Welcome, gentlemen! Have you won Rhetias, Corax?

Cor.

Most sincerely.

Cuc. Save ye, nobilities! Do your lordships take notice of my page? 'Tis a fashion of the newest edition, spick and span new, without example.—Do your honour, housewife.

Gril. There's a curtsey for you,—and a curtsey for you.

Soph. 'Tis excellent: we must all follow fashion, And entertain she-waiters.

Are.

'Twill be courtly.

Cuc. I think so; I hope the chronicles will rear me one day for a headpiece—

Rhe. Of woodcock, without brains in't! Barbers shall wear thee on their citterns, and hucksters set thee out in gingerbread.

Cuc. Devil take thee! I say not ng to thee now; can'st let me be quiet?

Gril. You're too perstreperous, saucebox.

Cuc. Good girl!—If we begin to puff once—

Pel. Prithee, hold thy tongue; the lords are in the presence.

¹ Simpleton.

² It appears from innumerable passages in our old writers, that barbers' shops were furnished with some musical instrument (commonly a cittern or guitar), for the amusement of such customers as chose to strum upon it while waiting for their turn to be shaved, &c.—Gifford. "Citterns," Dyce adds, "were usually ornamented with grotesque heads carved at the extremity of the neck and finger-board."

Rhe. Mum, butterfly!

Pel. The prince! stand and keep silence.

Cuc. O, the prince!—Wench, thou shalt see the prince now.

[Soft music.

Enter PALADOR with a book.

Soph. Sir!

Are. Gracious sir!

Pal. Why all this company?

Cor. A book! is this the early exercise I did prescribe? instead of following health, Which all men covet, you pursue disease.

Where's your great horse, your hounds, your set at tennis,

Your balloon-ball, the practice of your dancing, Your casting of the sledge, or learning how To toss a pike? all changed into a sonnet! Pray, sir, grant me free liberty to leave The court; it does infect me with the sloth Of sleep and surfeit: in the university I have employments, which to my profession Add profit and report; here I am lost, And in your wilful dulness held a man Of neither art nor honesty. You may Command my head:—pray, take it, do! 'twere better For me to lose it than to lose my wits, And live in Bedlam; you will force me to't; I'm almost mad already.

Pal. I believe it.

Soph. Letters are come from Crete, which do require A speedy restitution of such ships
As by your father were long since detained;
If not, defiance threatened.

Are. These near parts Of Syria that adjoin muster their friends; And by intelligence we learn for certain

The Syrian will pretend an ancient interest Of tribute intermitted.

Soph. Through your land Your subjects mutter strangely, and imagine More than they dare speak publicly.

Cor. And yet

They talk but oddly of you.

Cuc. Hang 'em, mongrels.

Pal. Of me! my subjects talk of me!

Cor. Yes, scurvily,

And think worse, prince.

Pal. I'll borrow patience

A little time to listen to these wrongs;

And from the few of you which are here present Conceive the general voice.

Cor. So! now he's nettled. [Aside.

Pal. By all your loves I charge ye, without fear Or flattery, to let me know your thoughts,

And how I am interpreted: speak boldly.

Soph. For my part, sir, I will be plain and brief. I think you are of nature mild and easy, Not willingly provoked, but withal headstrong In any passion that misleads your judgment: I think you too indulgent to such motions As spring out of your own affections; Too old to be reformed, and yet too young To take fit counsel from yourself of what

Is most amiss.

Pal. So!—Tutor, your conceit?

Are. I think you dote—with pardon let me speak it—

Too much upon your pleasures; and these pleasures Are so wrapt up in self-love, that you covet No other change of fortune; would be still What your birth makes you; but are loth to toil In such affairs of state as break your sleeps.

Cor. I think you would be by the world reputed

A man in every point complete; but are In manners and effect indeed a child, A boy, a very boy.

Pel. May't please your grace,
I think you do contain within yourself
The great elixir, soul, and quintessence
Of all divine perfections; are the glory
Of mankind, and the only strict example
For earthly monarchs to square out their lives by;
Time's miracle, Fame's pride; in knowledge, wit,
Sweetness, discourse, arms, arts—

Pal. You are a courtier.

Cuc. But not of the ancient fashion, an't like your highness. 'Tis I; I that am the credit of the court, noble prince; and if thou wouldst, by proclamation or patent, create me overseer of all the tailors in thy dominions, then, then the golden days should appear again; bread should be cheaper, fools should have more wit, knaves more honesty, and beggars more money.

Gril. I think now—

Cuc. Peace, you squall!

Pal. [to Rhetias] You have not spoken yet.

Cuc. Hang him! he'll nothing but rail.

Gril. Most abominable;—out upon him!

Cor. Away, Cuculus; follow the lords.

Cuc. Close, page, close.

[They all silently withdraw except PALADOR and RHETIAS.

Pal. You are somewhat long a' thinking.

Rhe. I do not think at all.

Pal. Am I not worthy of your thought?

Rhe. My pity you are, but not my reprehension.

Pal. Pity!

Rhe. Yes, for I pity such to whom I owe service, who exchange their happiness for a misery.

Pal. Is it a misery to be a prince?

1 Qy. "Affect."—Dyce.

Rhe. Princes who forget their sovereignty, and yield to affected passion, are weary of command.—You had a father, sir.

Pal. Your sovereign, whiles he lived: but what of him?

Rhe. Nothing. I only dared to name him; that's all.

Pal. I charge thee, by the duty that thou ow'st us,

Be plain in what thou mean'st to speak: there's something

That we must know: be free; our ears are open.

Rhe. O, sir, I had rather hold a wolf by the ears than stroke a lion: the greatest danger is the last.

Pal. This is mere trifling.—Ha! are all stol'n hence? We are alone: thou hast an honest look; Thou hast a tongue, I hope, that is not oiled With flattery: be open. Though 'tis true That in my younger days I oft have heard Agenor's name, my father, more traduced Than I could then observe; yet I protest I never had a friend, a certain friend, That would inform me throughly of such errors As oftentimes are incident to princes.

Rhe. All this may be. I have seen a man so curious in feeling of the edge of a keen knife, that he has cut his fingers. My flesh is not of proof against the metal I am to handle; the one is tenderer than the other.

Pal. I see, then, I must court thee. Take the word Of a just prince; for anything thou speakest I have more than a pardon,—thanks and love.

Rhe. I will remember you of an old tale that something concerns you. Meleander, the great but unfortunate statesman, was by your father treated with for a match between you and his eldest daughter, the Lady Eroclea: you were both near of an age. I presume you remember a contract, and cannot forget her.

Pal. She was a lovely beauty. Prithee, forward!

Rhe. To court was Eroclea brought; was courted by your father, not for Prince Palador, as it followed, but to be made a prey to some less noble design. With your favour, I have forgot the rest.

Pal. Good, call it back again into thy memory; Else, losing the remainder, I am lost too.

Rhe. You charm 1 me. In brief, a rape by some bad agents was attempted; by the Lord Meleander her father rescued, she conveyed away; Meleander accused of treason, his land seized, he himself distracted and confined to the castle, where he yet lives. What had ensued was doubtful; but your father shortly after died.

Pal. But what became of fair Eroclea?

Rhe. She never since was heard of.

Pal. No hope lives, then,

Of ever, ever seeing her again?

Rhe. Sir, I feared I should anger thee. There was, as I said, an old tale:—I have now a new one, which may perhaps season the first with a more delightful relish.

Pal. I am prepared to hear; say what you please.

Rhe. My Lord Meleander failing,—on whose favour my fortunes relied,—I furnished myself for travel, and bent my course to Athens; where a pretty accident, after a while, came to my knowledge,

Pal. My ear is open to thee.

Rhe. A young lady contracted to a noble gentleman, as the lady we last mentioned and your highness were, being hindered by their jarring parents, stole from her home, and was conveyed like a ship-boy in a merchant from the country where she lived, into Corinth first, afterwards to Athens; where in much solitariness she lived, like a youth, almost two years, courted by all for acquaintance, but friend to none by familiarity.

Pal. In habit of a man?

Rhe. A handsome young man—till, within these three months or less,—her sweetheart's father dying some year before or more,—she had notice of it, and with much joy returned home, and, as report voiced it at Athens, enjoyed her happiness she was long an exile for. Now, noble sir, if you did love the Lady Eroclea, why may not such safety and fate direct her as directed the other? 'tis not impossible.

Pal. If I did love her, Rhetias! Yes, I did. Give me thy hand: as thou didst serve Meleander, And art still true to these, henceforth serve me.

Rhe. My duty and my obedience are my surety; But I have been too bold.

Pal. Forget the sadder story of my father, And only, Rhetias, learn to read 1 me well; For I must ever thank thee: thou'st unlocked A tongue was vowed to silence; for requital, Open my bosom, Rhetias.

Rhe. What's your meaning?

Pal. To tie thee to an oath of secrecy.
Unloose the buttons, man: thou dost it faintly.
What find'st thou there?

Rhe. A picture in a tablet.

Pal. Look well upon't.

Rhe. I do—yes—let me observe it—'Tis hers, the lady's.

Pal. Whose?

Rhe. Eroclea's.

Pal. Hers that was once Eroclea. For her sake Have I advanced Sophronos to the helm Of government; for her sake will restore Meleander's honours to him; will, for her sake, Beg friendship from thee, Rhetias. O, be faithful, And let no politic lord work from thy bosom My griefs: I know thou wert put on to sift me; But be not too secure.

Rhe. I am your creature.

Pal. Continue still thy discontented fashion, Humour the lords, as they would humour me; I'll not live in thy debt.—We are discovered.

¹ Comprehend.

Enter Amethus, Menaphon, Thamasta, Kala, and Parthenophil.

Amet. Honour and health still wait upon the prince! Sir, I am bold with favour to present Unto your highness Menaphon my friend, Returned from travel.

Men.

Humbly on my knees

I kiss your gracious hand.

Pal.

It is our duty

To love the virtuous.

Men.

If my prayers or service

Hold any value, they are vowed yours ever.

Rhe. I have a fist for thee too, stripling; thou'rt started up prettily since I saw thee. Hast learned any wit abroad? Canst tell news and swear lies with a grace, like a true traveller?—What new ouzel's this?

Tha. Your highness shall do right to your own judgment

In taking more than common notice of This stranger, an Athenian, named Parthenophil; One who, if mine opinion do not soothe me Too grossly, for the fashion of his mind Deserves a dear respect.

Pal.

Your commendations,

Sweet cousin, speak him nobly.

Par.

All the powers

That sentinel just thrones double their guards About your sacred excellence!

Pal.

What fortune

Led him to Cyprus?

Men.

My persuasions won him.

Amet. And if your highness please to hear the entrance Into their first acquaintance, you will say—

Tha. It was the newest, sweetest, prettiest accident That e'er delighted your attention:

I can discourse it, sir.

SCENE I.] THE LOVER'S MELANCHOLY. Pal. Some other time. How is he called? Tha. Parthenophil. Pal. Parthenophil! We shall sort time to take more notice of him. Exit. Men. His wonted melancholy still pursues him. Amet. I told you so. Tha. You must not wonder at it. Par. I do not, lady. Amet. Shall we to the castle? Men. We will attend ye both. Rhe. All three,—I'll go too. Hark in thine ear, gallant; I'll keep the old madman in chat, whilst thou gabblest to the girl: my thumb's upon my lips; not a word.

Amet. I need not fear thee, Rhetias. Sister, soon Expect us: this day we will range the city.

Tha. Well, soon I shall expect ye.—Kala!

Aside to KALA.

Kal. Trust me.

Rhe. Troop on !—Love, love, what a wonder thou art! Exeunt all but Parthenophil and Kala.

Kal. May I not be offensive, sir?

Par. Your pleasure?

Yet, pray, be brief.

Then, briefly; good, resolve me; Kal. Have you a mistress or a wife?

Par. I've neither.

Kal. Nor did you ever love in earnest any Fair lady, whom you wished to make your own? Par. Not any, truly.

What your friends or means are Kal. I will not be inquisitive to know,

Nor do I care to hope for. But admit

A dowry were thrown down before your choice, Of beauty, noble birth, sincere affection, How gladly would you entertain it! Young man,

I do not tempt you idly.

Ford.

Par.

I shall thank you,

When my unsettled thoughts can make me sensible

Of what 'tis to be happy; for the present

I am your debtor; and, fair gentlewoman,

Pray give me leave as yet to study ignorance,

For my weak brains conceive not what concerns me.

Another time—

[Going.

Re-enter THAMASTA.

Tha. Do I break off your parley, That you are parting? Sure, my woman loves you: Can she speak well, Parthenophil?

Par. Yes, madam, Discreetly chaste she can; she hath much won On my belief, and in few words, but pithy, Much moved my thankfulness. You are her lady; Your goodness aims, I know, at her preferment; Therefore I may be bold to make confession Of truth: if ever I desire to thrive In woman's favour, Kala is the first Whom my ambition shall bend to.

Tha. Indeed!

But say a nobler love should interpose.

Par. Where real worth and constancy first settle A hearty truth, there greatness cannot shake it; Nor shall it mine: yet I am but an infant In that construction, which must give clear light To Kala's merit; riper hours hereafter Must learn me how to grow rich in deserts.

Madam, my duty waits on you.

[Exit.

Tha. Come hither:—
"If ever henceforth I desire to thrive

"If ever henceforth I desire to thrive
In woman's favour, Kala is the first
Whom my ambition shall bend to." 'Twas so!

Kal These very words he spake

Kal. These very words he spake.

These very words

Curse thee, unfaithful creature, to thy grave. Thou woo'dst him for thyself?

Kal. You said I should.

Tha. My name was never mentioned?

Kal. Madam, no;

We were not come to that.

Tha. Not come to that!

Art thou a rival fit to cross my fate?

Now poverty and a dishonest fame,
The waiting-woman's wages, be thy payment,
False, faithless, wanton beast! I'll spoil your marriage.¹
There's not a page, a groom, nay, not a citizen
That shall be cast away upon ye, Kala;
I'll keep thee in my service all thy lifetime,

Kal. I have not verily deserved this cruelty.

Without hope of a husband or a suitor.

Tha. Parthenophil shall know, if he respect

My birth, the danger of a fond 2 neglect.

[Exit.

Kal. Are you so quick? Well, I may chance to cross Your peevishness. Now, though I never meant The young man for myself, yet, if he love me, I'll have him, or I'll run away with him; And let her do her worst then! What! we're all But flesh and blood; the same thing that will do My lady good will please her woman too.

[Exit.

. SCENE II. An Apartment in the Castle.

Enter CLEOPHILA and TROLLIO.

Cleo. Tread softly, Trollio; my father sleeps still.

Trol. Ay, forsooth; but he sleeps like a hare, with his eyes open, and that's no good sign.

Cleo. Sure, thou art weary of this sullen living: But I am not; for I take more content In my obedience here than all delights
The time presents elsewhere.

1 "Carriage" in the old eds.

² Foolish.

Mel. [Within] O!

Cleo. Dost hear that groan?

Trol. Hear it! I shudder: it was a strong blast, young mistress, able to root up heart, liver, lungs, and all.

Cleo. My much-wronged father! let me view his face.

[Draws the arras: 1 MELEANDER discovered in a chair, sleeping.

Trol. Lady mistress, shall I fetch a barber to steal away his rough beard whiles he sleeps? In's naps he never looks in a glass—and 'tis high time, on conscience, for him to be trimmed; 'has not been under the shaver's hand almost these four years.

Cleo. Peace, fool!

Trol. [Aside] I could clip the old ruffian; there's hair enough to stuff all the great codpieces in Switzerland. 'A begins to stir; 'a stirs. Bless us, how his eyes roll!

—A good year keep your lordship in your right wits, I beseech ye!

Mel. Cleophila!

Cleo. Sir, I am here; how d'ye, sir?

Trol. Sir, is your stomach up yet? get some warm porridge in your belly; 'tis a very good settle-brain.

Mel. The raven croaked, and hollow shrieks of owls

Sung dirges at her funeral; I laughed
The whiles, for 'twas no boot to weep. The girl
Was fresh and full of youth: but, O, the cunning
Of tyrants, that look big! their very frowns
Doom poor souls guilty ere their cause be heard.—
Good, what art thou?—and thou?

Cleo. I am Cleophila,

Your woeful daughter.

Trol. I am Trollio,

Your honest implement.

Arras was used precisely as a curtain: it hung (on tenters or lines) from the rafters, or from some temporary stay, and was opened, held up, or drawn aside, as occasion required.—Gifford.

'''A''' . Su

Mel. I know ye both, 'Las, why d'ye use me thus? Thy sister, my Eroclea, was so gentle,
That turtles in their down do feed more gall
Than her spleen mixed with: yet, when winds and storm
Drive dirt and dust on banks of spotless snow,
The purest whiteness is no such defence
Against the sullying foulness of that fury.
So raved Agenor, that great man, mischief
Against the girl: 'twas a politic trick!
We were too old in honour. I am lean,
And fall'n away extremely; most assuredly
I have not dined these three days.

Cleo. Will you now, sir?

Trol. I beseech ye heartily, sir: I feel a horrible puking myself.

Mel. Am I stark mad?

Trol. [Aside] No, no, you are but a little staring; there's difference between staring and stark mad. You are but whimsied yet; crotcheted, conumdrumed, or so.

Mel. Here's all my care; and I do often sigh For thee, Cleophila; we are secluded From all good people. But take heed; Amethus Was son to Doryla, Agenor's sister; There's some ill blood about him, if the surgeon Have not been very skilful to let all out.

Cleo. I am, alas, too grieved to think of love; That must concern me least.

Mel. Sirrah, be wise! be wise!

Trol. Who, I? I will be monstrous and wise immediately.

Enter Amethus, Menaphon, Parthenophil, and Rhetias.

Welcome, gentlemen; the more the merrier. I'll lay the cloth, and set the stools in a readiness, for I see here is some hope of dinner now.

[Exit.

Amet. My Lord Meleander, Menaphon, your kinsman,

Newly returned from travel, comes to tender His duty t'ye;—to you his love, fair mistress.

Men. I would I could as easily remove
Sadness from your remembrance, sir, as study
To do you faithful service.—My dear cousin,
All best of comforts bless your sweet obedience!

Cleo. One chief of 'em, my worthy cousin, lives In you and your well-doing.

Men.

This young stranger

Will well deserve your knowledge.

Amet.

For my friend's sake,

Lady, pray give him welcome.

Cleo.

He has met it,

If sorrows can look kindly.

Par.

You much honour me.

Rhe. [Aside] How he eyes the company! sure my passion will betray my weakness.—O my master, my noble master, do not forget me; I am still the humblest and the most faithful in heart of those that serve you.

Mel. Ha, ha, ha!

Rhe. [Aside] There's wormwood in that laughter; 'tis the usher to a violent extremity.

Mel. I am a weak old man. All these are come To jeer my ripe calamities.

Men.

Good uncle!

Mel. But I'll outstare ye all: fools, desperate fools! You're cheated, grossly cheated; range, range on, And roll about the world to gather moss, The moss of honour, gay reports, gay clothes, Gay wives, huge empty buildings, whose proud roofs Shall with their pinnacles even reach the stars. Ye work and work like moles, blind in the paths That are bored through the crannies of the earth, To charge your hungry souls with such full surfeits As being gorged once, make ye lean with plenty; And when ye've skimmed the vomit of your riots, Ye're fat in no felicity but folly:

Then your last sleeps seize on ye; then the troops Of worms crawl round and feast; good cheer, rich fare, Dainty, delicious!—Here's Cleophila; All the poor stock of my remaining thrift: You, you, the prince's cousin, how d'ye like her? Amethus, how d'ye like her?

Amet.

My intents

Are just and honourable.

Men.

Sir, believe him.

Mel. Take her.—We two must part; go to him do.

Par. This sight is full of horror.

Rhe.

There is sense yet

In this distraction.

Mel. In this jewel I have given away All what I can call mine. When I am dead, Save charge; let me buried in a nook: No guns, no pompous whining; these are fooleries. If, whiles we live, we stalk about the streets Jostlèd by carmen, footposts, and fine apes In silken coats, unminded and scarce thought on It is not comely to be haled to the earth, Like high-fed jades upon a tilting-day, In antic trappings. Scorn to useless tears! Eroclea was not coffined so; she perished, And no eye dropped save mine—and I am childish: I talk like one that dotes: laugh at me, Rhetias, Or rail at me. They will not give me meat, They've starved me; but I'll henceforth be mine own cook.

Good morrow! 'tis too early for my cares

To revel; I will break my heart a little,

And tell ye more hereafter. Pray be merry, [Exit.

Rhe. I'll follow him.—My Lord Amethus, use your

Rhe. I'll follow him.—My Lord Amethus, use your time respectively: few words to purpose soonest prevail: study no long orations; be plain and short.—I'll follow him.

[Exit.

- Amet. Cleophila, although these blacker clouds

Of sadness thicken and make dark the sky Of thy fair eyes, yet give me leave to follow The stream of my affections: they are pure, Without all mixture of unnoble thoughts. Can you be ever mine?

Cleo. I am so low
In mine own fortunes and my father's woes,
That I want words to tell ye you deserve
A worthier choice.

Amet. But give me leave to hope.

Men. My friend is serious.

Cleo. Sir, this for answer. If I ever thrive In any earthly happiness, the next To my good father's wished recovery Must be my thankfulness to your great merit, Which I dare promise: for the present time You cannot urge more from me.

Mel. [Within]

Ho, Cleophila!

Cleo. This gentleman is moved.

Amet.

Your eyes, Parthenophil,

Are guilty of some passion.

Men.

Friend, what ails thee?

Par. All is not well within me, sir.

Mel. [Within]

Cleophila!

Amet. Sweet maid, forget me not; we now must part.

Cleo. Still you shall have my prayer.

Amet.

Still you my truth.

Exeunt.

¹ Grief.

ACT THE THIRD.

SCENE 1 .- A Room in the Palace.

Enter Cuculus and Grilla; the former in a black velvet cap and a white feather, with a paper in his hand.

UC. Do not I look freshly, and like a youth of the trim?

Gril. As rare an old youth as ever walked cross-gartered.

Cuc. Here are my mistresses mustered in white and black. [Reads] "Kala, the waiting-woman "-I will first begin at the foot: stand thou for Kala.

Gril. I stand for Kala; do your best and your worst.

Cuc. I must look big, and care little or nothing for her, because she is a creature that stands at livery. Thus I talk wisely, and to no purpose: Wench, as it is not fit that thou shouldst be either fair or honest, so, considering thy service, thou art as thou art, and so are thy betters, let them be what they can be. Thus, in despite and defiance of all thy good parts, if I cannot endure thy baseness, 'tis more out of thy courtesy than my deserving; and so I expect thy answer.

Gril. I must confess

Cuc.

Well said.

Gril.

You are—

Cuc.

That's true too.

Gril. To speak you right, a very scurvy fellow.

Cuc, Away, away!—dost think so?

Gril. A very foul-mouthed and misshapen coxcomb.

Cuc. I'll never believe it, by this hand.

Gril. A maggot, most unworthy to creep in To the least wrinkle of a gentlewoman's— What d'ye call—good conceit, or so, or what You will else,—were you not refined by courtship And education, which in my blear eyes Makes you appear as sweet as any nosegay, Or savoury cod of musk new fall'n from the cat.

Cuc. This shall serve well enough for the waiting-woman. My next mistress is Cleophila, the old madman's daughter. I must come to her in whining tune; sigh, wipe mine eyes, fold my arms, and blubber out my speech as thus:—Even as a kennel of hounds, sweet-lady, cannot catch a hare when they are full-paunched on the carrion of a dead horse; so, even so, the gorge of my affections being full-crammed with the garboils of your condolements doth tickle me with the prick, as it were, about me, and fellow-feeling of howling outright.

Gril. This will do't, if we will hear.

Cuc. Thou seest I am crying ripe, I am such another tender-hearted fool.

Gril. Even as the snuff of a candle that is burnt in the socket goes out, and leaves a strong perfume behind it; or as a piece of toasted cheese next the heart in a morning is a restorative for a sweet breath; so, even so, the odoriferous savour of your love doth perfume my heart—heigh-ho!—with the pure scent of an intolerable content, and not to be endured.

Cuc. By this hand, 'tis excellent! Have at thee, last of all, for the Princess Thamasta, she that is my mistress indeed. She is abominably proud, a lady of a damnable high, turbulent, and generous spirit: but I have a loud-mouthed cannon of mine own to batter her, and a penned speech of purpose: observe it.

Gril. Thus I walk by, hear, and mind you not.

Cuc. [Reads] "Though haughty as the devil or his dam Thou dost appear, great mistress, yet I am

¹ Tumult.

Like to an ugly firework, and can mount

Above the region of thy sweet ac—count.

Wert thou the moon herself, yet having seen thee,

Behold the man ordained to move within thee."

Look to yourself, housewife! answer me in strong lines, you're best.

Gril. Keep off, poor fool, my beams will strike thee blind;

Else, if thou touch me, touch me but behind.

In palaces, such as pass in before

Must be great princes; for at the back-door

Tatterdemalions wait, who know not how

To get admittance; such a one—art thou.

Cuc. 'Sfoot, this is downright roaring.

Gril. I know how to present a big lady in her own cue. But, pray, in earnest, are you in love with all these?

Cuc. Pish! I have not a rag of love about me; 'tis only a foolish humour I am possessed with, to be surnamed the conqueror. I will court anything; be in love with nothing, nor no—thing.

Gril. A rare man you are, I protest.

Cuc. Yes, I know I am a rare man, and I ever held myself so.

Enter PELIAS and CORAX.

Pel. In amorous contemplation, on my life; Courting his page, by Helicon!

Cuc. 'Tis false.

Gril. A gross untruth; I'll justify it, sir, At any time, place, weapon.

Cuc. Marry, shall she.

Cor. No quarrels, Goody Whisk! lay-by your trumperies, and fall-to your practice. Instructions are ready for you all. Pelias is your leader; follow him: get credit now or never. Vanish, doodles, vanish!

1 The quarrelsome language of the bullies of the day.

Cuc. For the device?

Cor. The same; get ye gone, and make no bawling.

[Exeunt all but CORAX.

To waste my time thus, drone-like, in the court,
And lose so many hours as my studies
Have hoarded up, is to be like a man
That creeps both on his hands and knees to climb
A mountain's top; where, when he is ascended,
One careless slip down-tumbles him again
Into the bottom, whence he first began.
I need no prince's favour; princes need
My art: then, Corax, be no more a gull;
The best of 'em cannot fool thee, nay, they shall not.

Enter Sophronos and Aretus.

Soph. We find him timely now; let's learn the cause.

Arc. 'Tis fit we should.—Sir, we approve you learned.

And, since your skill can best discern the humours

That are predominant in bodies subject

To alteration, tell us, pray, what devil

This Melancholy is, which can transform

Men into monsters.

Cor. You're yourself a scholar, And quick of apprehension. Melancholy Is not, as you conceive, indisposition Of body, but the mind's disease. So Ecstasy, Fantastic Dotage, Madness, Frenzy, Rapture Of mere imagination, differ partly From Melancholy; which is briefly this, A mere commotion of the mind, o'ercharged With fear and sorrow; first begot i' the brain, The seat of reason, and from thence derived As suddenly into the heart, the seat Of our affection.

¹ Vide (Ford says) Democritus Junior. He is alluding to Burton's Anatomy of Melancholy.

Are. There are sundry kinds Of this disturbance?

Cor. Infinite: it were

More easy to conjecture every hour We have to live than reckon up the kinds Or causes of this anguish of the mind.

Soph. Thus you conclude that, as the cause is doubtful, The cure must be impossible; and then Our prince, poor gentleman, is lost for ever As well unto himself as to his subjects.

Cor. My lord, you are too quick: thus much I dare Promise and do; ere many minutes pass
I will discover whence his sadness is,
Or undergo the censure of my ignorance.

Are. You are a noble scholar.

Soph. For reward

You shall make your own demand.

Cor. May I be sure?

Are. We both will pledge our truth.

Cor. 'Tis soon performed:

That I may be discharged from my attendance At court, and never more be sent for after; Or—if I be, may rats gnaw all my books, If I get home once, and come here again! Though my neck stretch a halter for't, I care not.

Soph. Come, come, you shall not fear it.

Cor. I'll acquaint ye

With what is to be done; and you shall fashion it.

Exeunt.

SCENE II.-A Room in THAMASTA'S House.

Enter KALA and PARTHENOPHIL.

Kal. My lady does expect ye, thinks all time Too slow till you come to her: wherefore, young man, If you intend to love me, and me only, Before we part, without more circumstance, Let us betroth ourselves.

Par.

I dare not wrong ye;—

You are too violent.

Kal.

Wrong me no more

Than I wrong you; be mine, and I am yours:

I cannot stand on points.

Par.

Then, to resolve

All further hopes, you never can be mine,

Must not, and—pardon though I say—you shall not.

Kal. [Aside]. The thing is sure a gelding.—Shall not! Well,

You're best to prate unto my lady now, What proffer I have made.

Par.

Never, I vow.

Kal. Do, do! 'tis but a kind heart of mine own, And ill luck can undo me.—Be refused!
O scurvy!—Pray walk on, I'll overtake ye.

Exit Parthenophil.

What a green-sickness-livered boy is this!

My maidenhead will shortly grow so stale

That 'twill be mouldy:—but I'll mar her market.

Enter MENAPHON.

Men. Parthenophil passed this way: prithee, Kala, Direct me to him.

Kal.

Yes, I can direct ye;

But you, sir, must forbear.

Men.

Forbear!

Kal.

I said so.

Your bounty has engaged my truth: receive A secret, that will, as you are a man, Startle your reason; 'tis but mere respect Of what I owe to thankfulness. Dear sir, The stranger whom your courtesy received For friend is made your rival.

Men.

Rival, Kala!

Take heed; thou art too credulous.

Kal.

My lady

Dotes on him. I will place you in a room Where, though you cannot hear, yet you shall see Such passages as will confirm the truth Of my intelligence.

Men.

'Twill make me mad.

Kal. Yes, yes.

It makes me mad too, that a gentleman Se excellently sweet, so liberal, So kind, so proper, should be so betrayed By a young smooth-chinned straggler: but for love's sake,

Bear all with manly courage. Not a word; I am undone then.

Men.

That were too much pity:

Honest, most honest Kala, 'tis thy care, Thy serviceable care.

Kal.

You have even spoken

All can be said or thought.

Men.

I will reward thee:

But as for him, ungentle boy, I'll whip His falsehood with a vengeance.

Kal.

O, speak little.

Walk up these stairs; and take this key: it opens A chamber-door, where, at that window yonder, You may see all their courtship.

Men.

1 am silent.

Kal. As little noise as may be, I beseech ye:
There is a back-stair to convey ye forth
Unseen or unsuspected.

[Exit Menaphon.

He that cheats

A waiting-woman of a free good turn
She longs for must expect a shrewd revenge.
Sheep-spirited boy! although he had not married me,
He might have proffered kindness in a corner,

And ne'er have been the worse for't.—They are come: On goes my set of faces most demurely.

Enter THAMASTA and PARTHENOPHIL.

Tha. Forbear the room.

Kal.

Yes, madam.

Tha.

Whosoever

Requires access to me, deny him entrance Till I call thee; and wait without.

Kal.

I shall.—

Sweet Venus, turn his courage to a snow-ball;

I heartily beseech it!

[Aside, and exit.

Tha.

I expose

The honour of my birth, my fame, my youth,
To hazard of much hard construction,
In seeking an adventure of a parley,
So private, with a stranger: if your thoughts
Censure me not with mercy, you may soon
Conceive I have laid by that modesty
Which should preserve a virtuous name unstained.

Par. Lady,—to shorten long excuses,—time And safe experience have so throughly armed My apprehension with a real taste Of your most noble nature, that to question The least part of your bounties, or that freedom Which heaven hath with a plenty made you rich in, Would argue me uncivil; which is more, Base-bred; and, which is most of all, unthankful.

Tha. The constant loadstone and the steel are found. In several mines; yet is there such a league Between these minerals as if one vein Of earth had nourished both. The gentle myrtle Is not engraft upon an olive's stock, Yet nature hath between them locked a secret Of sympathy, that, being planted near, They will, both in their branches and their roots.

¹ Ignorant of the language and manners of good society;

Embrace each other: twines of ivy round
The well-grown oak; the vine doth court the elm;
Yet these are different plants. Parthenophil,
Consider this aright; then these slight creatures
Will fortify the reasons I should frame
For that ungrounded—as thou think'st—affection
Which is submitted to a stranger's pity.
True love may blush, when shame repents too late
But in all actions nature yields to fate.

Par. Great lady, 'twere a dulness must exceed The grossest and most sottish kind of ignorance Not to be sensible of your intents; I clearly understand them. Yet so much The difference between that height and lowness Which doth distinguish our unequal fortunes Dissuades me from ambition, that I am Humbler in my desires than love's own power Can any way raise up.

Tha. I am a princess, And know no law of slavery; to sue, Yet be denied!

Par. I am so much a subject
To every law of noble honesty,
That to transgress the vows of perfect friendship
I hold a sacrilege as foul and cursed
As if some holy temple had been robbed,
And I the thief.

Tha. Thou art unwise, young man, T' enrage a lioness.

Par. It were unjust
To falsify a faith, and ever after,
Disrobed of that fair ornament, live naked,
A scorn to time and truth.

Tha. Remember well

Who I am, and what thou art.

Par. That remembrance Prompts me to worthy duty. O, great lady,

E

If some few days have tempted your free heart To cast away affection on a stranger; If that affection have so overswayed Your judgment, that it, in a manner, hath Declined your sovereignty of birth and spirit; How can ye turn your eyes off from that glass Wherein you may new-trim and settle right A memorable name?

Tha. The youth is idle.

Par. Days, months, and years are passed since Menaphon

Hath loved and served you truly; Menaphon, A man of no large distance in his blood From yours; in qualities desertful, graced With youth, experience, every happy gift That can by nature or by education Improve a gentleman: for him, great lady, Let me prevail, that you will yet at last Unlock the bounty which your love and care Have wisely treasured up, t'enrich his life.

Tha. Thou hast a moving eloquence, Parthenophil!—Parthenophil, in vain we strive to cross
The destiny that guides us. My great heart
Is stooped so much beneath that wonted pride
That first disguised it, that I now prefer
A miserable life with thee before
All other earthly comforts.

Par. Menaphon,
By me, repeats the self-same words to you:
You are too cruel, if you can distrust
His truth or my report.

Tha. Go where thou wilt, I'll be an exile with thee; I will learn To bear all change of fortunes.

Par. For my friend I plead with grounds of reason.

1 i.e. Talks idly.

For thy love, Tha. Hard-hearted youth, I here renounce all thoughts Of other hopes, of other entertainments,— Par. Stay, as you honour virtue. When the proffers Tha. Of other greatness,-Lady! Par. Tha. When entreats Of friends,-Par. I'll ease your grief. Respect of kindred,— Tha. Par. Pray, give me hearing. Loss of fame,-Tha. Par. I crave But some few minutes. Shall infringe my vows, Tha. Let heaven,— My love speaks t'ye: hear, then go on. Tha. Thy love! why, 'tis a charm to stop a vow In its most violent course. Cupid has broke Par. His arrows here; and, like a child unarmed, Comes to make sport between us with no weapon But feathers stolen from his mother's doves. Tha. This is mere trifling. Lady, take a secret. Par. I am as you are—in a lower rank, Else of the self-same sex—a maid, a virgin. And now, to use your own words, "if your thoughts Censure me not with mercy, you may soon Conceive I have laid by that modesty Which should preserve a virtuous name unstained."

Tha. Are you not mankind, then?

Par. When you shall read

The story of my sorrows, with the change Of my misfortunes, in a letter printed 1

^{1 &}quot;Printed" was used in the cense merely of "recorded."

From my unforged relation, I believe You will not think the shedding of one tear A prodigality that misbecomes Your pity and my fortune.

Tha. Pray, conceal

The errors of my passion.

Par. Would I had

Much more of honour—as for life, I value't not— To venture on your secrecy!

Tha. It will be

A hard task for my reason to relinquish The affection which was once devoted thine I shall awhile repute thee still the youth I loved so dearly.

Par. You shall find me ever Your ready faithful servant.

Tha. O, the powers

Who do direct our hearts laugh at our follies! We must not part yet.

Par. Let not my unworthiness

Alter your good opinion.

Tha. I shall henceforth

Be jealous of thy company with any:

My fears are strong and many.

Re-enter KALA.

Kal. Did your ladyship

Call me?

Tha. For what?

Kal. Your servant Menaphon

Desires admittance.

Enter MENAPHON.

Men. With your leave, great mistress, I come,—So private! is this well, Parthenophil?

Par. Sir, noble sir,—

Men. You are unkind and treacherous;

This 'tis to trust a straggler!

Tha.

Prithee, servant,—

Men. I dare not question you; you are my mistress, My prince's nearest kinswoman: but he—

Tha. Come, you are angry.

Men.

Henceforth I will bury

Unmanly passion in perpetual silence:
I'll court mine own distraction, dote on folly,
Creep to the mirth and madness of the age,
Rather than be so slaved again to woman,
Which in her best of constancy is steadiest
In change and scorn.

Tha.

How dare ye talk to me thus?

Men. Dare! Were you not own sister to my friend, Sister to my Amethus, I would hurl ye As far off from mine eyes as from my heart; For I would never more look on ye. Take Your jewel t'ye!—And, youth, keep under wing, Or—boy!—boy!—

Tha.

If commands be of no force,

Let me entreat thee, Menaphon.

Men.

'Tis naught.

Fie, fie, Parthenophil! have I deserved To be thus used?

Par.

I do protest—

Men.

You shall not:

Henceforth I will be free, and hate my bondage.

Enter AMETHUS.

Amet. Away, away to court! The prince is pleased To see a masque to-night; we must attend him: 'Tis near upon the time.—How thrives your suit? Men. The judge, your sister, will decide it shortly. Tha. Parthenophil, I will not trust you from me.

[Exeunt.

SCENE III.—A Room in the Palace.

Enter PALADOR, SOPHRONOS, ARETUS, and CORAX; Servants with torches.

Cor. Lights and attendance !—I will show your highness

A trifle of mine own brain. If you can, Imagine you were now in the university, You'll take it well enough; a scholar's fancy, A quab—'tis nothing else—a very quab.¹

Pal. We will observe it.

Soph. Yes, and grace it too, sir,

For Corax else is humorous and testy.

Are. By any means; men singular in art Have always some odd whimsey more than usual.

Pal. The name of this conceit?

Cor. Sir, it is called

The Masque of Melancholy.²

Are. We must look for

Nothing but sadness here, then.

Cor. Madness rather

In several changes. Melancholy is

The root as well of every apish frenzy,

Laughter, and mirth, as dulness. Pray, my lord,

Hold, and observe the plot [Gives Palador a paper]:

'tis there expressed

In kind, what shall be now expressed in action.

¹ An unfledged bird, a nestling: metaphorically, anything in an imperfect, unfinished state. In the first sense the word is still used in that part of Devonshire where Ford was born, and perhaps in many other places.—It is undoubtedly (among other things) a small fish of some kind; but I have given it a meaning more familiar to me, as I am persuaded it was to Ford.—Gifford.

Ford has here introduced one of those interludes in which the old stage so much delighted. The various characters of these "apish frenzies," as he calls them, he has taken from Burton's Anatomy of Melancholy, the book to which he refers in a former scene. He cannot be said to have improved what he has borrowed, which, on the contrary, reads better in Burton's pages than his own.

—Gifford.

Enter Amethus, Menaphon, Thamasta, and Par-THENOPHIL.

No interruption; take your places quickly; Nay, nay, leave ceremony.—Sound to the entrance! [Flourish.

Enter RHETIAS, his face whited, with black shag hair and long nails, and with a piece of raw meat.

Rhe. Bow, bow! wow, wow! the moon's eclipsed; I'll to the churchyard and sup. Since I turned wolf, I bark, and howl, and dig up graves: I will never have the sun shine again: 'tis midnight, deep dark midnight,-get a prey, and fall to—I have catched thee now—Arre!—

Cor. This kind is called Lycanthropia, sir; when men conceive themselves wolves.1

Pal. Here I find it.

[Looking at the paper.

Enter Pelias, with a crown of feathers and anticly rich.

Pel. I will hang 'em all, and burn my wife. Was I not an emperor? my hand was kissed, and ladies lay down before me; in triumph did I ride with my nobles about me till the mad dog bit me: I fell, and I fell, and I fell. shall be treason by statute for any man to name water, or wash his hands, throughout all my dominions. Break all the looking-glasses; I will not see my horns: my wife cuckolds me; she is a whore, a whore, a whore!

Pal. Hydrophobia² term you this?

Cor. And men possessed so shun all sight of water: Sometimes, if mixed with jealousy, it renders them Incurable, and oftentimes brings death.

1 "Lycanthropia, which Avicenna calls Cucubuth, others Lupinam insaniam or Wolf-madness, when men run howling about graves and fields in the night, and will not be perswaded but that they are Wolves, or some such beasts," &c.—Anat. of Mel.

2 Hydrophobia is a kind of madness, well known in every village, which comes by the biting of a mad dog, or scratching, saith Aurelianus; touching, or smelling alone sometimes, as Sckenkius proves ... so called, because the parties affected cannot endure the sight of water, or any liquer, supposing still they see a mad dog in it. And which is more wonderful, though they be very dry (as in this malady they are), they will rather dye than drink."—Anat. of Mel.

Enter a Philosopher in black rags, with a copper chain, an old gown half off, and a book.

Phi. Philosophers dwell in the moon. Speculation and theory girdle the world about like a wall. Ignorance, like an atheist, must be damned in the pit. I am very, very poor, and poverty is the physic for the soul: my opinions are pure and perfect. Envy is a monster, and I defy the beast.

Cor. Delirium this is called, which is mere dotage,¹ Sprung from ambition first and singularity, Self-love, and blind opinion of true merit.

Pal. I not dislike the course.

Enter GRILLA, in a rich gown, a great farthingale, a great ruff, a muff, a fan, and a coxcomb² on her head.

Gril. Yes forsooth, and no forsooth; is not this fine? I pray your blessing, gaffer. Here, here, here—did he give me a shough,³ and cut off's tail! Buss, buss, nuncle, and there's a pum for daddy.

Cor. You find this noted there phrenitis.4

Pal.

True

Cor. Pride is the ground on't; it reigns most in women.

1 "Dotage, Fatuity, or Folly, is a common name to all the following species, as some will have it. Laurentius and Altomarus comprehended Madness, Melancholy, and the rest under this name, and call it the summum genus of them all. If it be distinguished from them, it is natural or ingenite, which comes by some defect of the organs, and over-much brain, as we see in our common fools; and is for the most part intended or remitted in particular men, and thereupon some are wiser than other; or else it is acquisite, an appendix or symptome of some other disease, which comes or goes; or if it continue, a sign of Melancholy itself."—Anat. of Mel.

² A fool's cap. ³ A shock-dog, a water spaniel.

4 "Phrenitis, which the Greeks derive from the word $\phi\rho\eta\nu$, is a disease of the mind, with a continual madness or dotage, which hath an acute fever annexed, or else an inflammation of the brain, or the membranes or kells of it, with an acute feaver, which causeth madness and dotage. It differs from Melancholy and Madness, because their dotage is without an ague: this continual, with waking, or memory decayed, &c. Melancholy is most part silent, this clamorous; and many such like differences are assigned by physitians."—Anat. of Mel.

Enter Cuculus like a Bedlam, singing.

Cuc. They that will learn to drink a health in hell
Must learn on earth to take tobacco well,
To take tobacco well, to take tobacco well;
For in hell they drink nor wine nor ale nor beer,
But fire and smoke and stench, as we do here.

Rhe. I'll swoop thee up.

Pel. Thou'st straight to execution.

Gril. Fool, fool! catch me an thou canst.

Phi. Expel him the house; 'tis a dunce.

Cuc. [Sings]

Hark! did ye not hear a rumbling?
The goblins are now a tumbling:
I'll tear 'em, I'll sear 'em,
I'll roar 'em, I'll gore 'em!
Now, now, now! my brains are a jumbling,—

Bounce! the gun's off.

Pal. You name this here hypochondriacal?¹
Cor. Which is a windy flatuous humour, stuffing The head, and thence derived to the animal parts. To be too over-curious, loss of goods. Or friends, excess of fear, or sorrows cause it.

Enter a Sea-Nymph big-bellied, singing and dancing.

Nymph. Good your honours, Pray your worships, Dear your beauties,—

Cuc. Hang thee!
To lash your sides,
To tame your hides,
To scourge your prides;
And bang thee.

Nymph. We're pretty and dainty, and I will begin:
See, how they do jeer me, deride me, and grin!

1 "The third [species of melancholy] ariseth from the bowels, liver, spleen, or membrane called mesenterium, named Hypochondriacal or windy Melancholy," &c.—Anat. of Mel.

Come sport me, come court me, your topsail advance,

And let us conclude our delights in a dance!

All. A dance, a dance!

Cor. This is the Wanton Melancholy. Women With child, possessed with this strange fury, often Have danced three days together without ceasing. Pal. 'Tis very strange: but Heaven is full of miracles.

[A Dance, after which the Masquers run out in couples.

We are thy debtor, Corax, for the gift
Of this invention; but the plot deceives us:
What means this empty space? [Pointing to the paper.
Cor. One kind of Melancholy

Is only left untouched: 'twas not in art

To personate the shadow of that fancy;
'Tis named Love-Melancholy. As, for instance,

Admit this stranger here,—young man, stand forth—

[To Parthenophil.]

Entangled by the beauty of this lady,
The great Thamasta, cherished in his heart
The weight of hopes and fears; it were impossible
To limn his passions in such lively colours
As his own proper sufferance could express.

Par. You are not modest, sir.

Tha. Am I your mirth?

Cor. Love is the tyrant of the heart; it darkens Reason, confounds discretion; deaf to counsel, It runs a headlong course to desperate madness.

^{1 &}quot;Chorus Sancti Viti, or S. Vitus' dance; the lascivious dance Paracelsus calls it, because they that are taken with it can do nothing but dance till they be dead or cured. It is so called, for that the parties so troubled were wont to go to S. Vitus for help, and after they had danced there a while, they were certainly freed. 'Tis strange to hear how long they will dance, and in what manner, over stools, forms, tables; even great-bellied women sometimes (and yet never hurt their children) will dance so long that they can stir neither hand nor foot, but seem to be quite dead."—Anat. of Mel.

O, were your highness but touched home and throughly With this—what shall I call it—devil—

Pal. Hold!

Let no man henceforth name the word again.—

Wait you my pleasure, youth.—'Tis late; to rest! [Exit.

Cor. My lords,-

Soph. Enough; thou art a perfect arts-man.

Cor. Panthers may hide their heads, not change the skin;

And love pent ne'er so close, yet will be seen. [Exeunt.

ACT THE FOURTH.

SCENE I .- A Room in THAMASTA'S House.

Enter AMETHUS and MENAPHON.

MET. Dote on a stranger?

Men. Court him; plead, and sue to him.

Amet. Affectionately?

Men. Servilely; and pardon me If I say basely.

Amet. Women, in their passions, Like false fires, flash, to fright our trembling senses,

Yet in themselves contain nor light nor heat.

My sister do this! she, whose pride did scorn

All thoughts that were not busied on a crown, To fall so far beneath her fortunes now!—

You are my friend.

Men. What I confirm is truth.

Amet. Truth, Menaphon?

Men. If I conceived you were

Jealous of my sincerity and plainness,

Then, sir,-

Amet. Who

What then, sir?

Men. I would then resolve You were as changeable in vows of friendship

As is Thamasta in her choice of love:

That sin is double supplied in a blood

That sin is double, running in a blood, Which justifies another being worse.

Amet. My Menaphon, excuse me; I grow wild,

And would not willingly believe the truth
Of my dishonour: she shall know how much
I am a debtor to thy noble goodness
By checking the contempt her poor desires
Have sunk her fame in. Prithee tell me, friend,
How did the youth receive her?

Men. With a coldness

As modest and as hopeless as the trust I did repose in him could wish or merit.

Amet. I will esteem him dearly.

Enter THAMASTA and KALA.

Men. Sir, your sister.

Tha. Servant, I have employment for ye.

Amet. Hark ye!

The mask of your ambition is fall'n off;

Your pride hath stooped to such an abject lowness,

That you have now discovered to report

Your nakedness in virtue, honours, shame,—

Tha. You are turned satire.1

Amet. All the flatteries

Of greatness have exposed ye to contempt.

Tha. This is mere railing.

Amet.

You have sold your birth

For lust.

Tha. Lust!

Amet. Yes; and at a dear expense

Purchased the only glories of a wanton.

Tha. A wanton!

Amet, Let repentance stop your mouth;

Learn to redeem your fault.

Kal. [Aside to MENAPHON.] I hope your tongue

Has not betrayed my honesty.

Men. [Aside to KALA.] Fear nothing.

Tha. If, Menaphon, I hitherto have strove

To keep a wary guard about my fame;

¹ Satirist.

If I have used a woman's skill to sift The constancy of your protested love; You cannot, in the justice of your judgment, Impute that to a coyness or neglect, Which my discretion and your service aimed For noble purposes.

Great mistress, no. Men. I rather quarrel with mine own ambition, That durst to soar so high as to feed hope Of any least desert that might entitle My duty to a pension from your favours.

Amet. And therefore, lady,—pray, observe him well,— He henceforth covets plain equality; Endeavouring to rank his fortunes low, With some fit partner, whom, without presumption, Without offence or danger, he may cherish, Yes, and command too, as a wife,—a wife, A wife, my most great lady!

Kal. [Aside]

All will out.

Tha. Now I perceive the league of amity, `Which you have long between ye vowed and kept, Is sacred and inviolable; secrets Of every nature are in common to you. I have trespassed, and I have been faulty; Let not too rude a censure deem me guilty, Or judge my error wilful without pardon.

Men. Gracious and virtuous mistress!

Amet.

'Tis a trick; There is no trust in female cunning, friend. Let her first purge her follies past, and clear The wrong done to her honour, by some sure Apparent testimony of her constancy; Or we will not believe these childish plots: As you respect my friendship, lend no ear To a reply.—Think on't!

Men.

Pray, love your fame

Exeunt MENAPHON and AMETHUS,

Tha. Gone! I am sure awaked. Kala, I find You have not been so trusty as the duty You owed required.

Kal. Not I? I do protest

I have been, madam.

Tha. Be—no matter what, I'm paid in my own coin; something I must, And speedily.—So!—Seek out Cuculus; Bid him attend me instantly.

Kal. That antic!

The trim old youth shall wait ye.

Tha. Wounds may be mortal, which are wounds indeed;

But no wound's deadly till our honours bleed. [Exeunt.

SCENE II.—A Room in the Castle.

Enter RHETIAS and CORAX.

Rhe. Thou'rt an excellent fellow. Diabolo! O these lousy close-stool empirics, that will undertake all cures, yet know not the causes of any disease! Dog-leeches! By the four elements, I honour thee; could find in my heart to turn knave, and be thy flatterer.

Cor. Sirrah, 'tis pity thou'st not been a scholar; Thou'rt honest, blunt, and rude enough, o' conscience. But for thy lord now, I have put him to't.

Rhe. He chases hugely, sumes like a stew-pot: is he not monstrously overgone in frenzy?

Cor. Rhetias, 'tis not a madness, but his sorrows—Close-griping grief and anguish of the soul—That torture him; he carries hell on earth Within his bosom: 'twas a prince's tyranny Caused his distraction; and a prince's sweetness Must qualify that tempest of his mind.

1 Dog-doctors,

Rhe. Corax, to praise thy art were to assure
The misbelieving world that the sun shines
When 'tis i' the full meridian of his beauty:
No cloud of black detraction can eclipse
The light of thy rare knowledge. Henceforth, casting
All poor disguises off, that play in rudeness,
Call me your servant; only for the present,
I wish a happy blessing to your labours.
Heaven crown your undertakings! and believe me,
Ere many hours can pass, at our next meeting,
The bonds my duty owes shall be full cancelled.

Cor. Farewell. [Exit RHETIAS.

A shrewd-brained whoreson; there is pith In his untoward plainness.

Enter TROLLIO, with a morion 1 on.

Now, the news?

Trol. Worshipful Master Doctor, I have a great deal of I cannot tell what to say t'ye. My lord thunders; every word that comes out of his mouth roars like a cannon; the house shook once:—my young lady dares not be seen.

Cor. We will roar with him, Trollio, if he roar.

Trol. He has got a great poleaxe in his hand, and fences it up and down the house, as if he were to make room for the pageants. I have provided me a morion for fear of a clap on the coxcomb.

Cor. No matter for the morion; here's my cap: Thus I will pull it down, and thus outstare him.

[He produces a frightful mask and headpiece.

Trol. [Aside] The physician is got as mad as my lord.

—O brave! a man of worship.

Cor. Let him come, Trollio. I will firk his trangdido, and bounce and bounce in metal, honest Trollio.

Trol. [Aside] He vapours like a tinker, and struts like a juggler.

1 A helmet.

Mel. [Within] So ho, so ho!

Trol. There, there! look to your right worshipful, look to yourself.

Enter MELEANDER with a poleaxc.

Mel. Show me the dog whose triple-throated noise Hath roused a lion from his uncouth den To tear the cur in pieces.

Cor. [Putting on his mask, and turning to MELEANDER. Stay thy paws,

Courageous beast; else, lo, the Gorgon's skull, That shall transform thee to that restless stone Which Sisyphus rolls up against the hill, Whence, tumbling down again, it with his weight Shall crush thy bones and puff thee into air.

Mel. Hold, hold thy conquering breath; 'tis stronger far

Than gunpowder and garlic. If the fates
Have spun my thread, and my spent clue of life
Be now untwisted, let us part like friends.—
Lay up my weapon, Trollio, and be gone.

Trol. Yes, sir, with all my heart.

Mel.

This friend and I

Will walk, and gabble wisely.

[Exit Trollio with the poleaxe.

Cor.

I allow

The motion; on!

[Takes off his mask.

Mel. So politicians thrive,

That, with their crabbèd faces and sly tricks, Legerdemain, ducks, cringes, formal beards, Crisped hairs, and punctual cheats, do wriggle in Their heads first, like a fox, to rooms of state, Then the whole body follows.

Cor.

Then they fill

Lordships; steal women's hearts; with them and theirs The world runs round; yet these are square¹ men still.

¹ Honest.

Ford.

Mel. There are none poor but such as engross offices.

Cor. None wise but unthrifts, bankrupts, beggars, rascals.

Mel. The hangman is a rare physician.

Cor. [Aside] That's not so good.—It shall be granted.

Mel. All

The buzz of drugs and minerals and simples, Bloodlettings, vomits, purges, or what else Is conjured up by men of art, to gull Liege-people, and rear golden piles, are trash To a strong well-wrought halter; there the gout, The stone, yes, and the melancholy devil, Are cured in less time than a pair of minutes: Build me a gallows in this very plot, And I'll dispatch your business.

Cor. Fix the knot

Mel. Sirrah, make ready.

Cor. Yet do not be too sudden; grant me leave To give a farewell to a creature long Absented from me: 'tis a daughter, sir, Snatched from me in her youth, a handsome girl; She comes to ask a blessing.

Mel. Pray, where is she?

I cannot see her yet.

Cor. She makes more haste In her quick prayers than her trembling steps, Which many griefs have weakened.

Mel. Cruel man!

How canst thou rip a heart that's cleft already With injuries of time?—Whilst I am frantic, Whilst throngs of rude divisions huddle on, And do disrank my brains from peace and sleep, So long—I am insensible of cares. As balls of wildfire may be safely touched, Not violently sundered and thrown up;

So my distempered thoughts rest in their rage,
Not hurried in the air of repetition,
Or memory of my misfortunes past:
Then are my griefs struck home, when they're reclaimed
To their own pity of themselves.—Proceed;
What of your daughter now?

Cor. I cannot tell ye,
'Tis now out of my head again; my brains
Are crazy; I have scarce slept one sound sleep
These twelve months.

Mel. 'Las, poor man! canst thou imagine
To prosper in the task thou tak'st in hand
By practising a cure upon my weakness,
And yet be no physician for thyself?
Go, go, turn over all thy books once more,
And learn to thrive in modesty; for impudence
Does least become a scholar. Thou'rt a fool,
A kind of learned fool.

Cor. I do confess it.

Mel. If thou canst wake with me, forget to eat,
Renounce the thought of greatness, tread on fate,
Sigh out a lamentable tale of things
Done long ago, and ill done; and, when sighs
Are wearied, piece up what remains behind
With weeping eyes, and hearts that bleed to death;
Thou shalt be a companion fit for me,
And we will sit together, like true friends,
And never be divided. With what greediness
Do I hug my afflictions! there's no mirth
Which is not truly seasoned with some madness:
As, for example,—

[Exit hastily.

Cor. What new crotchet next? There is so much sense in this wild distraction, That I am almost out of my wits too, To see and hear him: some few hours more Spent here would turn me apish, if not frantic.

Re-enter MELEANDER with CLEOPHILA.

Mel. In all the volumes thou hast turned, thou man Of knowledge, hast thou met with any rarity, Worthy thy contemplation, like to this? The model of the heavens, the earth, the waters, The harmony and sweet consent of times, Are not of such an excellence, in form Of their creation, as the infinite wonder That dwells within the compass of this face: And yet I tell thee, scholar, under this Well-ordered sign is lodged such an obedience As will hereafter, in another age, Strike all comparison into a silence. She had a sister too;—but as for her, If I were given to talk, I could describe A pretty piece of goodness—let that pass— We must be wise sometimes. What would you with her? Cor. I with her! nothing, by your leave, sir, I; It is not my profession.

Mel. You are saucy,
And, as I take it, scurvy in your sauciness,
To use no more respect.—Good soul, be patient;
We are a pair of things the world doth laugh at:
Yet be content, Cleophila; those clouds,
Which bar the sun from shining on our miseries,
Will never be chased off till I am dead;
And then some charitable soul will take thee
Into protection: I am hasting on;
The time cannot be long.

Cleo. I do beseech ye, Sir, as you love your health, as you respect My safety, let not passion overrule you.

Mei. It shall not; I am friends with all the world. Get me some wine; to witness that I will be An absolute good fellow, I will drink with thee.

¹ Şorrow.

Cor. [Aside to CLEO.] Have you prepared his cup?

Cleo. [Aside to COR.] It is in readiness.

Enter Cuculus and Grilla.

Cuc. By your leave, gallants, I come to speak with a young lady, as they say, the old Trojan's daughter of the house.

Mel. Your business with my lady-daughter, toss-pot?

Gril. Toss-pot! O base! toss-pot!

Cuc. Peace! dost not see in what case he is?—I would do my own commendations to her; that's all.

Mel. Do.—Come, my Genius, we will quaff in wine Till we grow wise.

Cor.

True nectar is divine.

[Exeunt Meleander and Corax.

Cuc. So! I am glad he is gone,—Page, walk aside.—Sweet beauty, I am sent ambassador from the mistress of my thoughts to you, the mistress of my desires.

Cleo. So, sir! I pray, be brief.

Cuc. That you may know I am not, as they say, an animal, which is, as they say, a kind of cokes, which is, as the learned term it, an ass, a puppy, a widgeon, a dolt, a noddy, a—

Cleo. As you please.

Cuc. Pardon me for that, it shall be as you please indeed: forsooth, I love to be courtly and in fashion.

Cleo. Well, to your embassy. What, and from whom?

Cuc. Marry, "What" is more than I know; for to know what's what is to know what's what and for what's what:—but these are foolish figures and to little purpose.

Cleo. From whom, then, are you sent?

Cuc. There you come to me again. O, to be in the favour of great ladies is as much to say as to be great in ladies' favours.

Cleo. Good time o' day t'ye! I can stay no longer.

Cuc. By this light, but you must; for now I come to't.

1 i.e. A simpleton.

The most excellent, most wise, most dainty, precious, loving, kind, sweet, intolerably fair lady Thamasta commends to your little hands this letter of importance. By your leave, let me first kiss, and then deliver it in fashion to your own proper beauty.

[Delivers a letter.]

Cleo. To me, from her? 'tis strange! I dare peruse it. [Reads.

Cuc. Good.—O, that I had not resolved to live a single life! Here's temptation, able to conjure up a spirit with a witness. So, so! she has read it. [Aside.

Cleo. Is't possible? Heaven, thou art great and bountiful.—

Sir, I much thank your pains; and to the princess Let my love, duty, service, be remembered.

Cuc. They shall mad-dam.

Cleo. When we of hopes or helps are quite bereaven, Our humble prayers have entrance into Heaven.

Cuc. That's my opinion clearly and without doubt.

[Exeunt.

SCENE III.—A Room in the Palace.

Enter ARETUS and SOPHRONOS.

Are. The prince is throughly moved.

Soph. I

So much distempered.

Are.

I never saw him

Or whither can he be conveyed?

Sook. 'Tis to me

Soph. mystery · Lunderstand it not

A mystery; I understand it not. Are.

Nor I.

What should this young man be?

Enter Palador, Amethus, and Pelias.

Pal. Ye have consented all to work upon The softness of my nature; but take heed: Though I can sleep in silence, and look on

The mockery ye make of my dull patience, Yet ye shall know, the best of ye, that in me There is a masculine, a stirring spirit, Which, once provoked, shall, like a bearded comet, Set ye at gaze, and threaten horror.

Pel. Good sir,—

Pal. Good sir! 'tis not your active wit or language, Nor your grave politic wisdoms, lords, shall dare To check-mate and control my just commands.

Enter MENAPHON.

Where is the youth, your friend? is he found yet? Men. Not to be heard of.

Pal. Fly, then, to the desert, Where thou didst first encounter this fantastic, This airy apparition; come no more In sight! Get ye all from me: he that stays Is not my friend.

Amet.

'Tis strange.

Are. Soph.

We must obey.

[Exeunt all but PALADOR.

Pal. Some angry power cheats with rare delusions My credulous sense; the very soul of reason Is troubled in me;—the physician Presented a strange masque, the view of it Puzzled my understanding; but the boy—

Enter RHETIAS.

Rhetias, thou art acquainted with my griefs: Parthenophil is lost, and I would see him; For he is like to something I remember A great while since, a long, long time ago.

Rhe. I have been diligent, sir, to pry into every corner for discovery, but cannot meet with him. There is some trick, I am confident.

Pal. There is; there is some practice, sleight, or plot. Rhe. I have apprehended a fair wench in an odd private lodging in the city, as like the youth in face as can by possibility be discerned.

Pal. How, Rhetias!

Rhe. If it be not Parthenophil in long-coats, 'tis a spirit in his likeness; answer I can get none from her: you shall see her.

Pal. The young man in disguise, upon my life, To steal out of the land.

Rhe.

I'll send him t'ye.

Pal. Do, do, my Rhetias.

[Exit RHETIAS.

As there is by nature

In everything created contrariety,
So likewise is there unity and league
Between them in their kind: but man, the abstract
Of all perfection, which the workmanship
Of Heaven hath modelled, in himself contains Passions of several qualities.

[Enter behind EROCLEA (PARTHENOPHIL), in female attire.

The music

Of man's fair composition best accords
When 'tis in consort, not in single strains:
My heart has been untuned these many months,
Wanting her presence, in whose equal love
True harmony consisted. Living here,
We are Heaven's bounty all, but Fortune's exercise.

Ero. Minutes are numbered by the fall of sands, As by an hourglass; the span of time Doth waste us to our graves, and we look on it: An age of pleasures, revelled out, comes home At last, and ends in sorrow; but the life, Weary of riot, numbers every sand, Wailing in sighs, until the last drop down; So to conclude calamity in rest.

Pal. What echo yields a voice to my complaints? Can I be nowhere private?

Ero. [Comes forward, and kneels] Let the substance

As suddenly be hurried from your eyes
As the vain sound can pass, sir, from your ear,
If no impression of a troth vowed yours
Retain a constant memory.

Pal. Stand up. [She rises.

'Tis not the figure stamped upon thy cheeks, The cozenage of thy beauty, grace or tongue, Can draw from me a secret, that hath been The only jewel of my speechless thoughts.

Ero. I am so worn away with fears and sorrows, So wintered with the tempests of affliction, That the bright sun of your life-quickening presence Hath scarce one beam of force to warm again That spring of cheerful comfort, which youth once Apparelled in fresh looks.

Pal. Cunning impostor!

Untruth hath made thee subtle in thy trade.

If any neighbouring greatness hath seduced
A free-born resolution to attempt

Some bolder act of treachery by cutting
My weary days off, wherefore, cruel-mercy,

Hast thou assumed a shape that would make treason
A piety, guilt pardonable, bloodshed
As holy as the sacrifice of peace?

Ero. The incense of my love-desires are flamed Upon an altar of more constant proof.

Sir, O, sir, turn me back into the world,

Command me to forget my name, my birth,

My father's sadness, and my death alive,

If all remembrance of my faith hath found

A burial without pity in your scorn!

Pal. My scorn, disdainful boy, shall soon unweave
The web thy art hath twisted. Cast thy shape off,
Disrobe the mantle of a feigned sex,
And so I may be gentle: as thou art,
There's witchcraft in thy language, in thy face,
In thy demeanours; turn, turn from me, prithee,

For my belief is armed else.—Yet, fair subtility, Before we part,—for part we must,—be true: Tell me, thy country.

Ero.

Cyprus.

Pal,

Ha!—Thy father?

Ero. Meleander.

Pal.

Hast a name?

Ero.

A name of misery;

The unfortunate Eroclea.

Pal.

There is danger

In this seducing counterfeit. Great goodness,

Hath honesty and virtue left the time?

Are we become so impious, that to tread

The path of impudence is law and justice?—

Thou vizard of a beauty ever sacred,

Give me thy name.

Ero.

Whilst I was lost to memory

Parthenophil did shroud my shame in change

Of sundry rare misfortunes; but, since now

I am, before I die, returned to claim

A convoy to my grave, I must not blush

To let Prince Palador, if I offend,

Know, when he dooms me, that he dooms Eroclea:

I am that woful maid.

Pal.

Join not too fast

Thy penance with the story of my sufferings:—

So dwelt simplicity with virgin truth,

So martyrdom and holiness are twins,

As innocence and sweetness on thy tongue.

But, let me by degrees collect my senses;

I may abuse my trust. Tell me, what air

Hast thou perfumed, since tyranny first ravished

The contract of our hearts?

Ero.

Dear sir, in Athens

Have I been buried.

 $p_{\alpha l}$

Buried! Right; as I

In Cyrus.—Come to trial; if thou beest

Eroclea, in my bosom I can find thee.

Ero. As I, Prince Palador in mine: this gift

[Shows him a tablet.]

His bounty blessed me with, the only physic My solitary cares have hourly took, To keep me from despair.

Pal. We are but fools

To trifle in disputes, or vainly struggle
With that eternal mercy which protects us.
Come home, home to my heart, thou banished peace!
My ecstasy of joys would speak in passion,
But that I would not lose that part of man
Which is reserved to entertain content.
Eroclea, I am thine; O, let me seize thee
As my inheritance! Hymen shall now
Set all his torches burning, to give light
Throughout this land, new-settled in thy welcome.

Ero. You are still gracious, sir. How I have lived, By what means been conveyed, by what preserved, By what returned, Rhetias, my trusty servant, Directed by the wisdom of my uncle; The good Sophronos, can inform at large.

Pal. Enough. Instead of music, every night, To make our sleeps delightful, thou shalt close Our weary eyes with some part of thy story.

Ero. O, but my father!

Pal. Fear not; to behold Eroclea safe will make him young again:
It shall be our first task.—Blush, sensual follies, Which are not guarded with thoughts chastely pure: There is no faith in lust, but baits of arts; 'Tis virtuous love keeps clear contracted hearts.

[Exeunt.

1 i.e. A miniature of the prince.

ACT THE FIFTH.

SCENE I.- A Room in the Castle.

Enter CORAX and CLEOPHILA.

OR. 'Tis well, 'tis well; the hour is at hand,
Which must conclude the business, that no art

Could all this while make ripe for wished content.

'Tis well said.

O, lady, in the turmoils of our lives,
Men are like politic states, or troubled seas,
Tossed up and down with several storms and tempests,
Change and variety of wrecks and fortunes;
Till, labouring to the havens of our homes,
We struggle for the calm that crowns our ends.

Cleo. A happy end Heaven bless us with !

Cor.
The old man sleeps still soundly.

Cleo. May soft dreams

Play in his fancy, that when he awakes, With comfort he may, by degrees, digest The present blessings in a moderate joy!

Cor. I drenched his cup to purpose; he ne'er stirred At barber or at tailor. He will laugh At his own metamorphosis, and wonder.—
We must be watchful. Does the couch stand ready?

Clev. All, all as you commanded.

Enter TROLLIO.

What's your haste for?

Trol. A brace of big women, ushered by the young old ape with his she-clog at his bum, are entered the castle. Shall they come on?

Cor. By any means: the time is precious now.—Lady, be quick and careful.—Follow, Trollio.

[Exit.

Trol. I owe all sir-reverence to your right worshipfulness.

[Exit.

Cleo. So many fears, so many joys encounter My doubtful expectations, that I waver Between the resolution of my hopes And my obedience: 'tis not—O my fate!—
The apprehension of a timely blessing In pleasures shakes my weakness; but the danger Of a mistaken duty that confines
The limits of my reason. Let me live, Virtue, to thee as chaste as truth to time!

Enter THAMASTA, speaking to some one without.

Tha. Attend me till I call.—My sweet Cleophila! Cleo. Great princess,—

Tha. I bring peace, to sue a pardon For my neglect of all those noble virtues
Thy mind and duty are apparelled with:
I have deserved ill from thee, and must say

Thou art too gentle, if thou canst forget it.

Cleo. Alas, you have not wronged me; for, indeed, Acquaintance with my sorrows and my fortune Were grown to such familiarity,
That 'twas an impudence, more than presumption,
To wish so great a lady as you are
Should lose affection on my uncle's son:
But that your brother, equal in your blood,
Should stoop to such a lowness as to love
A castaway, a poor despised maid,
Only for me to hope was almost sin;
Yet, 'troth, I never tempted him.

Tha. Chide not The grossness of my trespass, lovely sweetness,

In such an humble language; I have smarted Already in the wounds my pride hath made Upon your sufferings: henceforth 'tis in you To work my happiness.

Cleo. Call any service Of mine a debt; for such it is. The letter You lately sent me, in the blest contents It made me privy to, hath largely quitted Every suspicion of your grace or goodness.

Tha. Let me embrace you with a sister's love, A sister's love, Cleophila; for should My brother henceforth study to forget The vows that he hath made thee, I would ever Solicit 1 thy deserts.

Amet. Men. [Within] We must have entrance Tha. Must! Who are they say must? you are unmannerly.

Enter AMETHUS and MENAPHON.

Brother, is't you? and you too, sir?

Amet.

Your ladyship

Has had a time of scolding to your humour:

Does the storm hold still?

Cleo. Never fell a shower

More seasonably gentle on the barren Parched thirsty earth than showers of courtesy Have from this princess been distilled on me, To make my growth in quiet of my mind Secure and lasting.

Tha. You may both believe That I was not uncivil.

Amet. Pish! I know

Her spirit and her envy.

Cleo. Now, in troth, sir,—

Pray credit me, I do not use to swear,—
The virtuous princess hath in words and carriage

¹ Plead.

Been kind, so over-kind, that I do blush I am not rich enough in thanks sufficient For her unequalled bounty.—My good cousin, I have a suit to you.

Men. It shall be granted.

Cleo. That no time, no persuasion, no respects
Of jealousies, past, present, or hereafter
By possibility to be conceived,
Draw you from that sincerity and pureness
Of love which you have oftentimes protested
To this great worthy lady: she deserves
A duty more than what the ties of marriage
Can claim or warrant; be for ever hers,
As she is yours, and Heaven increase your comforts!

Amet. Cleophila hath played the churchman's part;
I'll not forbid the banns.

Men. Are you consented?

Tha. I have one task in charge first, which concerns me.

Brother, be not more cruel than this lady;
She hath forgiven my follies, so may you.
Her youth, her beauty, innocence, discretion,
Without additions of estate or birth,
Are dower for a prince, indeed. You loved her;
For sure you swore you did: else, if you did not,
Here fix your heart; and thus resolve, if now
You miss this heaven on earth, you cannot find
In any other choice aught but a hell.

Amet. The ladies are turned lawyers, and plead hand-somely

Their clients' cases: I'm an easy judge;
And so shalt thou be, Menaphon. I give thee
My sister for a wife; a good one, friend.

Men. Lady, will you confirm the gift?

Tha. The errors

Of my mistaken judgment being lost

1 i.e. Be certain.

To your remembrance, I shall ever strive In my obedience to deserve your pity.

Men. My love, my care, my all!

Amet. What rests for me?

I'm still a bachelor.—Sweet maid, resolve me,

May I yet call you mine?

Cleo. My lord Amethus,
Blame not my plainness; I am young and simple,
And have not any power to dispose

Mine own will without warrant from my father; That purchased, I am yours.

Amet.

It shall suffice me.

Enter Cuculus, Pelias, and Trollio, plucking in Grilla.

Cuc. Revenge! I must have revenge; I will have revenge, bitter and abominable revenge; I will have revenge. This unfashionable mongrel, this linseywolsey of mortality—by this hand, mistress, this she-rogue is drunk, and clapper-clawed me, without any reverence to my person or good garments.—Why d'ye not speak, gentlemen?

Pel. Some certain blows have passed, an't like your highness.

Trol. Some few knocks of friendship, some love-toys, some cuffs in kindness, or so.

Gril. I'll turn him away; he shall be my master no longer.

Men. Is this your she-page, Cuculus? 'tis a boy, sure.

Cuc. A boy, an errant boy in long-coats.

Trol. He has mumbled his nose, that 'tis as big as a great codpiece.

Cuc. O, thou cock-vermin of iniquity!

The second secon

Tha. Pelias, take hence the wag, and school him for't.—

For your part, servant, I'll entreat the prince To grant you some fit place about his wardrobe.

Cuc. Ever after a bloody nose do I dream of good luck.—I horribly thank your ladyship.—
Whilst I'm in office, the old garb shall agen
Grow in request, and tailors shall be men.—
Come, Trollio, help to wash my face, prithee.

Trol. Yes, and to scour it too.

[Exeunt Cuculus, Trollio, Pelias, and Grilla.

Re-enter CORAX with RHETIAS.

Rhe. The prince and princess are at hand; give over Your amorous dialogues.—Most honoured lady, Henceforth forbear your sadness: are you ready To practise your instructions?

Cleo. I have studied My part with care, and will perform it, Rhetias, With all the skill I can.

Cor.

I'll pass my word for her.

A flourish.—Enter Palador, Sophronos, Aretus, and Eroclea.

Pal. Thus princes should be circled, with a guard Of truly noble friends and watchful subjects.

O, Rhetias, thou art just; the youth thou told'st me That lived at Athens is returned at last

To her own fortunes and contracted love.

Rhe. My knowledge made me sure of my report, sir.

Pal. Eroclea, clear thy fears; when the sun shines Clouds must not dare to muster in the sky, Nor shall they here.—

[CLEOPHILA and AMETHUS kneel. Why do they kneel?—Stand up;

The day and place is privileged.

Soph.

Your presence,

Great sir, makes every room a sanctuary.

Pal. Wherefore does this young virgin use such circumstance

In duty to us?—Rise.

G

Ero. 'Tis I must raise her.—[Raises CLEOPHILA. Forgive me, sister, I have been too private, In hiding from your knowledge any secret That should have been in common 'twixt our souls; But I was ruled by counsel.

Cleo.

That I show

Myself a girl, sister, and bewray
Joy in too soft a passion 'fore all these,
I hope you cannot blame me.

[Weeps, and falls into the arms of EROCLEA.

Pal.

We must part

The sudden meeting of these two fair rivulets
With the island of our arms. [Embraces Eroclea]—CleThe custom of thy piety hath built, [ophila,
Even to thy younger years, a monument
Of memorable fame: some great reward
Must wait on thy desert.

Soph. The prince speaks t'ye, niece. Cor. Chat low, I pray; let us about our business.

The good old man awakes.—My lord, withdraw.— Rhetias, let's settle here the couch

Pal.

Away, then!

[Exeunt.

Soft music.—Re-enter CORAX and RHETIAS with MELE-ANDER asleep on a couch, his hair and beard trimmed, habit and gown changed. While they are placing the couch, a Boy sings without.

Song.

Fly hence, shadows, that do keep
Watchful sorrows charmed in sleep!
Though the eyes be overtaken,
Yet the heart doth ever waken
Thoughts, chained up in busy snares
Of continual woes and cares:
Love and griefs are so exprest
As they rather sigh than rest.
Fly hence, shadows, that do keep
Watchful sorrows charmed in sleep!

Mel. [Awakes] Where am I? ha! What sounds are these? 'Tis day, sure.

O, I have slept belike; 'tis but the foolery

Of some beguiling dream. So, so! I will not

Trouble the play of my delighted fancy,

But dream my dream out.

Cor.

Morrow to your lordship!

You took a jolly nap, and slept it soundly.

Mcl. Away, beast! let me alone.

The music ceases.

· Cor.

O, by your leave, sir,

I must be bold to raise ye; else your physic

Will turn to further sickness.

[He assists Meleander to sit up.

Mel.

Physic, bear-leech?1

Cor. Yes, physic; you are mad.

Mel. Trollio! Cleophila!

Rhe.

Sir, I am here.

Mel. I know thee, Rhetias; prithee rid the room

Of this tormenting noise. He tells me, sirrah,

I have took physic, Rhetias; physic, physic!

Rhe. Sir, true, you have; and this most learned scholar

Applied 't ye. O, you were in dangerous plight Before he took ye in hand.

Mel.

These things are drunk,

Directly drunk —Where did you get your liquor?

* Cor. I never saw a body in the wane

Of age so overspread with several sorts

Of such diseases as the strength of youth

Would groan under and sink.

Rhe.

The more your glory

In the miraculous cure.

Cor.

Bring me the cordial-

Prepared for him to take after his sleep;

'Twill do him good at heart.

Rhe.

I hope it will, sir. [Exit.

1 i.e. Bear-cloctor.

Mel. What dost thou think I am, that thou shouldst fiddle

So much upon my patience? Fool, the weight
Of my disease sits on my heart so heavy,
That all the hands of art cannot remove
One grain, to ease my grief. If thou couldst poison
My memory, or wrap my senses up
Into a dulness hard and cold as flints;
If thou couldst make me walk, speak, eat, and laugh
Without a sense or knowledge of my faculties,
Why, then, perhaps, at marts thou mightst make benefit

Of such an antic motion, and get credit From credulous gazers, but not profit me. Study to gull the wise; I am too simple To be wrought on.

Cor. I'll burn my books, old man, But I will do thee good, and quickly too.

Re-enter Aretus with a patent.

Are. Most honoured Lord Meleander, our great master, Prince Palador of Cyprus, hath by me Sent you this patent, in which is contained Not only confirmation of the honours You formerly enjoyed, but the addition Of the marshalship of Cyprus; and ere long He means to visit you. Excuse my haste; I must attend the prince.

[Exit.

Cor. There's one pill works.

Mel. Dost know that spirit? 'tis a grave familiar, And talked I know not what.

Cor. He's like, methinks,

The prince's tutor, Aretus.

Mel. Yes, yes;

It may be I have seen such a formality; No matter where or when.

Re-enter Amethus, with a staff.

Ame. The prince hath sent ye,

My lord, this staff of office, and withal

Salutes you Grand Commander of the Ports

Throughout his principalities. He shortly

Will visit you himself: I must attend him.

Exit.

Cor. D'ye feel your physic stirring yet?

Mel.

A devil

Is a rare juggler, and can cheat the eye, But not corrupt the reason, in the throne Of a pure soul.

Re-enter SOPHRONOS, with a tablet.

Another!—I will stand thee;

Be what thou canst, I care not.

Soph. From the prince,

Dear brother, I present you this rich relic,

A jewel he hath long worn in his bosom:

Henceforth, he bade me say, he does beseech you

To call him son, for he will call you father;

It is an honour, brother, that a subject

Cannot but entertain with thankful prayers.

Be moderate in your joys: he will in person

Confirm my errand, but commands my service. [Exit.

Cor. What hope now of your cure?

Mel. Stay, stay!—What earthquakes

Roll in my flesh! Here's prince, and prince; and prince;

Prince upon prince! The dotage of my sorrows

Revels in magic of ambitious scorn:

Be they enchantments deadly as the grave,

I'll look upon 'em. Patent, staff, and relic!

To the last first. [Taking up the miniature] Round me,

ye guarding ministers,

And ever keep me waking, till the cliffs

That overhang my sight fall off, and leave

These hollow spaces to be crammed with dust!

¹ Miniature.

Cor. 'Tis time, I see, to fetch the cordial. Prithee, Sit down; I'll instantly be here again. [Exit.

Mel. Good, give me leave; I will sit down: indeed, Here's company enough for me to prate to.

Eroclea!—'tis the same; the cunning arts-man
Faltered not in a line. Could he have fashioned
A little hollow space here, and blown breath
T' have made it move and whisper, 't had been excellent:—

But, faith, 'tis well, 'tis very well as 'tis, Passing, most passing well.

Re-enter CLEOPHILA leading EROCLEA, and followed by RHETIAS.

Cleo. The sovereign greatness, Who, by commission from the powers of Heaven, Sways both this land and us, our gracious prince, By me presents you, sir, with this large bounty, A gift more precious to him than his birthright. Here let your cares take end; now set at liberty Your long-imprisoned heart, and welcome home The solace of your soul, too long kept from you.

Ero. [Kneeling] Dear sir, you know me?

Mel. Yes, thou art my daughter,

My eldest blessing. Know thee! why, Eroclea, I never did forget thee in thy absence.

Poor soul, how dost?

Ero. The best of my well-being Consists in yours.

Mel. Stand up: the gods; who hitherto [EROCLEA rises

Have kept us both alive, preserve thee ever!— Cleophila, I thank thee and the prince:— I thank thee too, Eroclea, that thou wouldst, In pity of my age, take so much pains To live, till I might once more look upon thee, Before I broke my heart: O, 'twas a piece Of piety and duty unexampled!

Rhe. [Aside] The good man relisheth his comforts strangely;

The sight doth turn me child.

Ero.

I have not words

That can express my joys.

Cleo.

Nor I.

Mel.

Nor I:

Yet let us gaze on one another freely,
And surfeit with our eyes. Let me be plain:
If I should speak as much as I should speak,
I should talk of a thousand things at once,
And all of thee; of thee, my child, of thee!
My tears, like ruffling winds locked up in caves,
Do bustle for a vent;—on t'other side,
To fly out into mirth were not so comely.

Come hither, let me kiss thee. [To EROCLEA] With a pride,

Strength, courage, and fresh blood, which now thy presence

Hath stored me with, I kneel before their altars, Whose sovereignty kept guard about thy safety. Ask, ask thy sister, prithee, she will tell thee How I have been much mad.

Cleo.

Much discontented,

Shunning all means that might procure him comfort.

Ero. Heaven has at last been gracious.

Mel.

So say I:

But wherefore drop thy words in such a sloth,
As if thou wert afraid to mingle truth
With thy misfortunes? Understand me throughly;
I would not have thee to report at large,
From point to point, a journal of thy absence,
'Twill take up too much time; I would securely
Engross the little remnant of my life,
That thou mightst every day be telling somewhat,

Which might convey me to my rest with comfort. Let me bethink me: how we parted first, Puzzles my faint remembrance—but soft—Cleophila, thou told'st me that the prince Sent me this present.

Cleo.

From his own fair hands

I did receive my sister.

Mel.

To requite him,

We will not dig his father's grave anew,
Although the mention of him much concerns
The business we inquire of:—as I said,
We parted in a hurry at the court;
I to this castle, after made my.jail.
But whither thou, dear heart?

Rhe.

Now they fall to't;

I looked for this.

Ero. I, by my uncle's care,
Sophronos, my good uncle, suddenly
Was like a sailor's boy conveyed a-shipboard
That very night.

Mel.

A policy quick and strange.

Ero. The ship was bound for Corinth; whither first, Attended only with your servant Rhetias And all fit necessaries, we arrived:
From thence, in habit of a youth, we journeyed To Athens, where, till our return of late, Have we lived safe.

Mel. O, what a thing is man, To bandy factions of distempered passions Against the sacred Providence above him! Here, in the legend of thy two years' exile, Rare pity and delight are sweetly mixed.—And still thou wert a boy?

Ero.

So I obeyed

My uncle's wise command.

Mel.

'Twas safely carried:

I humbly thank thy fate.

Ero.

If earthly treasures

Are poured in plenty down from Heaven on mortals, They rain amongst those oracles that flow In schools of sacred knowledge; such is Athens: Yet Athens was to me but a fair prison: The thoughts of you, my sister, country, fortunes, And something of the prince, barred all contents, Which else might ravish sense; for had not Rhetias Been always comfortable to me, certainly Things had gone worse.

Mel. Speak low, Eroclea. That "something of the prince" bears danger in it:

Yet thou hast travelled, wench, for such endowments As might create a prince a wife fit for him,

Had he the world to guide: but touch not there.

How cam'st thou home?

Rhe. Sir, with your noble favour,

Kissing your hand first, that point I can answer.

Mel. Honest, right honest Rhetias!

Rhe. Your grave brother

Perceived with what a hopeless love his son,

Lord Menaphon, too eagerly pursued

Thamasta, cousin to our present prince;

And, to remove the violence of affection,

Sent him to Athens, where, for twelve months' space,

Your daughter, my young lady, and her cousin,

Enjoyed each other's griefs; till by his father,

The Lord Sophronos, we were all called home.

Mel. Enough, enough: the world shall henceforth witness

My thankfulness to Heaven and those people Who have been pitiful to me and mine.— Lend me a looking-glass.—How now! how came I So courtly, in fresh raiments?

Rhe. .

Here's the glass, sir.

[Hands a glass to Meleander.

Mel. I'm in the trim too.—O Cleophila,

This was the goodness of thy care and cunning.—

[Loud music.

Whence comes this noise?

Rhe.:

The prince, my lord, in person.

[They kneel.

Re-enter Palador, Sophronos, Aretus, Amethus, Menaphon, Corax, Thamasta, with Kala.

Pal. Ye shall not kneel to us; rise all, I charge ye.—
[They rise.

Father, you wrong your age; henceforth my arms

[Embracing Meleander.

And heart shall be your guard: we have o'erheard All passages of your united loves.

Be young again, Meleander; live to number

A happy generation, and die old

In comforts as in years! The offices

And honours which I late on thee conferred

Are not fantastic bounties, but thy merit:

Enjoy them liberally.

Mel.

My tears must thank ye,

For my tongue cannot.

Cor.

I have kept my promise,

And given you a sure cordial.

Mel.

O, a rare one!

Pal. Good man, we both have shared enough of sadness,

Though thine has tasted deeper of the extreme: Let us forget it henceforth. Where's the picture I sent ye? Keep it; 'tis a counterfeit; And, in exchange of that, I seize on this, [Takes Eroclea by the hanc.

The real substance. With this other hand I give away, before her father's face, His younger joy, Cleophila, to thee, Cousin Amethus: take her, and be to her

1 i.e. Music, in which sense the word was occasionally used.

More than a father, a deserving husband. Thus robbed of both thy children in a minute, Thy cares are taken off.

Mel. My brains are dulled; I am entranced, and know not what you mean. Great, gracious sir, alas, why do you mock me? I am a weak old man, so poor and feeble, That my untoward joints can scarcely creep Unto the grave, where I must seek my rest.

Pal. Eroclea was, you know, contracted mine; Cleophila my cousin's, by consent Of both their hearts; we both now claim our own: It only rests in you to give a blessing, For confirmation.

Rhe. Sir, 'tis truth and justice.

Mel. The gods, that lent ye to me, bless your vows! O, children, children, pay your prayers to Heaven, For they have showed much mercy.—But, Sophronos, Thou art my brother—I can say no more—A good, good brother!

Pal. Leave the rest to time.—
Cousin Thamasta, I must give you too.—
She's thy wife, Menaphon.—Rhetias, for thee,
And Corax, I have more than common thanks.—
On to the temple! there all solemn rites
Performed, a general feast shall be proclaimed.
The Lover's Melancholy hath found cure;
Sorrows are changed to bride-songs. So they thrive
Whom fate in spite of storms hath kept alive. [Excunt.

To be too confident is as unjust
In any work as too much to distrust:
Who from the laws of study have not swerved
Know begged applauses never were deserved.
We must submit to censure: so doth he
Whose hours begot this issue; yet, being free,
For his part, if he have not pleased you, then
In this kind he'll not trouble you again.

¹ Judgment.

'TIS PITY SHE'S A WHORE.

T is uncertain when 'Tis Pity She's a Whore was written. It was acted at the Phænix in Drury Lane by the Queen's Servants, and published in 1633. It was one of the plays appropriated by the Phænix or Cockpit Theatre in 1639.

The foundation of the plot may possibly have been taken from a slight notice in Bandello. There is a story in Rosset's Histoires Tragiques de Nostre Temps (1615), entitled "Des Amours Incestueuses d'un Frère et d'une Sœur, et de leur fin Malheureuse et Tragique," which Ford may have read; but it has little resemblance to this play. The brother and sister are named Lyzaran and Doralice. Doralice was married to a rich old man. Subsequently, having gathered together her jewels, she is taken on to her brother's horse and the lovers flee together. After wandering in many places they take refuge in Paris, are arrested, condemned to death, and beheaded. This is said to have actually happened in France in the reign of Henry IV.

The play was very well received, and the actors earned "general commendation."

To my Friend the Author.

With admiration I beheld this Whore,
Adorned with beauty such as might restore
(If ever being, as thy Muse hath famed)
Her Giovanni, in his love unblamed:
The ready Graces lent their willing aid;
Pallas herself now played the chambermaid,
And helped to put her dressings on. Secure
Rest thou that thy name herein shall endure
To the end of age; and Annabella be Gloriously fair, even in her infamy.

THOMAS ELLICE.1

Probably Thomas Ellis (or Ellys), of Wyham, Lincolnshire, who was made a baronet by Charles II. He was perhaps a brother of Mr. Robert Ellice, one of "the three respected friends" to whom Ford inscribed The Lover's Melancholy, and also the friend of Davenant.

To the Truly Noble

JOHN, EARL OF PETERBOBOUGH, LORD MOR-DAUNT, BARON OF TURVEY.1

My Lord,

HERE a truth of merit hath a general warrant, there love is but a debt, acknowledgment a justice. Greatness cannot often claim virtue by inheritance; yet, in this, yours appears most eminent, for that you are not more rightly heir to your fortunes than glory shall be to your memory. Sweetness of disposition ennobles a freedom of birth; in both your lawful interest adds honour to your own name, and mercy to my presumption. Your noble allowance of these first fruits of my leisure in the action emboldens my confidence of your as noble construction in this presentment; especially since my service must ever owe particular duty to your favours by a particular engagement. The gravity of the subject may easily excuse the lightness of the title, otherwise I had been a severe judge against mine own guilt. Princes have vouchsafed grace to trifles offered from a purity of devotion; your lordship may likewise please to admit into your good opinion, with these weak endeavours, the constancy of affection from the sincere lover of your deserts in honour,

'TIS PITY SHE'S A WHORE.

ACT THE FIRST.

SCENE I .- Friat BONAVENTURA'S Cell.

Enter FRIAR and GIOVANNI,

RIAR. Dispute no more in this; for know, young man,
These are no school-points; nice philosophy
May tolerate unlikely arguments,
But Heaven admits no jest: wits that presumed

On wit too much, by striving how to prove
There was no God with foolish grounds of art,
Discovered first the nearest way to hell,
And filled the world with devilish atheism.
Such questions, youth, are fond: 1 far better 'tis
To bless the sun than reason why it shines;
Yet He thou talk'st of is above the sun.
No more! I may not hear it.

Go.

Gentle father,

To you I have unclasped my burdened soul,

Emptied the storehouse of my thoughts and heart,

Made myself poor of secrets; have not left

Another word untold, which hath not spoke

All what I ever durst or think or know;
And yet is here the comfort I shall have?
Must I not do what all men else may,—love?
Friar. Yes, you may love, fair son.

Gio. Must I not praise

That beauty which, if framed anew, the gods Would make a god of, if they had it there, And kneel to it, as I do kneel to them?

Friar. Why, foolish madman,—

Gio. Shall a peevish 1 sound,

A customary form, from man to man,
Of brother and of sister, be a bar
'Twixt my perpetual happiness and me?
Say that we had one father; say one womb—
Curse to my joys!—gave both us life and birth;
Are we not therefore each to other bound
So much the more by nature? by the links
Of blood, of reason? nay, if you will have't,
Even of religion, to be ever one,

One soul, one flesh, one love, one heart, one all?

Friar. Have done, unhappy youth! for thou art lost.

Gio. Shall, then, for that I am her brother born, My joys be ever banished from her bed?

No, father; in your eyes I see the change

Of pity and compassion; from your age,

As from a sacred oracle, distils

The life of counsel: tell me, holy man,
What cure shall give me ease in these extremes?

Friar. Repentance, son, and sorrow for this sin: For thou hast moved a Majesty above With thy unranged almost blasphemy.

Gio. O, do not speak of that, dear confessor!

Friar. Art thou, my son, that miracle of wit

Who once, within these three months, wert esteemed

A wonder of thine age throughout Bononia?

How did the University applaud
Thy government, behaviour, learning, speech,
Sweetness, and all that could make up a man!
I was proud of my tutelage, and chose
Rather to leave my books than part with thee;
I did so:—but the fruits of all my hopes
Are lost in thee, as thou art in thyself.
O, Giovanni! hast thou left the schools
Of knowledge to converse with lust and death?
For death waits on thy lust. Look through the world,
And thou shalt see a thousand faces shine
More glorious than this idol thou ador'st:
Leave her, and take thy choice, 'tis much less sin;
Though in such games as those they lose that win.

Gio. It were more ease to stop the ocean From floats and ebbs than to dissuade my vows.

Friar. Then I have done, and in thy wilful flames Already see thy ruin; Heaven is just. Yet hear my counsel.

Gio. As a voice of life.

Friar. Hie to thy father's house; there lock thee fast

Alone within thy chamber; then fall down
On both thy knees, and grovel on the ground;
Cry to thy heart; wash every word thou utter'st
In tears—and if't be possible—of blood:
Beg Heaven to cleanse the leprosy of lust
That rots thy soul; acknowledge what thou art,
A wretch, a worm, a nothing; weep, sigh, pray
Three times a-day and three times every night:
For seven days' space do this; then, if thou find'st
No change in thy desires, return to me:
I'll think on remedy. Pray for thyself

Our old dramatists appear to have learned Italian entirely from books; few, if any, of them pronounced it correctly. Giovanni is here used by Ford as a quadrisyllable, as it was by Massinger and others of his contemporaries.—Gifford.

At home, whilst I pray for thee here.—Away! My blessing with thee! we have need to pray.

Gio. All this I'll do, to free me from the rod Of vengeance; else I'll swear my fate's my god.

[Exeunt.

SCENE II. The Street before Florio's House.

Enter GRIMALDI and VASQUES, with their swords drawn.

Vas. Come, sir, stand to your tackling; if you prove craven, I'll make you run quickly.

Grim. Thou art no equal match for me.

Vas. Indeed, I never went to the wars to bring home news; nor cannot play the mountebank for a meal's meat, and swear I got my wounds in the field. See you these gray hairs? they'll not flinch for a bloody nose. Wilt thou to this gear?

Grim. Why, slave, thinkest thou I'll balance my reputation with a cast-suit? Call thy master; he shall know that I dare—

Vas. Scold like a cot-quean; 2—that's your profession. Thou poor shadow of a soldier, I will make thee know my master keeps servants thy betters in quality and performance. Comest thou to fight or prate?

Grim. Neither, with thee. I am a Roman and a gentleman; one that have got mine honour with expense of blood.

Vas. You are a lying coward and a fool. Fight, or by these hilts, I'll kill thee:—brave my lord!—you'll fight?

Grim. Provoke me not, for if thou dost—

Vas.

Have at you!

² A contemptuous term for one who concerns himself with female affairs.

Enter Florio, Donado, and Soranzo, from opposite sides

Flo. What mean these sudden broils so near my doors?

Have you not other places but my house To vent the spleen of your disordered bloods? Must I be haunted still with such unrest As not to eat or sleep in peace at home? Is this your love, Grimaldi? Fie! 'tis naught.

Don. And, Vasques, I may tell thee, 'tis not well To broach these quarrels; you are ever forward In seconding contentions.

Enter Annabella and Putana above.

Flo. What's the ground?

Sor. That, with your patience, signiors, I'll resolve: This gentleman, whom fame reports a soldier,—For else I know not,—rivals me in love
To Signior Florio's daughter; to whose ears
He still prefers his suit, to my disgrace;
Thinking the way to recommend himself
Is to disparage me in his report:—
But know, Grimaldi, though, may be, thou art
My equal in thy blood, yet this bewrays
A lowness in thy mind, which, wert thou noble,
Thou wouldst as much disdain as I do thee
For this unworthiness:—and on this ground
I willed my servant to correct his tongue,
Holding a man so base no match for me.

Vas. And had not your sudden coming prevented us, I had let my gentleman blood under the gills:—I should have wormed you, sir, for running mad.¹

Grim. I'll be revenged, Soranzo.

¹ The allusion is to the practice of cutting what is called the worm from under a dog's tongue, as a preventive of madness.— Gifford.

Vas. On a dish of warm broth to stay your stomac' do, honest innocence, do! spoon-meat is a wholeso diet than a Spanish blade.

Grim. Remember this!

Sor.

I fear thee not, Grimaldi. [Exit, GRIMALDI.

Flo. My Lord Soranzo, this is strange to me, Why you should storm, having my word engaged; Owing 1 her heart, what need you doubt her ear? Losers may talk by law of any game.

Vas. Yet the villany of words, Signior Florio, may be such as would make any unspleened dove choleric. Blame not my lord in this.

Flo. Be you more silent:

I would not for my wealth, my daughter's love Should cause the spilling of one drop of blood.

Vasques, put up, let's end this fray in wine. [Exeunt.

Put. How like you this, child? here's threatening, challenging, quarrelling, and fighting on every side; and all is for your sake: you had need look to yourself, charge; you'l be stolen away sleeping else shortly.

Ann. But, tutoress, such a life gives no content To me; my thoughts are fixed on other ends. Would you would leave me!

Put. Leave you! no marvel else; leave me no leaving, charge; this is love outright. Indeed, I blame you not; you have choice fit for the best lady in Italy.

Ann. Pray do not talk so much.

Put. Take the worst with the best, there's Grimaldi the soldier, a very well-timbered fellow. They say he is a Roman, nephew to the Duke Montferrato; they say he did good service in the wars against the Milanese; but, 'faith, charge, I do not like him, an't be for nothing but for being a soldier: not one amongst twenty of your skirmishing captains but have some privy maim or other that mars their standing upright. I like him the worse, he crinkles so much in the hams: though he might serve if there were no more men, yet he's not the man I would choose.

Ann. Fie, how thou pratest.

Put. As I am a very woman, I like Signior Soranzo well; he is wise, and what is more, rich; and what is more than that, kind; and what is more that all this, a nobleman: such a one, were I the fair Annabella myself, I would wish and pray for. Then he is bountiful; besides, he is handsome, and, by my troth, I think, wholesome,—and that's news in a gallant of three-and-twenty; liberal, that I know; loving, that you know; and a man sure, else he could never ha' purchased such a good name with Hippolita, the lusty widow, in her husband's lifetime: an'twere but for that report, sweetheart, would 'a were thine! Commend a man for his qualities, but take a husband as he is a plain, sufficient, naked man: such a one is for your bed, and such a one is Signior Soranzo, my life for't.

Ann. Sure the woman took her morning's draught too soon.

Enter Bergetto and Poggio.

Put. But look, sweetheart, look what thing comes now! Here's another of your ciphers to fill up the number: O, brave old ape in a silken coat! Observe.

Berg. Didst thou think, Poggio, that I would spoil my new clothes, and leave my dinner, to fight?

Pog. No, sir, I did not take you for so arrant a baby.

Berg. I am wiser than so: for I hope, Poggio, thou never heardst of an elder brother that was a coxcomb; didst, Poggio?

Pog. Never, indeed, sir, as long as they had either land or money left them to inherit.

Berg. Is it possible, Poggio? O, monstrous! Why, I'll undertake with a handful of silver to buy a headful of wit at any time: but, sirrah, I have another purchase in hand; I shall have the wench, mine uncle says. I will but wash my face and shift socks, and then have at her, i'faith!—Mark my pace, Poggio!

[Passes over the stage, and exit.

Pog. Sir,—I have seen an ass and a mule trot the Spanish pavin with a better grace, I know not how often.

[Aside, and follows him.

Ann. This idiot haunts me too.

Put. Ay, ay, he needs no description. The rich magnifico that is below with your father, charge, Signior Donado his uncle, for that he means to make this, his cousin,² a golden calf, thinks that you will be a right Israelite, and fall down to him presently: but I hope I have tutored you better. They say a fool's bauble is a lady's playfellow; yet you, having wealth enough, you need not cast upon the dearth of flesh, at any rate. Hang him, innocent!³

GIOVANNI passes over the stage.

Ann. But see, Putana, see! what blessèd shape Of some celestial creature now appears!—
What man is he, that with such sad aspéct Walks careless of himself?

Put. Where?

Ann. Look below.

Put. O, 'tis your brother, sweet.

Ann. Ha!

Put. 'Tis your brother.

Ann. Sure, 'tis not he; this is some woful thing Wrapped up in grief, some shadow of a man. Alas, he beats his breast and wipes his eyes, Drowned all in tears: methinks I hear him sigh:

² i.e. Nephew. ³ Idiot.

^{1 &}quot;A grave and majestic dance; the method of performing it was anciently by gentlemen dressed with a cap and sword; by those of the long robe, in their gowns; by princes, in their mantles; and by ladies, in gowns with long trains, the motion whereof in the dance resembled that of a peacock's tail."—Hawkins.

Let's down, Putana, and partake the cause. I know my brother, in the love he bears me, Will not deny me partage in his sadness.—
My soul is full of heaviness and fear.

Aside.

SCENE III.—A Hall in FLORIO'S House.

Enter GIOVANNI.

Gio. Lost! I am lost! my fates have doomed my death:

The more I strive, I love; the more I love, The less I hope: I see my ruin certain. What judgment or endeavours could apply To my incurable and restless wounds, I throughly have examined, but in vain. O, that it were not in religion sin To make our love a god, and worship it! I have even wearied Heaven with prayers, dried up The spring of my continual tears, even starved My veins with daily fasts: what wit or art Could counsel, I have practised; but, alas, I find all these but dreams, and old men's tales, To fright unsteady youth; I'm still the same: Or I must speak, or burst. 'Tis not, I know, My lust, but 'tis my fate that leads me on. Keep fear and low faint-hearted shame with slaves! I'll tell her that I love her, though my heart Were rated at the price of that attempt.— O me! she comes.

Enter Annabella and Putana.

Ann.

Brother!

Gio. [Aside]

If such a thing

As courage dwell in men, ye heavenly powers, Now double all that virtue in my tongue!

I'faith,

Ann. Why, brother,

Will you not speak to me?

Gio.

Yes: how d'ye, sister?

Ann. Howe'er I am, methinks you are not well.

Put. Bless us! Why are you so sad, sir?

Gio. Let me entreat you, leave us a while, Putana.—Sister, I would be private with you.

Ann. Withdraw, Putana.

Put. I will.—If this were any other company for her, I should think my absence an office of some credit: but I will leave them together.

[Aside, and exit.]

Gio. Come, sister, lend your hand: let's walk to-gether!

I hope you need not blush to walk with me;

Here's none but you and I.

Ann.

How's this?

Gio. I mean no harm.

Ann.

Harm?

Gio.

No, good faith.

How is't with ye?

Ann. [Aside]

I trust he be not frantic.—

I am very well, brother.

Gio. Trust me, but I am sick; I fear so sick 'Twill cost my life.

Ann. Mercy forbid it! 'tis not so, I hope.

Gio. I think you love me, sister.

Ann.

Yes, you know

I do.

Gio. I know't, indeed.—You're very fair.

Ann. Nay, then I see you have a merry sickness.

Gio. That's as it proves. The poets feign, I read,

That Juno for her forehead did exceed

All other goddesses; but I durst swear

Your forehead exceeds hers, as hers did theirs.

Ann. 'Troth, this is pretty!

Gio.

Such a pair of stars

As are thine eyes would, like Promethean fire, If gently glanced, give life to senseless stones.

Ann. Fie upon ye!

Gio. The lily and the rose, most sweetly strange, Upon your dimpled cheeks do strive for change: Such lips would tempt a saint; such hands as those Would make an anchorite lascivious.

Ann. D'ye mock me or flatter me?

Gio. If you would see a beauty more exact Than art can counterfeit or nature frame, Look in your glass, and there behold your own.

Ann. O, you are a trim youth!

Gio. Here!

[Offers his dagger to her.

Ann. What to do?

Gio. And here's my breast; strike home!

Rip up my bosom; there thou shalt behold A heart in which is writ the truth I speak.

Why stand ye?

Ann.

Are you earnest?

Gio.

Yes, most earnest.

You cannot love?

Ann.

Whom?

Gio.

Me. My tortured soul

Hath felt affliction in the heat of death.

O, Annabella, I am quite undone!

The love of thee, my sister, and the view

Of thy immortal beauty have untuned

All harmony both of my rest and life.

Why d'ye not strike?

Ann.

Forbid it, my just fears!

If this be true, 'twere fitter I were dead.

Gio. True, Annabella! 'tis no time to jest. I have too long suppressed the hidden flames That almost have consumed me: I have spent Many a silent night in sighs and groans; Ran over all my thoughts, despised my fate, Reasoned against the reasons of my love,

Done all that smoothed-cheeked virtue could advise; But found all bootless: 'tis my destiny That you must either love, or I must die.

Ann. Comes this in sadness 1 from you? Gio. Let some mischief

Befall me soon, if I dissemble aught.

Ann. You are my brother Giovanni.

You Gio.

My sister Annabella; I know this, And could afford you instance why to love So much the more for this; to which intent Wise nature first in your creation meant To make you mine; else't had been sin and foul To share one beauty to a double soul. Nearness in birth and blood doth but persuade A nearer nearness in affection. I have asked counsel of the holy church, Who tells me I may love you; and 'tis just

That, since I may, I should; and will, yes, will. Must I now live or die?

Live; thou hast won Ann. The field, and never fought: what thou hast urged My captive heart had long ago resolved. I blush to tell thee,—but I'll tell thee now,— For every sigh that thou hast spent for me I have sighed ten; for every tear shed twenty: And not so much for that I loved, as that I durst not say I loved, nor scarcely think it.

Giv. Let not this music be a dream, ye gods, For pity's sake, I beg ye!

On my knees, She kneels. Ann. Brother, even by our mother's dust, I charge you, Do not betray me to your mirth or hate: Love me or kill me, brother.

He kneels, On my knees, Gio. Sister, even by my mother's dust, I charge you,

1 Earnest.

Do not betray me to your mirth or hate:

Love me or kill me, sister.

Ann. You mean good sooth, then?

Gio.

In good troth, I do;

And so do you, I hope: say, I'm in earnest.

Ann. I'll swear it, I.

Gio.

And I; and by this kiss,—

Kisses her.

Once more, yet once more: now let's rise [They rise],—by this,

I would not change this minute for Elysium.

What must we now do?

Ann.

What you will.

Gio.

Come, then;

After so many tears as we have wept, Let's learn to court in smiles, to kiss, and sleep.

[Exeunt.

SCENÊ IV.—A Street.

Enter FLORIO and DONADO.

Flo. Signior Donado, you have said enough, I understand you; but would have you know I will not force my daughter 'gainst her will. You see I have but two, a son and her; And he is so devoted to his book, As I must tell you true, I doubt his health: Should he miscarry, all my hopes rely Upon my girl. As for worldly fortune, I am, I thank my stars, blessed with enough. My care is, how to match her to her liking: I would not have her marry wealth, but love

¹ "Girl" is here, and almost everywhere else in these plays, a dissyllable. The practice is not peculiar to our poet; for Fanshaw, and others of that age, have numerous examples of it.—Gifford.

And if she like your nephew, let him have her. Here's all that I can say.

Don. Sir, you say well,

Like a true father; and, for my part, I,
If the young folks can like,—'twixt you and me,—•
Will promise to assure my nephew presently
Three thousand florins yearly during life,
And after I am dead my whole estate.

Flo. 'Tis a fair proffer, sir; meantime your nephew Shall have free passage to commence his suit: If he can thrive, he shall have my consent. So for this time I'll leave you, signior.

[Exit.]

Don. Well,

Here's hope yet, if my nephew would have wit; But he is such another dunce, I fear He'll never win the wench. When I was young, I could have done't, i'faith; and so shall he, If he will learn of me; and, in good time, He comes himself.

Enter Bergetto and Poggio.

How now, Bergetto, whither away so fast?

Berg. O, uncle, I have heard the strangest news that ever came out of the mint!—Have I not, Poggio?

Pog. Yes, indeed, sir.

Don. What news, Bergetto?

Berg. Why, look ye, uncle, my barber told me just now that there is a fellow come to town who undertakes to make a mill go without the mortal help of any water or wind, only with sand-bags: and this fellow hath a strange horse, a most excellent beast, I'll assure you, uncle, my barber says; whose head, to the wonder of all Christian people, stands just behind where his tail is.— Is't not true, Poggio?

Pog. So the barber swore, forsooth. Don. And you are running thither? Berg. Ay, forsooth, uncle.

Don. Wilt thou be a fool still? Come, sir, you shall not go: you have more mind of a puppet-play than on the business I told ye. Why, thou great baby, wilt never have wit? wilt make thyself a May-game to all the world?

Pog. Answer for yourself, master.

Berg. Why, uncle, should I sit at home still, and not go abroad to see fashions like other gallants?

Don. To see hobby-horses! What wise talk, I pray, had you with Annabella, when you were at Signior Florio's house?

Berg. O, the wench,—Ud's sa'me, uncle, I tickled her with a rare speech, that I made her almost burst her belly with laughing.

Don. Nay, I think so; and what speech was't?

Berg. What did I say, Poggio?

Pog. Forsooth, my master said, that he loved her almost as well as he loved parmasent; and swore—I'll be sworn for him—that she wanted but such a nose as his was, to be as pretty a young woman as any was in Parma.

Don. O, gross!

Berg. Nay, uncle:—then she asked me whether my father had any more children than myself; and I said "No; 'twere better he should have had his brains knocked out first."

Don: This is intolerable.

Berg. Then said she, "Will Signior Donado, your uncle, leave you all his wealth?"

Don. Ha! that was good; did she harp upon that string?

Berg. Did she harp upon that string! ay, that she did. I answered, "Leave me all his wealth! why, woman, he hath no other wit; if he had, he should hear on't to his everlasting glory and confusion: I know," quoth I, "I am his white-boy," and will not be guiled:" and with that she fell into a great smile, and went away. Nay, I did fit her.

Don. Ah, sirrah, then I see there is no changing of nature. Well, Bergetto, I fear thou wilt be a very ass still.

Berg. I should be sorry for that, uncle.

Don. Come, come you home with me: since you are no better a speaker, I'll have you write to her after some courtly manner, and enclose some rich jewel in the letter.

Berg. Ay, marry, that will be excellent.

Don. Peace, innocent!2

Once in my time I'll set my wits to school:

If all fail, 'tis but the fortune of a fool.

Berg. Poggio, 'twill do, Poggio.

Excunt.

A ferm of endearment. It is said that this and similar terms are still used in some parts of Ireland. Under the ancient Irish Geilane system of land tenure the homestead itself, in the division of the family property, fell to the lot of the fifth son, who was called the fair-haired or white-headed boy, geil meaning white.

3 Idiot.

ACT THE SECOND.

SCENE I .- An Apartment in FLORIO'S House,

Enter GIOVANNI and ANNABELLA.

IOVANNI. Come, Annabella,—no more sister now,

But love, a name more gracious,—do not blush,

Beauty's sweet wonder, but be proud to know

That yielding thou hast conquered, and inflamed

A heart whose tribute is thy brother's life.

Ann. And mine is his. O, how these stol'n contents Would print a modest crimson on my cheeks, Had any but my heart's delight prevailed!

Gio. I marvel why the chaster of your sex Should think this pretty toy called maidenhead So strange a loss, when, being lost, 'tis nothing, And you are still the same.

Ann. 'Tis well for you;

Now you can talk.

Gio. Music as well consists

In the ear as in the playing.

Ann. O, you're wanton!

Teli on't, you're best; do.

Gio. Thou wilt chide me, then.

Kiss me :--so! Thus hung Jove on Leda's neck, And sucked divine ambrosia from her lips. I envy not the mightiest man alive;

But hold myself in being king of thee,

More great than were I king of all the world.

But I shall lose you, sweetheart.

Ann.

But you shall not.

Gio. You must be married, mistress.

Ann.

Yes! to whom?

Gio. Some one must have you.

Ann.

You must.

Gio.

Nay, some other.

Ann. Now, prithee do not speak so: without jesting You'll make me weep in earnest.

Gio.

What, you will not!

But tell me, sweet, canst thou be dared to swear

That thou wilt live to me, and to no other?

Ann. By both our loves I dare; for didst thou know, My Giovanni, how all suitors seem

To my eyes hateful, thou wouldst trust me then.

Gio. Enough, I take thy word: sweet, we must part: Remember what thou vow'st; keep well my heart.

Ann. Will you be gone?

Gio. I must.

Ann. When to return?

Gio.

Soon.

Ann.

Look you do.

Gio.

Farewell.

Ann. Go where thou wilt, in mind I'll keep thee here. And where thou art, I know I shall be there

[Exit GIOVANNI.

Guardian!

Enter PUTANA.

Put. Child, how is't, child? well, thank Heaven, ha!

Ann. O guardian, what a paradise of joy

Have I passed over!

Put. Nay, what a paradise of joy have you passed under! Why, now I commend thee, charge. Fear nothing, sweetheart: what though he be your brother?

your brother's a man, I hope; and I say still, if a young wench feel the fit upon her, let her take any body, father or brother, all is one.

Ann. I would not have it known for all the world.

Put. Nor I, indeed; for the speech of the people: else 'twere nothing.

Flo. [Within] Daughter Annabella!

Ann. O me, my father!—Here, sir!—Reach my work.

Flo. [Within] What are you doing?

Ann. So: let him come now.

Enter Florio, followed by Richardetto as a Doctor of Physic, and Philotis with a lute.

Flo. So hard at work! that's well; you lose no time.

Look, I have brought you company; here's one,

A learned doctor lately come from Padua,

Much skilled in physic; and, for that I see

You have of late been sickly, I entreated

This reverend man to visit you some time.

Ann. You're very welcome, sir.

Rich.

I thank you, mistress.

Loud fame in large report hath spoke your praise

As well for virtue as perfection: 1

For which I have been bold to bring with me

A kinswoman of mine, a maid, for song

And music one perhaps will give content:

Please you to know her.

Ann.

They are parts I love.

And she for them most welcome.

Phi.

Thank you, lady.

Flo. Sir, now you know my house, pray make not strange;

And if you find my daughter need your art, I'll be your pay-master.

Rich.

Sir, what I am

She shall command.

¹ Beauty.

Flo. Sir, you shall bind me to you.—
Daughter, I must have conference with you
About some matters that concern us both.—
Good Master Doctor, please you but walk in,
We'll crave a little of your cousin's cunning:

I think my girl hath not quite forgot
To touch an instrument; she could have done't:
We'll hear them both.

Rich.

I'll wait upon you, sir.

[Exeunt.

SCENE II.— A Room in SORANZO'S House.

Enter SORANZO with a book.

Sor. [Reads] "Love's measure is extreme, the comfort pain,

The life unrest, and the reward disdain."
What's here? look't o'er again.—'Tis so; so writes
This smooth, licentious poet in his rhymes:
But, Sannazar, thou liest; for, had thy bozom
Felt such oppression as is laid on mine,
Thou wouldst have !-issed the rod that made thee
smart.—

To work, then, happy Muse, and contradict
What Sannazar hath in his envy writ.

"Love's measure is the mean, sweet his annoys,
His pleasures life, and his reward all joys."
Had Annabella lived when Sannazar
Did, in his brief Encomium,² celebrate

"Viderat Hadriacis Venetam Neptunus in undis Stare urbem," &c.

It is given by Coryat, who thus speaks of it: "I heard in Venice that a certaine Italian poet, called Jacobus Sannazarius, had a hundred crownes bestowed upon him by the Senate of Venice for each of these verses following. I would to God my poeticall friend Master

² This is the well-known epigram, beginning .
⁴ Viderat Hadriacis Venetam Neptunus in

Venice, that queen of cities, he had left
That verse which gained him such a sum of gold,
And for one only look from Annabel
Had writ of her and her diviner cheeks.

O, how my thoughts are—

Vas. [Within] Pray, forbear; in rules of civility, let me give notice on't: I shall be taxed of my neglect of duty and service.

Sor. What rude intrusion interrupts my peace? Can I be no where private?

Vas. [Within] Troth, you wrong your modesty. Sor. What's the matter, Vasques? who is't?

Enter HIPPOLITA and VASQUES.

'Tis I; Hip. Do you know me now? Look, perjured man, on her Whom thou and thy distracted lust have wronged. Thy sensual rage of blood hath made my youth A scorn to men and angels; and shall I Be now a foil to thy unsated change? Thou know'st, false wanton, when my modest fame Stood free from stain or scandal, all the charms Of hell or sorcery could not prevail Against the honour of my chaster bosom. Thine eyes did plead in tears, thy tongue in oaths, Such and so many, that a heart of steel Would have been wrought to pity, as was mine: And shall the conquest of my lawful bed, My husband's death, urged on by his disgrace, My loss of womanhood, be ill-rewarded With hatred and contempt? No; know, Soranzo, I have a spirit doth as much distaste The slavery of fearing thee, as thou Dost loathe the memory of what hath passed.

Benjamin Johnson were so well rewarded for his poems here in England, seeing he hath made many as good verses (in my opinion) as these of Sannazarius."—Gifford.

Sir. Nay, dear Hippolita,—

Hip. Call me not dear,
Nor think with supple words to smooth the grossness
Of my abuses: 'tis not your new mistress,
Your goodly madam-merchant, shall triumph
On my dejection; tell her thus from me,
My birth was nobler and by much more free.

Sor. You are too violent.

Hip. You are too double In your dissimulation. Seest thou this, This habit, these black mourning weeds of care? 'Tis thou art cause of this; and hast divorced My husband from his life, and me from him, And made me widow in my widowhood.

Sor. Will you yet hear?

Hip. More of thy perjuries? Thy soul is drowned too deeply in those sins; Thou need'st not add to the number.

Sor. Then I'll leave you; You're past all rules of sense.

Hip. And thou of grace.

Vas. Fie, mistress, you are not near the limits of reason: if my lord had a resolution as noble as virtue itself, you take the course to unedge it all.—Sir, I beseech you do not perplex her; griefs, alas, will have a vent: I dare undertake Madam Hippolita will now freely hear you.

Sor. Talk to a woman frantic!—Are these the fruits of your love?

Hip. They are the fruits of thy untruth, false man! Didst thou not swear, whilst yet my husband lived, That thou wouldst wish no happiness on earth More than to call me wife? didst thou not vow, When he should die, to marry me? for which The devil in my blood, and thy protests, Caused me to counsel him to undertake A voyage to Ligorne, for that we heard

His brother there was dead, and left a daughter Young and unfriended, who, with much ado, I wished him to bring hither: he did so, And went; and, as thou know'st, died on the way. Unhappy man, to buy his death so dear, With my advice! yet thou, for whom I did it, Forgett'st thy vows, and leav'st me to my shame.

Sor. Who could help this?

Hip. Who! perjured man, thou couldst, If thou hadst faith or love.

Sor. You are deceived:

The vows I made, if you remember well,
Were wicked and unlawful; 'twere more sin
To keep them than to break them: as for me,
I cannot mask my penitence. Think thou
How much thou hast digressed from honest shame
In bringing of a gentleman to death
Who was thy husband; such a one as he,
So noble in his quality, condition,
Learning, behaviour, entertainment, love,
As Parma could not show a braver man.

Vas. You do not well; this was not your promise.

Sor. I care not; let her know her monstrous life. Ere I'll be servile to so black a sin, I'll be a curse.—Woman, come here no more; Learn to repent, and die; for, by my honour, I hate thee and thy lust: you've been too foul. [Exit.

Vas. [Aside] This part has been scurvily played.

Hip. How foolishly this beast contemns his fate,
And shuns the use of that which I more scorn
Than I once loved, his love! But let him go;
My vengeance shall give comfort to his woe. [Going.

Vas. Mistress, mistress, Madam Hippolita! pray, a word or two.

Hip. With me, sir?

Vas. With you, if you please.

1 i.e. To the woe occasioned by his falsehood.

111p. What is't?

Vas. I know you are infinitely moved now, and you think you have cause: some I confess you have, but sure not so much as you imagine.

Hip. Indeed!

Vas. O, you were miserably bitter, which you followed even to the last syllable; 'faith, you were somewhat too shrewd: by my life, you could not have took my lord in a worse time since I first knew him; to-morrow you shall find him a new man.

Hip. Well, I shall wait his leisure.

Vas. Fie, this is not a hearty patience; it comes sourly from you: 'troth, let me persuade you for once.

Hip. [Aside] I have it, and it shall be so; thanks, opportunity!—Persuade me! to what?

Vas. Visit him in some milder temper. O, if you could but master a little your female spleen, how might you win him!

Hip. He will never love me. Vasques, thou hast been a too trusty servant to such a master, and I believe thy reward in the end will fall out like mine.

Vas. So perhaps too.

Hip. Resolve 1 thyself it will. Had I one so true, so truly honest, so secret to my counsels, as thou hast been to him and his, I should think it a slight acquittance, not only to make him master of all I have, but even of myself.

Vas. O, you are a noble gentlewoman!

Hip. Wilt thou feed always upon hopes? well, I know thou art wise, and seest the reward of an old servant daily, what it is.

Vas. Beggary and neglect.

Hip. True; but, Vasques, wert thou mine, and wouldst be private to me and my designs, I here protest, myself and all what I can else call mine should be at thy dispose.

¹ Assure.

Vas. [Aside] Work you that way, old mole? then I have the wind of you.—I were not worthy of it by any desert that could lie within my compass: if I could—

Hip. What then?

Vas. I should then hope to live in these my old years with rest and security.

Hip. Give me thy hand: now promise but thy silence,

And help to bring to pass a plot I have,

And here, in sight of heaven, that being done,

I make the lord of me and mine estate.

Vas. Come, you are merry; this is such a happiness that I can neither think or believe.

Hip. Promise thy secrecy, and 'tis confirmed.

Vas. Then here I call our good genii for witnesses, whatsoever your designs are, or against whomsoever, I will not only be a special actor therein, but never disclose it till it be effected.

Hip. I take thy word, and, with that, thee for mine; Come, then, let's more confer of this anon.—
On this delicious bane my thoughts shall banquet;
Revenge shall sweeten what my griefs have tasted.

[Aside, and exit with VASQUES.

SCENE III .-- The Street.

Enter RICHARDETTO and PHILOTIS.

Rich. Thou seest, my lovely niece, these strange mishaps,

How all my fortunes turn to my disgrace;

Wherein I am but as a looker-on,

Whiles others act my shame, and I am silent.

Phi. But, uncle, wherein can this borrowed shape Give you content?

Rich.

I'll tell thee, gentle niece:

Thy wanton aunt in her lascivious riots
Lives now secure, thinks I am surely dead
In my late journey to Ligorne for you,—
As I have caused it to be rumoured out.
Now would I see with what an impudence
She gives scope to her loose adultery,
And how the common voice allows hereof:
Thus far I have prevailed.

Phi.

Alas, I fear

You mean some strange revenge.

Rich.

O, be not troubled;

Your ignorance shall plead for you in all: But to our business.—What! you learned for certain How Signor Florio means to give his daughter In marriage to Soranzo?

Phi.

Yes, for certain.

Rich. But how find you young Annabella's love Inclined to him?

Phi.

For aught I could perceive,

She neither fancies him or any else.

Rich. There's mystery in that, which time must show. She used you kindly?

Phi.

Yes.

Rich.

And craved your company?

Phi. Often.

Rich. 'Tis well; it goes as I could wish. I am the doctor now; and as for you,

None knows you: if all fail not, we shall thrive.—

But who comes here? I know him; 'tis Grimaldi, A Roman and a soldier, near allied Unto the Duke of Montferrato, one

Attending on the nuncio of the pope

That now resides in Parma; by which means

He hopes to get the love of Annabella.

Enter GRIMALDI.

Grim. Save you, sir.

Rich.

And you, sir.

Grim.

I have heard

Of your approved skill, which through the city Is freely talked of, and would crave your aid.

Rich. For what, sir?

Grim. Marry, sir, for this-

But I would speak in private.

Rich.

Leave us, cousin.1

[Exit PHILOTIS.

Grim. I love fair Annabella, and would know Whether in art there may not be receipts To move affection.

Rich.

Sir, perhaps there may;

But these will nothing profit you.

Grim.

Not me?

Rich. Unless I be mistook, you are a man Greatly in favour with the cardinal.

Grim. What of that?

Rich.

In duty to his grace,

I will be bold to tell you, if you seek

To marry Florio's daughter, you must first Remove a bar 'twixt you and her.

Grim.

Who's that?

Rich. Soranzo is the man that hath her heart;

And while he lives, be sure you cannot speed.

Grim. Soranzo! what, mine enemy? is't he? Rich. Is he your enemy?

Grim.

The man I hate

Worse than confusion; I will to him straight.

Rich. Nay, then, take mine advice,

Even for his grace's sake the cardinal:

I'll find a time when he and she do meet,

Of which I'll give you notice; and, to be sure

He shall not 'scape you, I'll provide a poison

To dip your rapier's point in: if he had

As many heads as Hydra had, he dies. Grim. But shall I trust thee, doctor?

1 "Cousin" was frequently used for nephew or niece.

Rich.

As yourself;

Doubt not in aught. [Exit GRIMALDI.]—Thus shall the fates decree

By me Soranzo falls, that ruined me.

Exit.

SCENE IV .- Another part of the Street.

Enter Donado with a letter, Bergetto, and Poggio.

Don. Well, sir, I must be content to be both your secretary and your messenger myself. I cannot tell what this letter may work; but, as sure as I am alive, if thou come once to talk with her, I fear thou wilt mar whatsoever I make.

Ber. You make, uncle! why, am not I big enough to carry mine own letter, I pray?

Don. Ay, ay, carry a fool's head o' thy own! why, thou dunce, wouldst thou write a letter, and carry it thyself?

Ber. Yes, that I would, and read it to her with my own mouth; for you must think, if she will not believe me myself when she hears me speak, she will not believe another's handwriting. O, you think I am a blockhead, uncle. No, sir, Poggio knows I have indited a letter myself; so I have.

Pog. Yes, truly, sir; I have it in my pocket.

Don. A sweet one, no doubt; pray let's see't.

Ber. I cannot read my own hand very well, Poggio; read it, Poggio.

Don. Begin.

Pog. [Reads] "Most dainty and honey-sweet mistress; I could call you fair, and lie as fast as any that loves you; but my uncle being the elder man, I leave it to him, as more fit for his age and the colour of his beard. I am wise enough to tell you I can bourd where I see occasion; or if you like my uncle's wit better than mine you shall marry me; if you like mine better than his, I will marry you, in spite of your teeth. So, commending my best parts to you, I rest

Yours upwards and downwards, or you may choose, Bergetto."

Ber. Ah, ha! here's stuff, uncle!

Don. Here's stuff indeed—to shame us all. Pray, whose advice did you take in this learned letter?

Pog. None, upon my word, but mine own,

Ber. And mine, uncle, believe it, nobody's else; 'twas mine own brain, I thank a good wit for't.

Don. Get you home, sir, and look you keep within doors till I return.

Ber. How! that were a jest indeed! I scorn it, i'faith.

Don. What! you do not?

Ber. Judge me, but I do now.

Pog. Indeed, sir, 'tis very unhealthy.

Don. Well, sir, if I hear any of your apish running to motions and fopperies, till I come back, you were as good no; look to't.

[Exit.

Ber. Poggio, shall's steal to see this horse with the head in's tail?

Pog. Ay, but you must take heed of whipping.

Ber. Dost take me for a child, Poggio? Come, honest Poggio. [Exeunt.

SCENE V.—Friar Bonaventura's Cell.

Enter Friar and GIOVANNI.

Friar. Peace! thou hast told a tale whose every word Threatens eternal slaughter to the soul; I'm sorry I have heard it: would mine ears Had been one minute deaf, befor the hour

FACT II.

That thou cam'st to me! O young man, castaway, By the religious number 1 of mine order, I day and night have waked my agèd eyes Above my strength, to weep on thy behalf; But Heaven is angry, and be thou resolved 2 Thou art a man remarked 3 to taste a mischief. Look for't; though it come late, it will come sure,

Gio. Father, in this you are uncharitable;
What I have done I'll prove both fit and good.
It is a principle which you have taught,
When I was yet your scholar, that the frame
And composition of the mind doth follow
The frame and composition of the body:
So, where the body's furniture is beauty,
The mind's must needs be virtue; which allowed,
Virtue itself is reason but refined,
And love the quintessence of that: this proves,
My sister's beauty being rarely fair
Is rarely virtuous; chiefly in her love,
And chiefly in that love, her love to me:
If hers to me, then so is mine to her;
Since in like causes are effects alike.

Friar. O ignorance in knowledge! Long ago, How often have I warned thee this before! Indeed, if we were sure there were no Deity, Nor Heaven nor Hell, then to be led alone By Nature's light—as were philosophers Of elder times—might instance some defence. But 'tis not so: then, madman, thou wilt find That Nature is in Heaven's positions blind.

Gio. Your age o'errules you; had you youth like mine, You'd make her love your heaven, and her divine.

Friar. Nay, then I see thou'rt too far sold to hell: It lies not in the compass of my prayers
To call thee back, yet let me counsel thee;
Persuade thy sister to some marriage.

Gio. Marriage! why, that's to damn her; that's to prove

Her greedy variety of lust.

Friar. O, searful! if thou wilt not, give me leave To shrive her, lest she should die unabsolved.

Gio. At your best leisure, father: then she'll tell you How dearly she doth prize my matchless love; Then you will know what pity 'twere we two Should have been sundered from each other's arms. View well her face, and in that little round You may observe a world of variety; For colour, lips; for sweet perfumes, her breath; For jewels, eyes; for threads of purest gold, Hair; for delicious choice of flowers, cheeks; Wonder in every portion of that form.¹ Hear her but speak, and you will swear the spheres Make music to the citizens in Heaven. But, father, what is else for pleasure framed Lest I offend your ears, shall go unnamed.

Friar. The more I hear, I pity thee the more, That one so excellent should give those parts All to a second death. What I can do Is but to pray; and yet—I could advise thee, Wouldst thou be ruled.

Gio.

In what?

Friar.

Why leave her yet;

The throne of mercy is above your trespass; Yet time is left you both—

Gio.

To embrace each other,

Else let all time be struck quite out of number:

She is like me, and I like her, resolved.

Friar. No more! I'll visit her.—This grieves me most, Things being thus, a pair of souls are lost. [Exeunt.

1 "Throne" in the old edition.

SCENE VI.—A Room in Florio's House.

Enter FLORIO, DONADO, ANNABELLA, and PUTANA.

Flo. Where's Giovanni?

Ann. Newly walked abroad,

And, as I heard him say, gone to the friar, His reverend tutor.

Flo. That's a blessed man,

A man made up of holiness: I hope

He'll teach him how to gain another world.

Don. Fair gentlewoman, here's a letter sent To you from my young cousin; I dare swear He loves you in his soul: would you could hear Sometimes what I see daily, sighs and tears, As if his breast were prison to his heart!

Flo. Receive it, Annabella.

Ann. Alas, good man!

Takes the letter.

Don. What's that she said?

Put. An't please you, sir, she said, "Alas, good man!" Truly I do commend him to her every night before her first sleep, because I would have her dream of him; and she hearkens to that most religiously.

Don. Sayest so? God-a'-mercy, Putana! there's something for thee [Gives her money]: and prithee do what thou canst on his behalf; 'shall not be lost labour, take my word for't.

Put. Thank you most heartily, sir: now I have a feeling of your mind, let me alone to work.

Ann. Guardian,-

Put. Did you call?

Ann. Keep this letter.

Don. Signior Florio, in any case bid her read it instantly.

Flo. Keep it! for what? pray, read it me hereright.

Ann. I shall, sir. [She reads the letter.

Don. How d'ye find her inclined, signior?

Flo. Troth, sir, I know not how; not all so well

As I could wish.

Ann. Sir, I am bound to rest your cousin's debtor.

The jewel I'll return; for if he love,

I'll count that love a jewel.

Don.

Mark you that?

Nay, keep them both, sweet maid.

Ann.

You must excuse me,

Indeed I will not keep it.

Flo.

Where's the ring,

That which your mother, in her will, bequeathed,

And charged you on her blessing not to give 't

To any but your husband? send back that.

Ann. I have it not.

Flo.

Ha! have it not! where is't?

Ann. My brother in the morning took it from me, Said he would wear't to day.

Flo.

Well, what do you say

To young Bergetto's love? are you content to Match with him? speak.

Don.

There is the point, indeed.

Ann. [Aside] What shall I do? I must say something now.

Flo. What say? why d'ye not speak?

Ann.

Sir, with your leave—

Please you to give me freedom?

Flo.

Yes, you have it.

Ann. Signior Donado, if your nephew mean

To raise his better fortunes in his match, The hope of me will hinder such a hope:

Sir, if you love him, as I know you do,

Find one more worthy of his choice than me:

In short, I'm sure I shall not be his wife.

Don. Why, here's plain dealing; I commend thee for't:

And all the worst I wish thee is, Heaven bless thee! Your father yet and I will still be friends:-Shall we not, Signior Florio?

Flo.

Yes; why not?

Look, here your cousin comes.

Enter Bergetto and Poggio.

Don. [Aside] O, coxcomb! what doth he make here?

Ber. Where's my uncle, sirs?

Don. What's the news now?

Ber. Save you, uncle, save you!—You must not think I come for nothing, masters.—And how, and how is't? what, you have read my letter? ah, there I—tickled you, i'faith.

Pog. [Aside to Bergetto] But 'twere better you had tickled her in another place.

Ber. Sirrah sweetheart, I'll tell thee a good jest; and riddle what 'tis.

Ann. You say you'll teli me.

Ber. As I was walking just now in the street, I met a swaggering fellow would needs take the wall of me; and because he did thrust me, I very valiantly called him rogue. He hereupon bade me draw; I told him I had more wit than so; but when he saw that I would not, he did so maul me with the hilts of his rapier, that my head sung whilst my feet capered in the kennel.

Don. [Aside] Was ever the like ass seen!

Ann. And what did you all this while?

Ber. Laugh at him for a gull, till I saw the blood run about mine ears, and then I could not choose but find in my heart to cry; till a fellow with a broad beard—they say he is a new-come doctor—called me into his house, and gave me a plaster, look you, here 'tis:—and, sir, there was a young wench washed my face and hands most excellently; i' faith, I shall love her as long as I live for't.—Did she not, Poggio?

Pog. Yes, and kissed him too.

Ber. Why, la, now, you think I tell a lie, uncle, 'I warrant.

Don. Would he that beat thy blood out of thy head had beaten some wit into it! for I fear thou never wilt have any.

Ber. O, uncle, but there was a wench would have done a man's heart good to have looked on her.—By this light, she had a face methinks worth twenty of you, Mistress Annabella.

Don. [Aside] Was ever such a fool born!

Ann. I am glad she·liked1 you sir.

Ber. Are you so? by my troth, I thank you, for sooth.

Flo. Sure, 'twas the doctor's niece, that was last day with us here.

Ber. 'Twas she, 'twas she.

Don. How do you know that, simplicity?

Ber. Why, does not he say so? if I should have said no, I should have given him the lie, uncle, and so have deserved a dry beating again: I'll none of that.

Flo. A very modest well-behaved young maid As I have seen.

Don. Is she indeed?

Flo. Indeed she is, if I have any judgment.

Don. Well, sir, now you are free: you need not care for sending letters now; you are dismissed, your mistress here will none of you.

Ber. No! why, what care I for that? I can have wenches enough in Parma for half-a-crown a-piece:—cannot I, Poggio?

Pog. I'll warrant you, sir.

Don. Signior Florio,

I thank you for your free recourse you gave

For my admittance: and to you, fair maid,

That jewel I will give you 'gainst your marriage.—

Come, will you go, sir?

Ber. Ay, marry, will I.—Mistress, farewell, mistress; I'll come again to-morrow; farewell, mistress.

Exeunt Donado, Bergetto, and Poggio.

Enter GIOVANNI.

Flo. Son, where have you been? what, alone, alone still?

I would not have it so; you must forsake
This over-bookish humour. Well, your sister
Hath shook the fool off.

Gio. 'Twas no match for her.

Flo. 'Twas not indeed; I meant it nothing less; Soranzo is the man I only like:—

Look on him, Annabella.—Come, 'tis supper-time,
And it grows late.

[Exit.

Gio. Whose jewel's that?

Ann. Some sweetheart's.

Gio. So I think.

Ann. A lusty youth,

Signior Donado, gave it me to wear

Against my marriage.

Gio. But you shall not wear it:

Send it him back again,

Ann. What, you are jealous?

Gio. That you shall know anon, at better leisure. Welcome sweet night! the evening crowns the day.

[Excunt,

ACT THE THIRD.

SCENE I .- A Room in DONADO'S House.

Enter Bergetto and Poggio.

ERGETTO. Does my uncle think to make me a baby still? No, Poggio; he shall know I have a sconce now.

Peg. Ay, let him not bob you off like an ape with an apple.

Ber. 'Sfoot, I will have the wench, if he were ten uncles, in despite of his nose, Poggio.

Pog. Hold him to the grindstone, and give not a jot of ground: she hath in a manner promised you already.

Ber. True, Poggio; and her uncle, the doctor, swore I should marry her.

Pog. He swore; I remember.

Ber. And I will have her, that's more: didst see the codpiece-point she gave me and the box of marmalade?

Pog. Very well; and kissed you, that my chops watered at the sight on't. There's no way but to clap-up a marriage in hugger-mugger.

Ber. I will do't; for I tell thee, Poggio, I begin to grow valiant methinks, and my courage begins to rise.

Pog. Should you be afraid of your uncle?

Ber. Hang him, old doting rascal! no: I say I will have her.

Pog. Lose no time, then.

Ber. I will beget a race of wise men and constables that shall cart whores at their own charges; and break the duke's peace ere I have done myself. Come away.

[Exeunt.

SCENE II.-A Room in FLORIO'S House.

Enter Florio, Giovanni, Soranzo, Annabella, Putana, and Vasques.

Flo. My Lord Soranza, though I must confess The proffers that are made me have been great In marriage of my daughter, yet the hope Of your still rising honours have prevailed Above all other jointures: here she is; She knows my mind; speak for yourself to her,—And hear, you, daughter, see you use him nobly: For any private speech I'll give you time.—Come, son, and you the rest; let them alone; Agree they as they may.

Sor.

I thank you, sir.

Gio. [Aside to Annabelia]. Sister, be not all woman; think on me.

Sor. Vasques,-

Vas.

My lord?

Sor.

Attend me without.

[Exeunt all but Soranzo and Annabella.

Ann. Sir, what's your will with me?

Sor.

Do you not know

What I should tell you?

Ann.

Yes; you'll say you love me.

Sor. And I will swear it too; will you believe it?

Ann. 'Tis no point of faith.

Enter GIOVANNI in the Gallery above.

Sor.

Have you not will to love?

Ann. Not you.

Sor.

Whom then?

Ann. That's as the fates infer. Gio. [Aside] Of those I'm regent now. What mean you, sweet? Sor. Ann. To live and die a maid. O, that's unfit. Sor. Gio. [Aside] Here's one can say that's but a woman's note. Sor. Did you but see my heart, then would you swear-Ann. That you were dead. Gio. [Aside] That's true, or somewhat near it. Sor. See you these true love's tears? No. Ann. Gio. [Aside] Now she winks. Sor. They plead to you for grace. Yet nothing speak. Ann. Sor. O, grant my suit! What is it? Ann. Sor. To let me live— Ann. Take it. Sor. Still yours. That is not mine to give. Ann.Gio. [Aside] One such another word would kill his hopes. Sor. Mistress, to leave those fruitless strifes of wit, Know I have loved you long and loved you truly: Not hope of what you have, but what you are, Hath drawn me on; then let me not in vain Still feel the rigour of your chaste disdain: I'm sick, and sick to the heart. Help, aqua-vitæ! Ann. Sor. What mean you? Why, I thought you had been sick. Sor. Do you mock my love? Gio. [Aside] There, sir, she was too nimble. Sor. [Aside] 'Tis' plain she laughs at me.—These scornful taunts

Neither become your modesty or years.

Ann. You are no looking-glass: or if you were, I'd dress my language by you.

Gio. [Aside]

I'm confirmed.

Ann. To put you out of doubt, my lord, methinks Your common sense should make you understand That if I loved you, or desired your love, Some way I should have given you better taste: But since you are a nobleman, and one I would not wish should spend his youth in hopes, Let me advise you to forbear your suit, And think I wish you well, I tell you this.

Sor. Is't you speak this?

Ann.

Yes, I myself; yet know,—

Thus far I give you comfort,—if mine eyes
Could have picked out a man amongst all those
That sued to me to make a husband of,
You should have been that man: let this suffice;
Be noble in your secrecy and wise.

Gio. [Aside] Why, now I see she loves me.

Ann. One wor

One word more.

As ever virtue lived within your mind,
As ever noble courses were your guide,
As ever you would have me know you loved me,
Let not my father know hereof by you:
If I hereafter find that I must marry,
It shall be you or none.

Sor.

I take that promise.

Ann. O, O my head!

Sor. What's the matter? not well?

Ann. O, I begin to sicken!

Gio.

Heaven forbid!

[Aside, and exit from above.

Sor. Help, help, within there, ho!

Re-enter FLORIO, GIOVANNI, and PUTANA. Look to your daughter, Signior Florio. Flo. Hold her up, she swoons.

Gio. Sister, how d'ye?

Ann. Sick,—brother, are you there?

Flo. Convey her to her bed instantly, whilst I send for a physician: quickly, I say.

Put. Alas, poor child!

[Exeunt all but SORANZO.

Re-enter VASQUES.

Vas. My lord,—

Sor. O, Vasques, now I doubly am undone Both in my present and my future hopes! She plainly told me that she could not love, And thereupon soon sickened; and I fear Her life's in danger.

Vas. [Aside] By'r lady, sir, and so is yours, it you knew all.—'Las, sir, I am sorry for that: may be 'tis but the maid's-sickness, an over-flux of youth; and then, sir, there is no such present remedy as present marriage. But hath she given you an absolute denial?

Sor. She hath, and she hath not; I'm full of grief:
But what she said I'll tell thee as we go.

[Exeunt.

SCENE III.—Another Room in the same.

Enter GIOVANNI and PUTANA.

Put. O, sir, we are all undone, quite undone, utterly undone, and shamed for ever! your sister, O, your sister!

Gio. What of her? for Heaven's sake, speak; how does she?

Put. O, that ever I was born to see this day!

Gio. She is not dead, ha? is she?

Put. Dead! no, she is quick; 'tis worse, she is with child. You know what you have done; Heaven forgive ye! 'tis too late to repent now, Heaven help us!

Gio. With child? how dost thou know't?

Put. How do I know't! am I at these years ignorant what the meanings of qualms and water-pangs be? of changing of colours, queasiness of stomachs, pukings, and another thing that I could name? Do not, for her and your credit's sake, spend the time in asking how, and which way, 'tis so: she is quick, upon my word: if you let a physician see her water, you're undone.

Gio. But in what case is she?

Put. Prettily amended: 'twas but a fit, which I soon espied, and she must look for often henceforward.

Gio. Commend me to her, bid her take no care; 1 Let not the doctor visit her, I charge you; Make some excuse, till I return.—O, me! I have a world of business in my head.— Do not discomfort her.—
How do these news perplex me!—If my father Come to her, tell him she's recovered well;

Say 'twas but some ill diet—d'ye hear, woman?

Put. I will, sir.

Look you to't.

[Exeunt.

SCENE IV.—Another Room in the same,

Enter FLORIO and RICHARDETTO.

Flo. And how d'ye find her, sir? Rich.

Indifferent well;

I see no danger, scarce perceive she's sick, But that she told me she had lately eaten Melons, and, as she thought, those disagreed With her young stomach.

Flo. Did you give her aught?

Rich. An easy surfeit-water, nothing else. You need not doubt her health: I rather think Her sickness is a fulness of the blood,—You understand me?

1 Not be too anxious.

Flo. I do; you counsel well; And once, within these few days, will so order 't She shall be married ere she know the time.

Rich. Yet let not haste, sir, make unworthy choice; That were dishonour.

Flo. Master Doctor, no;

I will not do so neither: in plain words, My Lord Soranzo is the man I mean.

Rich. A noble and a virtuous gentleman.

Flo. As any is in Parma. Not far hence Dwells Father Bonaventure, a grave friar, Once tutor to my son: now at his cell

I'll have 'em married.

Rich. You have plotted wisely.

Flo. I'll send one straight to speak with him to-night.

Rich. Soranzo's wise; he will delay no time.

Flo. It shall be so.

Enter Friar and GIOVANNI.

Friar. Good peace be here and love!

Flo. Welcome, religious friar; you are one That still bring blessing to the place you come to.

Gio. Sir, with what speed I could, I did my best To draw this holy man from forth his cell To visit my sick sister; that with words Of ghostly comfort, in this time of need, He might absolve her, whether she live or die.

Flo. 'Twas well done, Giovanni; thou herein Hast showed a Christian's care, a brother's love. Come, father, I'll conduct you to her chamber, And one thing would entreat you.

Friar. Say on, sir.

Flo. I have a father's dear impression
And wish, before I fall into my grave,
That I might see her married, as 'tis fit:
A word from you, grave man, will win her more
Than all our best persuasions.

Friar. Gentle sir,

All this I'll say, that Heaven may prosper her. | Exeunt.

SCENE V.-A Room in RICHARDETTO'S House.

Enter GRIMALDI.

Grim. Now if the doctor keep his word, Soranzo, Twenty to one you miss your bride. I know 'Tis an unnoble act, and not becomes A soldier's valour; but in terms of love, Where merit cannot sway, policy must: I am resolved, if this physician Play not on both hands, then Soranzo falls.

Enter RICHARDETTO.

Rich. You're come as I could wish; this very night Soranzo, 'tis ordained, must be affied ¹ To Annabella, and, for aught I know, Married.

Grim. How!

Rich. Yet your patience:—
The place, 'tis Friar Bonaventure's cell.
Now I would wish you to bestow this night
In watching thereabouts; 'tis but a night:
If you miss now, to-morrow I'll know all.

Grim. Have you the poison?

Rich. Here 'tis, in this box:

Doubt nothing, this will do't; in any case, As you respect your life, be quick and sure.

Grim. I'll speed him.

Rich. Do.—Away; for 'tis not safe

You should be seen much here. Ever my love!

Grim. And mine to you.

[Exit.

Rich. So! if this hit, I'll laugh and hug revenge; And they that now dream of a wedding-feast May chance to mourn the lusty bridegroom's ruin. But to my other business.—Niece Philotis!

Enter Philotis.

Phi. Uncle ?

1 Contracted.

Rich. My lovely niece!
You have bethought ye?

Phi. Yes,—and, as you counselled,

Fashioned my heart to love him: but he swears

He will to-night be married: for he fears

His uncle else, if he should know the drift,

Will hinder all, and call his coz to shrift.

Rich. To-night! why, best of all: but, let me see—Ay—ha! yes, so it shall be—in disguise We'll early to the friar's; I have thought on't.

Phi. Uncle, he comes.

Enter Bergetto and Poggio.

Rich. Welcome, my worthy coz.

Ber. Lass, pretty lass, come buss, lass!—A-ha, Poggio!

[Kisses her.]

Rich. [Aside.] There's hope of this yet.— You shall have time enough; withdraw a little; We must confer at large.

Ber. Have you not sweetmeats or dainty devices for me?

Phi. You shall have enough, sweetheart.

Ber. Sweetheart! mark that, Poggio.—By my troth, I cannot choose but kiss thee once more for that word, "sweetheart."—Poggio, I have a monstrous swelling about my stomach. whatsoever the matter be.

Pog. You shall have physic for't, sir.

Rich. Time runs apace.

Ber. Time's a blockhead.

Rich. Be ruled: when we have done what's fit to do, Then you may kiss your fill, and bed her too. [Exeunt.

SCENE VI.—Annabella's Chamber.

A toble with wax lights; Annabella at confession before the Friar; she weeps and wrings her hands.

Friar. I'm glad to see this penance; for, believe me,

You have unripped a soul so foul and guilty,
As, I must tell you true, I marvel how
The earth hath borne you up: but weep, weep on,
These tears may do you good; weep faster yet,
Whiles I do read a lecture.

Ann. Wretched creature!

Friar. Ay, you are wretched, miserably wretched, Almost condemned alive. There is a place,— List, daughter!—in a black and hollow vault, Where day is never seen; there shines no sun, But flaming horror of consuming fires, A lightless sulphur, choked with smoky fogs Of an infected darkness: in this place Dwell many thousand thousand sundry sorts Of never-dying deaths: there damned souls Roar without pity; there are gluttons fed With toads and adders; there is burning oil Poured down the drunkard's throat; the usurer Is forced to sup whole draughts of molten gold; There is the murderer for ever stabbed, Yet can he never die; there lies the wanton On racks of burning steel, whiles in his soul He feels the torment of his raging lust.

Ann. Mercy! O, mercy!

Who have dreamed out whole years in lawless sheets
And secret incests, cursing one another.
Then you will wish each kiss your brother gave
Had been a dagger's point; then you shall hear
How he will cry, "O, would my wicked sister
Had first been damned, when she did yield to lust!"—
But soft, methinks I see repentance work
New motions in your heart: say, how is't with you?

Ann. Is there no way left to redeem my miseries?

Friar. There is, despair not; Heaven is merciful,
And offers grace even now. 'Tis thus agreed:
First, for your honour's safety, that you marry

My Lord Soranzo; next, to save your soul, Leave off this life, and henceforth live to him.

Ann. Ay me!

Friar. Sigh not; I know the baits of sin

Are hard to leave; O, 'tis a death to do't:

Remember what must come. Are you content?

Ann. I am.

Friar. I like it well; we'll take the time.—

Who's near us there?

Enter FLORIO and GIOVANNI.

Flo. Did you call, father?

Friar. Is Lord Soranzo come?

Flo. He stays below.

Friar. Have you acquainted him at full?

Flo. I have,

And he is overjoyed.

Friar. And so are we.

Bid him come near.

Gio. [Aside] My sister weeping! Ha!

I fear this friar's falsehood.—I will call him. [Exit

Flo. Daughter, are you resolved?

Ann. Father, I am.

Re-enter GIOVANNI with SORANZO and VASQUES.

Flo. My Lord Soranzo, here

Give me your hand; for that I give you this.

[Joins their hands.

Sor. Lady, say you so too?

Ann. I do, and vow

To live with you and yours.

Friar. Timely resolved:

My blessing rest on both! More to be done,

You may perform it on the morning sun.

Ford.

Exeunt.

SCENE VII.—The Street before the Monastery.

Enter GRIMALDI with his rapier drawn and a dark lantern.

Grim. 'Tis early night as yet, and yet too soon
To finish such a work; here I will lie
To listen who comes next.

[He lies down.

Enter Bergetto and Philotis disguised, followed at a short distance by Richardetto and Poggio.

Ber. We are almost at the place, I hope, sweetheart.

Grim. [Aside] I hear them near, and heard one say

"sweetheart."

'Tis he; now guide my hand, some angry justice, Home to his bosom!—Now have at you, sir!

[Stabs Bergetto and exit. Ber. O, help, help! here's a stitch fallen in my guts: O for a flesh-tailor quickly!—Poggio!

Phi. What ails my love?

Ber. I am sure I cannot piss forward and backward, and yet I am wet before and behind.—Lights! lights! ho, lights!

Phi. Alas, some villain here has slain my love!

Rich. O, Heaven forbid it!—Raise up the next neighbours

Instantly, Poggio, and bring lights. [Exit Poggio.]
How is't. Bergetto? slain! It cannot be;
Are you sure you're hurt?

Ber. O, my belly seethes like a porridge-pot! Some cold water, I shall boil over else; my whole body is in a sweat, that you may wring my shirt; feel here.—Why, Poggio!

Re-enter Poggio with Officers and lights.

Pog. Here. Alas, how do you?

Rich. Give me a light.—What's here? all blood!—O, sirs,

Signior Donado's nephew now is slain.

Follow the murderer with all the haste Up to the city, he cannot be far hence: Follow, I beseech you.

Officers. Follow, follow! [Exeunt.

Rich. Tear off thy linen, coz, to stop his wounds.—Be of good comfort, man.

Ber. Is all this mine own blood? nay, then, good night with me.—Poggio, commend me to my uncle, dost hear? bid him, for my sake, make much of this wench.—O, I am going the wrong way sure, my belly aches so.—O, farewell, Poggio!—O, O!

[Dies.]

Phi. O, he is dead!

Pog.

How! dead!

Rich. He's dead indeed;

'Tis now too late to weep: let's have him home, And with what speed we may find out the murderer.

Pog. O, my master! my master! my master!

[Exeunt.

SCENE VIII .- A Room in HIPPOLITA'S House.

Enter VASQUES and HIPPOLITA.

Hip. Betrothed?

Vas. I saw it.

Hip. And when's the marriage-day?

Vas.

Some two days hence.

Hip. Two days! why, man, I would but wish two hours

To send him to his last and lasting sleep;

And, Vasques, thou shalt see I'll do it bravely.

Vas. I do not doubt your wisdom, nor, I trust, you my secrecy; I am infinitely yours.

Hip. I will be thine in spite of my disgrace.—
So soon? O wicked man, I durst be sworn
He'd laugh to see me weep.

Vas. And that's a villanous fault in him.

Hip. No, let him laugh; I'm armed in my resolves: Be thou still true.

Vas. I should get little by treachery against so hopeful a preferment as I am like to climb to.

Hip. Even to—my bosom, Vasques. Let my youth Revel in these new pleasures: if we thrive, He now hath but a pair of days to live. [Exeunt.

SCENE IX.—The Street before the Cardinal's Gates.

Enter Florio, Donado, Richardetto, Poggio, and Officers.

Flo. 'Tis bootless now to show yourself a child, Signior Donado; what is done, is done: Spend not the time in tears, but seek for justice.

Rich. I must confess somewhat I was in fault That had not first acquainted you what love Passed 'twixt him and my niece; but, as I live, His fortune grieves me as it were mine own.

Don. Alas, poor creature! he meant no man harm, That I am sure of.

Flo. I believe that too.

But stay, my masters: are you sure you saw The murderer pass here?

ruffian, with a naked weapon in his hand all bloody, get into my lord cardinal's grace's gate; that we are sure of; but for fear of his grace—bless us!—we durst go no farther.

Don. Know you what manner of man he was?

1st Off. Yes, sure, I know the man; they say he is a soldier; he that loved your daughter, sir, an't please ye; 'twas he for certain.

Flo. Grimaldi, on my life!

ist Off.

Ay, ay, the same.

Rich. The cardinal is noble; he no doubt Will give true justice.

Don.

Knock some one at the gate.

Pog. I'll knock, sir.

[Knocks.

Serv. [Within.] What would ye?

Flo. We require speech with the lord cardinal About some present business: pray inform His grace that we are here.

Enter the Cardinal, followed by GRIMALDI.

Car. Why, how now, friends! what saucy mates are you

That know nor duty nor civility?

Are we a person fit to be your host;

Or is our house become your common inn,

To beat our doors at pleasure? What such haste
Is yours, as that it cannot wait fit times?

Are you the masters of this commonwealth,

And know no more discretion? O, your news
Is here before you; you have lost a nephew,

Donado, last night by Grimaldi slain:
Is that your business? well, sir, we have knowledge on't;

Let that suffice.

Grim. In presence of your grace,
In thought I never meant Bergetto harm:
But, Florio, you can tell with how much scorn
Soranzo, backed with his confederates,
Hath often wronged me; I to be revenged,—
For that I could not win him else to fight,—
Had thought by way of ambush to have killed him,
But was unluckily therein mistook;
Else he had felt what late Bergetto did:
And though my fault to him were merely chance,
Yet humbly I submit me to your grace,
[Kneeling.
To do with me as you please.

Car.

Rise up, Grimaldi.—[He rises.

You citizens of Parma, if you seek
For justice, know, as nuncio from the pope,
For this offence I here receive Grimaldi
Into his holmess' protection:
He is no common man, but nobly born,
Of princes' blood, though you, Sir Florio,
Thought him too mean a husband for your daughter.
If more you seek for, you must go to Rome,
For he shall thither: learn more wit, for shame.—
Bury your dead.—Away, Grimaldi; leave 'em!

[Exeunt Cardinal and Grimaldi.

Don. Is this a churchman's voice? dwells justice here?

Flo. Justice is fled to Heaven, and comes no nearer.

Soranzo! -was't for him? O, impudence!

Had he the face to speak it, and not blush?

Come, come, Donado, there's no help in this,

When cardinals think murder's not amiss.

Great men may do their wills, we must obey;

But Heaven will judge them for't another day. [Exeunt.

ACT THE FOURTH.

SCENE I .- A Room in FLORIO'S House.

A banquet set out; hautboys. Enter the Friat, GIOVANNI, ANNABELLA, PHILOTIS, SORANZO, DONADO, FLORIO, RICHARDETTO, PUTANA, and VASQUES.

RIAR. These holy rites performed, now take your times

To spend the remnant of the day in feast:

Such fit repasts are pleasing to the saints,

Who are your guests, though not with To be beheld.—Long prosper in this day, [mortal eyes You happy couple, to each other's joy!

Sor. Father, your prayer is heard; the hand of good-

Hath been a shield for me against my death:
And, more to bless me, hath enriched my life
With this most precious jewel; such a prize
As earth hath not another like to this.—
Cheer up, my love:—and, gentlemen my friends,
Rejoice with me in mirth: this day we'll crown
With lusty cups to Annabella's health.

Gio. [Aside] O torture! were the marriage yet undone, Ere I'd endure this sight, to see my love Clipt 1 by another, I would dare confusion, And stand the horror of ten thousand deaths.

1 Embraced.

Vas. Are you not well, sir?

Gio. P

Prithee, fellow, wait;

I need not thy officious diligence.

Flo. Signior Donado, come, you must forget

Your late mishaps, and drown your cares in wine.

Sor. Vasques!

Vas.

My lord?

Sor.

Reach me that weighty bowl.

Here, brother Giovanni, here's to you;

Your turn come next, though now a bachelor;

Here's to your sister's happiness and mine!

[Drinks and offers him the bowl.

Gio. I cannot drink.

Sor.

What!

Gio.

'Twill indeed offend me.

Ann. Pray, do not urge him, if he be not willing.

[Hautboys.

Flo. How now! what noise 1 is this?

Vas. O, sir, I had forgot to tell you; certain young maidens of Parma, in honour to Madam Annabella's marriage, have sent their loves to her in a Masque, for which they humbly crave your patience and silence.

Sor. We are much bound to them; so much the more As it comes unexpected: guide them in.

Enter HIPPOLITA, followed by Ladies in white robes with garlands of willows, all masked. Music and a dance.

Thanks, lovely virgins! now might we but know To whom we've been beholding for this love, We shall acknowledge it.

Hip.

Yes, you shall know. [Unmasks.

What think you now?

All.

Hippolita!

Hip.

'Tis she;

Be not amazed; nor blush, young lovely bride; I come not to defraud you of your man:

¹ Music.

'Tis now no time to reckon-up the talk
What Parma long hath rumoured of us both:
Let rash report run on; the breath that vents it
Will, like a bubble, break itself at last.
But now to you, sweet creature; lend's your hand;—
Perhaps it hath been said that I would claim
Some interest in Soranzo, now your lord;
What I have right to do, his soul knows best:
But in my duty to your noble worth,
Sweet Annabella, and my care of you,—
Here, take, Soranzo, take this hand from me;
I'll once more join what by the holy church
Is finished and allowed.—Have I done well?

Sor. You have too much engaged us.

Hip. One thing more.

That you may know my single 1 charity, Freely I here remit all interest

I e'er could claim, and give you back your vows;

And to confirm't,—reach me a cup of wine,—

[VASQUES gives her a poisoned cut.

My Lord Soranzo, in this draught I drink

Long rest t'ye! [She drinks].—[Aside to VASQUES] Look to it, Vasques.

Vas. [Aside to HIPPOLITA] Fear nothing.

Sor. Hippolita, I thank you; and will pledge This happy union as another life.—
Wine, there!

Vas. You shall have none; neither shall you pledge her.

Hip. How!

Vas. Know now, Mistress She-devil, your own mischievous treachery hath killed you; I must not marry you.

Hip. Villain!

All. What's the matter?

Vas. Foolish woman, thou art now like a firebrand

1 Single-minded.

that hath kindled others and burnt thyself:—troppo sperar, inganna,1—thy vain hope hath deceived thee; thou art but dead; if thou hast any grace, pray.

Hip. Monster!

Vas. Die in charity, for shame.—This thing of malice, this woman, had privately corrupted me with promise of marriage, under this politic reconciliation, to poison my lord, whiles she might laugh at his confusion on his marriage-day. I promised her fair; but I knew what my reward should have been, and would willingly have spared her life, but that I was acquainted with the danger of her disposition; and now have fitted her a just payment in her own coin: there she is, she hath yet2---and end thy days in peace, vile woman; as for life, there's no hope; think not on't.

All. Wonderful justice!

Rich. Heaven, thou art righteous.

O, 'tis true; Hip.

I feel my minute coming. Had that slave Kept promise,—O, my torment !—thou this hour Hadst died, Soranzo;—heat above hell-fire!— Yet, ere I pass away,—cruel, cruel flames!— Take here my curse amongst you: may thy bed Of marriage be a rack unto thy heart, Burn blood, and boil in vengeance;—O, my heart, My flame's intolerable!—mayst thou live To father bastards; may her womb bring forth Monsters,—and die together in your sins, Hated, scorned, and unpitied !—O, O!

Dies.

Flo. Was e'er so vile a creature!

Rich. Here're the end

Of lust and pride.

It is a fearful sight. Ann.

Sor. Vasques, I know thee now a trusty servant,

The old copy has a considerable double break here, probably</sup> from some defect in the MS.

And never will forget thee.—Come, my love, We'll home, and thank the heavens for this escape.— Father and friends, we must break up this mirth; It is too sad a feast.

Don. Bear hence the body.

Friar. [Aside to GIOVANNI] Here's an ominous change!

Mark this, my Giovanni, and take heed!—

I fear the event: that marriage seldom's good

Where the bride-banquet so begins in blood. [Exeunt.

SCENE II.—A Room in RICHARDETTO'S House.

Enter RICHARDETTO and PHILOTIS.

Rich. My wretched wife, more wretched in her shame Than in her wrongs to me, hath paid too soon The forfeit of her modesty and life. And I am sure, my niece, though vengeance hover, Keeping aloof yet from Soranzo's fall, Yet he will fall, and sink with his own weight. I need not now—my heart persuades me so— To further his confusion; there is One Above begins to work: for, as I hear, Debates already 'twixt his wife and him Thicken and run to head; she, as 'tis said, Slightens his love, and he abandons hers: Much talk I hear. Since things go thus, my niece, In tender love and pity of your youth, My counsel is, that you should free your years From hazard of these woes by flying hence To fair Cremona, there to vow your soul In holiness, a holy votaress: Leave me to see the end of these extremes. All human worldly courses are uneven; No life is blessed but the way to Heaven.

Phi. Uncle, shall I resolve to be a nun?

Rich. Ay, gentle niece; and in your hourly prayers

Remember me, your poor unhappy uncle.

Hie to Cremona now, as fortune leads,

Your home your cloister, your best friends your beads:

Your chaste and single life shall crown your birth:

Who dies a virgin lives a saint on earth.

Phi. Then farewell, world, and worldly thoughts, adieu!

Welcome, chaste vows; myself I yield to you. [Exeunt.

SCENE III.—A Chamber in SORANZO'S House.

Enter Soranzo unbraced, and dragging in Annabella. Sor. Come, strumpet, famous whore! were every drop Of blood that runs in thy adulterous veins A life, this sword—dost see't?—should in one blow Confound them all. Harlot, rare, notable harlot, That with thy brazen face maintain'st thy sin, Was there no man in Parma to be bawd To your loose cunning whoredom else but I? Must your hot itch and plurisy of lust, The heyday of your luxury, be fed Up to a surfeit, and could none but I Be picked out to be cloak to your close tricks, Your belly sports? Now I must be the dad To all that gallimaufry that is stuffed In thy corrupted bastard-bearing womb! Say, must I?

Ann. Beastly man! why, 'tis thy fate. I sued not to thee; for, but that I thought Your over-loving lordship would have run Mad on denial, had ye lent me time, I would have told ye in what case I was: But you would needs be doing.

1 Luxury was commonly used in the sense of lust.

Sor.

Whore of whores!

Darest thou tell me this?

Ann.

O, yes; why not?

You were deceived in me; 'twas not for love' I chose you, but for honour: yet know this, Would you be patient yet, and hide your shame, I'd see whether I could love you.

Sor.

Excellent quean!

Why, art thou not with child?

Ann.

What needs all this,

When 'tis superfluous? I confess I am.

Sor. Tell me by whom.

Ann.

Soft! 'twas not in my bargain.

Yet somewhat, sir, to stay your longing stomach, I am content t' acquaint you with; the man, The more than man, that got this sprightly boy,— For 'tis a boy, and therefore glory, sir, Your heir shall be a son—

Sor.

Damnable monster!

Ann. Nay, an you will not hear, I'll speak no more.

Sor. Yes, speak, and speak thy last.

Ann.

A match! a match!

This noble creature was in every part
So angel-like, so glorious, that a woman
Who had not been but human, as was I,
Would have kneeled to him, and have begged for love.—
You! why, you are not worthy once to name
His name without true worship, or, indeed,
Unless you kneeled, to hear another name him.

Sor. What was he called?

Ann.

We are not come to that;

Let it suffice that you shall have the glory
To father what so brave a father got.
In brief, had not this chance fall'n out as't doth,
I never had been troubled with a thought
That you had been a creature:—but for marriage,
I scarce dream yet of that.

Sor.

Tell me his name.

Ann. Alas, alas, there's all! will you believe?

Sor. What?

Ann.

You shall never know.

Sor.

How!

Ann.

Never: if

You do, let me cursed!

Sor. Not know it, strumpet! I'll rip up thy heart, And find it there.

Ann.

Do, do.

Sor.

And with my teeth

Tear the prodigious lecher joint by joint.

Ann. Ha, ha, ha! the man's merry.

Sor.

Dost thou laugh?

Come, whore, tell me your lover, or, by truth,

I'll hew thy flesh to shreds; who is't?

Ann. [Sings] Che morte più dolce che morire per amore? 1

Sor. Thus will I pull thy hair, and thus I'll drag Thy lust-be-lepered body through the dust.

[Hales her up and down.

Yet tell his name.

Ann. [Sings] Morendo in grazia dee morire senza dolore.2

Sor. Dost thou triúmph? The treasures of the earth

Shall not redeem thee; were there kneeling kings

Did beg thy life, or angels did come down

To plead in tears, yet should not all prevail

Against my rage: dost thou not tremble yet?

Ann. At what? to die! no, be a gallant hangman; 3

I dare thee to the worst: strike, and strike home;

I leave revenge behind, and thou shalt feel't.

Sor. Yet tell me ere thou diest, and tell me truly, Knows thy old father this?

What death sweeter than to die for love?

² To die in grace is to die without sorrow.

³ Executioner.

Ann. No, by my life.

Sor. Wilt thou confess, and I will spare thy/life?

Ann. My life! I will not buy my life so dear.

Sor. I will not slack my vengeance.

[Draws his sword.

Enter VASQUES.

Vas. What d'ye mean, sir?

Sor. Forbear, Vasques; such a damned whore Deserves no pity.

Vas. Now the gods forfend!

And would you be her executioner, and kill her in your rage too? O, 'twere most unmanlike. She is your wife: what faults have been done by her before she married you were not against you: alas, poor lady, what hath she committed, which any lady in Italy, in the like case, would not? Sir, you must be ruled by your reason, and not by your fury; that were unhuman and beastly.

Sor. She shall not live.

Vas. Come, she must. You would have her confess the author of her present misfortunes, I warrant ye; 'tis an unconscionable demand, and she should lose the estimation that I, for my part, hold of her worth, if she had done it: why, sir, you ought not, of all men living, to know it. Good sir, be reconciled: alas, good gentlewoman!

Ann. Pish, do not beg for me; I prize my life As nothing; if the man will needs be mad, Why, let him take it.

Sor. Vasques, hear'st thou this?

Vas. Yes, and commend her for it; in this she shows the nobleness of a gallant spirit, and beshrew my heart, but it becomes her rarely.—[Aside to SORANZO] Sir, in any case, smother your revenge; leave the scenting-out your wrongs to me: be ruled, as you respect your honour, or you mar all.—[Aloud] Sir, if ever my service were of any credit with you, be not so violent in your distractions: you are married now; what a triumph might the report of this give to other neglected suitors! 'Tis as manlike to bear extremities as godlike to forgive.

Sor. O, Vasques, Vasques, in this piece of flesh,
This faithless face of hers, had I laid up
The treasure of my heart!—Hadst thou been virtuous,
Fair, wicked woman, not the matchless joys
Of life itself had made me wish to live
With any saint but thee: deceitful creature,
How hast thou mocked my hopes, and in the shame
Of thy lewd womb even buried me alive!
I did too dearly love thee.

Vas. [Aside to SORANZO] This is well; follow this temper with some passion: be brief and moving; 'tis for the purpose.

Sor. Be witness to my words thy soul and thoughts; And tell me, didst not think that in my heart I did too superstitiously adore thee?

Ann. I must confess I know you loved me well.

Sor. And wouldst thou use me thus! O Annabella, Be thou assured, whoe'er the villain was That thus hath tempted thee to this disgrace, Well he might lust, but never loved like'me: He doted on the picture that hung out Upon thy cheeks to please his humorous eye; Not on the part I loved, which was thy heart, And, as I thought, thy virtues.

Ann. O, my lord!

These words wound deeper than your sword could do.

Vas. Let me not ever take comfort, but I begin to weep myself, so much I pity him: why, madam, I knew, when his rage was over-past, what it would come to.

Sor. Forgive me, Annabella. Though thy youth Hath tempted thee above thy strength to folly, Yet will not I forget what I should be, And what I am—a husband; in that name Is hid divinity: if I do find

That thou wilt yet be true, here I remit All former faults, and take thee to my bosom.

Vas. By my troth, and that's a point of noble charity.

Ann. Sir, on my knees,—

Sor. Rise up, you shall not kneel.

Get you to your chamber; see you make no show

Of alteration; I'll be with you straight:

My reason tells me now that "'tis as common

To err in frailty as to be a woman." Go to your chamber.

[Exit Annabella.

Vas. So! this was somewhat to the matter: what do you think of your heaven of happiness now, sir?

Sor. I carry hell about me; all my blood Is fired in swift revenge.

Vas. That may be; but know you how, or on whom? Alas, to marry a great woman, being made great ine he stock to your hand, is a usual sport in these days; buknow what ferret it was that hunted your cony-berry,—there's the cunning.

Sor. I'll make her tell herself, or-

Vas. Or what? you must not do so; let me yet persuade your sufferance a little while: go to her, use her mildly; win her, if it be possible, to a voluntary, to a weeping tune: for the rest, if all hit, I will not miss my mark. Pray, sir, go in: the next news I tell you shall be wonders.

Sor. Delay in vengeance gives a heavier blow. [Exit. Vas. Ah, sirrah, here's work for the nonce! I had a suspicion of a bad matter in my head a pretty whiles ago; but after my madam's scurvy looks here at home, her waspish perverseness and loud fault-finding, then I remembered the proverb, that "where hens crow, and cocks hold their peace, there are sorry houses." 'Sfoot, if the lower parts of a she-tailor's cunning can cover such a swelling in the stomach, I'll never blame a false stitch in a shoe whiles I live again. Up, and up so quick? and so quickly too? 'twere a fine policy to learn by whom: this must be known; and I have thought on't:—

Enter PUTANA in tears.

Here's the way, or none.—What, crying, old mistress! alas, alas, I cannot blame ye; we have a lord, Heaven help us, is so mad as the devil himself, the more shame for him.

Put. O, Vasques, that ever I was born to see this day! Doth he use thee so too sometimes, Vasques?

Vas. Me? why he makes a dog of me: but if some were of my mind, I know what we would do. As sure as I am an honest man, he will go near to kill my lady with unkindness: say she be with child, is that such a matter for a young woman of her years to be blamed for?

Jut. Alas, good heart, it is against her will full sore.

Vas. I durst be sworn all his madness is for that she will not confess whose 'tis, which he will know; and when he doth know it, I am so well acquainted with his humour, that he will forget all straight. Well, I could wish she would in plain terms tell all, for that's the way, indeed.

Put. Do you think so?

Vas. Foh, I know't; provided that he did not win her to 't by force. He was once in a mind that you could tell, and meant to have wrung it out of you; but I somewhat pacified him for that: yet, sure, you know a great deal.

Put. Heaven forgive us all! I know a little, Vasques, Vas. Why should you not? who else should? Upon my conscience, she loves you dearly; and you would not betray her to any affliction for the world.

Put. Not for all the world, by my faith and troth, Vasques.

Vas. 'Twere pity of your life if you should; but in this you should both relieve her present discomforts, pacify my lord, and gain yourself everlasting love and preferment.

Put. Dost think so, Vasques?

Vas. Nay, I know't; sure 'twas some near and entire friend.

Put. 'Twas a dear friend indeed; but-

Vas. But what? fear not to name him; my lifte between you and danger: 'faith, I think 'twas no base for low.

Put. Thou wilt stand between me and harm?

Vas. 'Ud's pity, what else? you shall be newarded too, trust me.

Put. 'Twas even no worse than her own brothe'

Vas. Her brother Giovanni, I warrant ye!

Put. Even he, Vasques; as brave a gentleman astever kissed fair lady. O, they love most perpetually.

Vas. A brave gentleman indeed! why, therein I commend her choice.—[Aside] Better and better.—You see sure 'twas he?

Put. Sure; and you shall see he will not be long from her too.

Vas. He were to blame if he would: but may I believe thee?

Put. Believe me! why, dost think I am a Turk or a Jew? No, Vasques, I have known their dealings too long to belie them now.

Vas. Where are you there? within, sirs!

Enter Banditti.

Put. How now! what are these?

Vas. You shall know presently.—Come, sirs, take me this old damnable hag, gag her instantly, and put out her eyes, quickly, quickly!

Put. Vasques! Vasques!—

Vas. Gag her, I say; 'sfoot, d'ye suffer her to prate? what d'ye fumble about? let me come to her. I'll help your old gums, you toad-bellied bitch! [They gag her.] Sirs, carry her closely into the coal-house, and put out her eyes instantly; if she roars, slit her nose: d'ye hear, be speedy and sure. [Exeunt Banditti with PUTANA.]

Why, this is excellent and above expectation—her own brother! O, horrible! to what a height of liberty in damnation hath the devil trained our age! her brother, well! there's yet but a beginning; I must to my lord, and tutor him better in his points of vengeance: now I see how a smooth tale goes beyond a smooth tail.—But soft! what thing comes next? Giovanni! as I would wish: my belief is strengthened, 'tis as firm as winter and summer.

Enter GIOVANNI.

 G_{20}^{20} . Where's my sister?

Was. Troubled with a new sickness, my lord; she's somewhat ill.

Gio. Took too much of the flesh, I believe.

Vas. Troth, sir, and you, I think, have e'en hit it: but my virtuous lady—

Gio. Where's she?

Vas. In her chamber; please you visit her; she is alone. [Giovanni gives him money.] Your liberality hath doubly made me your servant, and ever shall, ever. [Exit Giovanni.

Re-enter SORANZO.

Sir, I am made a man; I have plied my cue with cunning and success: I beseech you let's be private.

Sor. My lady's brother's come; now he'll know all.

Vas. Let him know't; I have made some of them fast enough. How have you dealt with my lady?

Sor. Gently, as thou hast counselled; O, my soul Runs circular in sorrow for revenge:

But, Vasques, thou shalt know—

Vas. Nay, I will know no more, for now comes your turn to know: I would not talk so openly with you.—
[Aside] Let my young master take time enough, and go at pleasure; he is sold to death, and the devil shall not ransom him.—Sir, I beseech you, your privacy.

Sor. No conquest can gain glory of my fear. [Exeunt,

ACT THE FIFTH.

SCENE I .- The Street before SORANZO'S House.

Annabella appears at a window above.

NN. Pleasures, farewell, and all ye thriftless minutes

Wherein false joys have spun a weary life!

To these my fortunes now I take my leave.

Thou, precious Time, that swiftly rid'st
Over the world, to finish-up the race [in post
Of my last fate, here stay thy restless course,
And bear to ages that are yet unborn
A wretched, woeful woman's tragedy!
My conscience now stands up against my lust
With depositions charactered in guilt,

Enter Friar below.

And tells me I am lost: now I confess
Beauty that clothes the outside of the face
Is cursed if it be not clothed with grace.
Here like a turtle mewed-up in a cage,
Unmated, I converse with air and walls,
And descant on my vile unhappiness.
O, Giovanni, thou hast had the spoil
Of thine own virtues and my modest fame,
Would thou hadst been less subject to those stars
That luckless reigned at my nativity!
O, would the scourge due to my black offence

Might pass from thee, that I alone might feel The torment of an uncontrolled flame!

Friar, [Aside.] What's this I hear?

Ann. That man, that blessèd friar,

Who joined in ceremonial knot my hand To him whose wife I now am, told me oft I trod the path to death, and showed me how. But they who sleep in lethargies of lust Hug their confusion, making Heaven unjust; And so did I.

Friar [Aside.] Here's music to the soul!

Ann. Forgive me, my good genius, and this once
Be helpful to my ends: let some good man
Pass this way, to whose trust I may commit
This paper, double-lined with tears and blood;
Which being granted, here I sadly vow
Repentance, and a leaving-of that life
I long have died in.

Friar. Lady, Heaven hath heard you, And hath by providence ordained that I Should be his minister for your behoof.

Ann. Ha, what are you?

Friar. Your brother's friend, the friar;

Glad in my soul that I have lived to hear This free confession 'twixt your peace and you.

What would you, or to whom? fear not to speak.

Ann. Is Heaven so bountiful? then I have found More favour than I hoped. Here, holy man:

Throws down a letter.

Commend me to my brother; give him that,
That letter; bid him read it, and repent.
Tell him that I, imprisoned in my chamber,
Barred of all company, even of my guardian,—
Who gives me cause of much suspect,—have time
To blush at what hath passed; bid him be wise,
And not believe the friendship of my lord:
I fear much more than I can speak: good father,

The place is dangerous, and spies are busy. I must break off. You'll do't?

Friar. Be sure I will,

And fly with speed. My blessing ever rest

With thee, my daughter; live, to die more blest! [Exit.

Ann. Thanks to the heavens, who have prolonged my To this good use! now I can welcome death. [breath [Withdraws from the window.

SCENE II.—A Room in SORANZO'S House. Enter SORANZO and VASOUES.

Vas. Am I to be believed now? first marry a strumpet, that cast herself away upon you but to laugh at your horns, to feast on your disgrace, riot in your vexations, cuckold you in your bride-bed, waste your estate upon panders and bawds!—

Sor. No more, I say, no more!

Vas. A cuckold is a goodly tame beast, my lord.

Sor. I am resolved; urge not another word; My thoughts are great, and all as resolute As thunder: in mean time I'll cause our lady To deck herself in all her bridal robes; Kiss her, and fold her gently in my arms. Begone,—yet, hear you, are the banditti ready To wait in ambush.

Vas. Good sir, trouble not yourself about other business than your own resolution: remember that time lost cannot be recalled.

Sor. With all the cunning words thou canst, invite The states of Parma to my birthday's feast: Haste to my brother-rival and his father, Entreat them gently, bid them not to fail. Be speedy, and return.

1 i.e. Nobles.

Vas. Let not your pity betray you till my coming back; think upon incest and cuckoldry.

Sor. Revenge is all the ambition I aspire;
To that I'll climb or fall: my blood's on fire. [Exeunt.

SCENE III.—A Room in FLORIO'S House.

Enter GIOVANNI.

Gio. Busy opinion is an idle fool, That, as a school-rod keeps a child in awe, Frights the unexperienced temper of the mind: So did it me, who, ere my precious sister Was married, thought all taste of love would die In such a contract; but I find no change Of pleasure in this formal law of sports. She is still one to me, and every kiss As sweet and as delicious as the first I reaped, when yet the privilege of youth Entitled her a virgin. O, the glory Of two united hearts like hers and mine! Let poring book-men dream of other worlds; My world and all of happiness is here, And I'd not change it for the best to come: A life of pleasure is elysium.

Enter Friar.

Father, you enter on the jubilee

Of my retired delights: now I can tell you,
The hell you oft have prompted is nought else
But slavish and fond superstitious fear;
And I could prove it too—

Friar.

Thy blindness slays thee:

Look there, 'tis writ to thee.

[Gives him the letter.

Gio. From whom?

Friar. Unrip the seals and see;
The blood's yet seething hot, that will anon

Be frozen harder than congealed coral.— Why d'ye change colour, son?

Gio. 'Fore Heaven, you make

Some petty devil factor 'twixt my love

And your religion-masked sorceries.

Where had you this?

Friar. Thy conscience, youth, is seared, Else thou wouldst stoop to warning.

Gio. 'Tis her hand,

I know't; and 'tis all written in her blood.

She writes I know not what. Death! I'll not fear

An armèd thunderbolt aimed at my heart.

She writes, we are discovered:—Pox on dreams

Of low faint-hearted cowardice !—discovered?

The devil we are! which way is't possible?

Are we grown traitors to our own delights?

Confusion take such dotage! 'tis but forged:

This is your peevish chattering, weak old man!

Enter VASQUES.

Now, sir, what brings you?

Vas. My lord, according to his yearly custom, keeping this day a feast in honour of his birthday, by me invites you thither. Your worthy father, with the pope's reverend nuncio, and other magnificoes of Parma, have promised their presence: will't please you to be of the number?

Gio. Yes, tell him I dare come.

Vas. "Dare come!"

Gio. So I said; and tell him more, I will come.

Vas. These words are strange to me.

Gio. Say, I will come.

Vas. You will not miss?

Gio. Yet more! I'll come, sir. Are you answered?

Vas. So I'll say.—My service to you. [Exit.

Friar. You will not go, I trust.

Gio. Not go! for what?

Friar. O, do not go: this feast, I'll gage my life,

Is but a plot to train you to your ruin. Be ruled, you shall not go.

Gio. Not go! stood Death Threatening his armies of confounding plagues, With hosts of dangers hot as blazing stars, I would be there: not go! yes, and resolve To strike as deep in slaughter as they all; For I will go.

Friar. Go where thou wilt: I see
The wildness of thy fate draws to an end,
To a bad fearful end. I must not stay
To know thy fall: back to Bononia I
With speed will haste, and shun this coming blow.—
Parma, farewell; would I had never known thee,
Or aught of thine!—Well, young man, since no prayer
Can make thee safe, I leave thee to despair. [Exit.

Gio. Despair, or tortures of a thousand hells; All's one to me: I have set up my rest.¹

Now, now, work serious thoughts on baneful plots; Be all a man, my soul; let not the curse Of old prescription rend from me the gall Of courage, which enrols a glorious death:

If I must totter like a well-grown oak, Some under-shrubs shall in my weighty fall Be crushed to splits; with me they all shall perish!

Exit.

SCENE IV. A Hall in SORANZO'S House.

Enter Soranzo, Vasques with masks, and Banditti.

Sor. You will not fail, or shrink in the attempt?

Vas. I will undertake for their parts.—Be sure, my masters, to be bloody enough, and as unmerciful as if you were preying upon a rich booty on the very mountains of Liguria: for your pardons trust to my lord; but for reward you shall trust none but your own pockets.

1 i.e. I have taken my resolution.

Band. We'll make a murder.

Sor. Here's gold [Gives them money]; here's more; want nothing; what you do

Is noble, and an act of brave revenge: I'll make ye rich, banditti, and all free.

Band. Liberty! liberty!

Vas. Hold, take every man a vizard [Gives them masks]: when ye are withdrawn, keep as much silence as you can possibly. You know the watchword; till which be spoken, move not; but when you hear that, rush in like a stormy flood; I need not instruct ye in your own profession.

Band. No, no, no.

Vas. In, then: your ends are profit and preferment: away!

[Execut Banditti.

Sor. The guests will all come, Vasques?

Vas. Yes, sir. And now let me a little edge your resolution: you see nothing is unready to this great work, but a great mind in you; call to your remembrance your disgraces, your loss of honour, Hippolita's blood, and arm your courage in your own wrongs; so shall you best right those wrongs in vengeance, which you may truly call your own.

Sor. 'Tis well: the less I speak, the more I burn. And blood shall quench that flame.

Vas. Now you begin to turn Italian. This beside:—when my young incest-monger comes, he will be sharp set on his old bit: give him time enough, let him have your chamber and bed at liberty; let my hot hare have law ere he be hunted to his death, that, if it be possible, he post to hell in the very act of his damnation.

Sor. It shall be so; and see, as we would wish, He comes himself first.

Enter GIOVANNI.

Welcome, my much-loved brother:

Now I perceive you honour me; you're welcome. But where's my father?

Gio. With the other states,1

Attending on the nuncio of the pope,

To wait upon him hither. How's my sister?

Sor. Like a good housewife, scarcely ready yet; You're best walk to her chamber.

Gio.

If you will.

Sor. I must expect my honourable friends; Good brother, get her forth.

Gio.

You're busy, sir. [Exit.

Vas. Even as the great devil himself would have it! let him go and glut himself in his own destruction.— [Flourish.] Hark, the nuncio is at hand: good sir, be ready to receive him.

Enter Cardinal, FLORIO, DONADO, RICHARDETTO, and Attendants.

Sor. Most reverend lord, this grace hath made me proud,

That you vouchsafe my house; I ever rest Your humble servant for this noble favour.

Car. You are our friend, my lord: his holiness Shall understand how zealously you honour Saint Peter's vicar in his substitute: Our special love to you.

Sor. Signiors, to you My welcome, and my ever best of thanks For this so memorable courtesy.—Pleaseth your grace walk near?

Car. My lord, we come

To celebrate your feast with civil mirth,

As ancient custom teacheth: we will go.

Sor. Attend his grace there!—Signiors, keep your way. [Exeunt.

¹ Nobles.

SCENE. V.—Annabella's Bed-chamber in the same.

Annabella richly dressed and Giovanni discovered lying on a bed.

Gio. What, changed so soon! hath your new sprightly lord

Found out a trick in night-games more than we Could know in our simplicity? Ha! is't so? Or does the fit come on you, to prove treacherous To your past vows and oaths?

Ann. Why should you jest

At my calamity, without all sense Of the approaching dangers you are in?

Gio. What danger's half so great as thy revolt?

Thou art a faithless sister, else thou know'st,

Malice, or any treachery beside,

Would stoop to my bent brows: why, I hold fate

Clasped in my fist, and could command the course

Of time's eternal motion, hadst thou been

One thought more steady than an ebbing sea.

And what? you'll now be honest, that's resolved?

Ann. Brother, dear brother, know what I have been, And know that now there's but a dining-time 'Twixt us and our confusion: let's not waste These precious hours in vain and useless speech. Alas, these gay attires were not put on But to some end; this sudden solemn feast Was not ordained to riot in expense; I, that have now been chambered here alone, Barred of my guardian or of any else, Am not for nothing at an instant freed To fresh access. Be not deceived, my brother; This banquet is an harbinger of death To you and me; resolve yourself it is, And be prepared to welcome it.

Gio. Well, then;

The schoolmen teach that all this globe of earth Shall be consumed to ashes in a minute.

Ann. So I have read too.

Gio. \ But 'twere somewhat strange

To see the waters burn: could I believe This might be true, I could believe as well There might be hell or Heaven.

Ann. That's most certain.

Gio. A dream, a dream! else in this other world We should know one another.

Ann. So we shall.

Gio. Have you heard so?

Ann. For certain.

Gio. But d'ye think

That I shall see you there?—You look on me.—May we kiss one another, prate or laugh, Or do as we do here?

Ann. I know not that.

But, brother, for the present, what d'ye mean To free yourself from danger? some way think How to escape: I'm sure the guests are come.

Gio. Look up, look here; what see you in my face?

Ann. Distraction and a troubled conscience.

Gio. Death, and a swift repining wrath:—yet look; What see you in mine eyes?

Ann. Methinks you weep.

Gio. I do indeed: these are the funeral tears
Shed on your grave; these furrowed-up my cheeks
When first I loved and knew not how to woo.
Fair Annabella, should I here repeat
The story of my life, we might lose time.
Be record all the spirits of the air,
And all things else that are, that day and night,
Early and late, the tribute which my heart
Hath paid to Annabella's sacred love
Hath been these tears, which are her mouruers now!
Never till now did Nature do her best

To show a matchless beauty to the world, Which in an instant, ere it scarce was seen, The jealous Destinies required again. Pray, Annabella, pray! Since we must part, Go thou, white in thy soul, to fill a throne Of innocence and sanctity in Heaven.

Pray, pray, my sister!

Ann.

Then I see your drift.—

Ye blessèd angels, guard me!

Gio.

So say I.

Kiss me. If ever after-times should hear
Of our fast-knit affections, though perhaps
The laws of conscience and of civil use
May justly blame us, yet when they but know
Our loves, that love will wipe away that rigour
Which would in other incests be abhorred.
Give me your hand: how sweetly life doth run
In these well-coloured veins! how constantly
These palms do promise health! but I could chide
With Nature for this cunning flattery.
Kiss me again:—forgive me.

Ann.

With my heart.

Gio. Farewell!

Ann.

Will you be gone?

Gio.

Be dark, bright sun,

And make this mid-day night, that thy gilt rays May not behold a deed will turn their splendour More sooty than the poets feign their Styx!—One other kiss, my sister.

Ann.

What means this?

Gio. To save thy fame, and kill thee in a kiss.

Stabs her.

Thus die, and die by me, and by my hand! Revenge is mine; honour doth love command.

Ann. O, brother, by your hand!

Gio.

When thou art dead

I'll give my reasons for't; for to dispute

With thy—even in thy death—most lovely beauty, Would make me stagger to perform this act, Which I most glory in.

Ann. Forgive him, Heaven—and me my sins! Fare-Brother unkind, unkind—Mercy, great Heaven! [well, O, O!

Gio. She's dead, alas, good soul! The hapless fruit That in her womb received its life from me Hath had from me a cradle and a grave. I must not dally. This sad marriage-bed, In all her best, bore her alive and dead. Soranzo, thou hast missed thy aim in this: I have prevented now thy reaching plots, And killed a love, for whose each drop of blood I would have pawned my heart.—Fair Annabella, How over-glorious art thou in thy wounds, Triumphing over infamy and hate!—
Shrink not, courageous hand, stand up, my heart, And boldly act my last and greater part!

[The scene closes.

SCENE VI.—A Banqueting-room 1 in the same.

A banquet set out. Enter the Cardinal, FLORIO, DONADO, SORANZO, RICHARDETTO, VASQUES, and Attendants.

Vas. [Aside to Soranzo] Remember, sir, what you have to do; be wise and resolute.

Sor. [Aside to VASQUES] Enough: my heart is fixed.—
Pleaseth your grace

To taste these coarse confections: though the use Of such set entertainments more consists. In custom than in cause, yet, reverend sir,

¹ They had dined in another room, and, according to the usual practice, repaired to the apartment in which the confectionery was set out.— Gifford.

I am still made your servant by your presence.

Car. And we your friend.

Sor. But where's my brother Giovanni?

Enter GIOVANNI with a heart upon his dagger.

Gio. Here, here, Soranzo! trimmed in reeking blood, That triumphs over death, proud in the spoil Of love and vengeance! Fate, or all the powers That guide the motions of immortal souls, Could not prevent me.

Car. What means this?

Flo. Son Giovanni!

Sor. [Aside] Shall I be forestalled?

Gio. Be not amazed: if your misgiving hearts Shrink at an idle sight, what bloodless fear Of coward passion would have seized your senses, Had you beheld the rape of life and beauty Which I have acted !—My sister, O, my sister!

Flo. Ha! what of her?

The glory of my deed Gio. Darkened the mid-day sun, made noon as night. You came to feast, my lords, with dainty fare: I came to feast too; but I digged for food In a much richer mine than gold or stone Of any value balanced; 'tis a heart, A heart, my lords, in which is mine entombed:

Look well upon't; d'ye know't?

Vas. [Aside] What strange riddle's this?

Gio. 'Tis Annabella's heart, 'tis:—why d'ye startle?— I vow 'tis hers: this dagger's point ploughed up Her fruitful womb, and left to me the fame Of a most glorious executioner.

Flo. Why, madman, art thyself?

Gio. Yes, father; and, that times to come may know How, as my fate, I honoured my revenge, List, father; to your ears I will yield up How much I have deserved to be your son.

N

Flo. What is't thou say'st?

Gio. Nine moons have had their changes Since I first throughly viewed and truly loved Your daughter and my sister,

Flo.

How !—Alas, my lords,

He is a frantic madman!

Gio.

Father, no.

For nine months' space in secret I enjoyed Sweet Annabella's sheets; nine months I lived A happy monarch of her heart and her.— Soranzo, thou know'st this: thy paler cheek Bears the confounding print of thy disgrace; For her too-fruitful womb too soon bewrayed The happy passage of our stol'n delights, And made her mother to a child unborn.

Car. Incestuous villain!

Flo.

O, his rage belies him.

Gio. It does not, 'tis the oracle of truth;

I vow it is so.

Sor.

I shall burst with fury,—

Bring the strumpet forth!

Vas. I shall, sir.

Exit.

Gio.

Do, sir.—Have you all no faith

To credit yet my triumphs? Here I swear
By all that you call sacred, by the love
I bore my Annabella whilst she lived,

These hands have from her bosom ripped this heart.

Re-enter VASQUES.

Is't true, or no, sir?

Vas.

'Tis most strangely true.

Flo. Cursèd man !—Have I lived to—

orio

Car.

Hold up, Florio.—

Monster of children! see what thou hast done, Broke thy old father's heart.—Is none of you Dares venture on him?

Gio.

Let 'em!—O, my father,

How well his death becomes him in his griefs! Why, this was done with courage: now survives None of our house but I, gilt in the blood Of a fair sister and a hapless father.

Sor. Inhuman scorn of men, hast thou a thought T' outlive thy murders? Draws.

Yes, I tell thee, yes; Gio.

For in my fists I bear the twists of life.

Soranzo, see this heart, which was thy wife's;

Thus I exchange it royally for thine. They fight. And thus, and thus! SORANZO falls.

Now brave revenge is mine.

Vas. I cannot hold any longer.—You, sir, are you grown insolent in your butcheries? have at you!

Gio. Come, I am armed to meet thee.

Vas. No! will it not be yet? if this will not, another Not yet? I shall fit you anon.—Vengeance! shall.

The Banditti rush in.

Gio. Welcome! come more of you; whate'er you be, [They surround and wound him. I dare your worst. O, I can stand no longer! feeble arms, Falls.

Have you so soon lost strength?

Vas. Now you are welcome, sir !—[Aside to Banditti.] Away, my masters, all is done; shift for yourselves, your reward is your own; shift for yourselves.

Band. Away, away!

Exeunt.

Vas. How d'ye, my lord?—See you this? [Pointing to GIOVANNI. | How is't?

Sor. Dead; but in death well pleased that I have lived To see my wrongs revenged on that black devil.

O, Vasques, to thy bosom let me give

My last of breath; let not that lecher live.

Dies. O1

Vas. The reward of peace and rest be with him, my ever dearest lord and master!

Gio. Whose hand gave me this wound?

Vas. Mine, sir; I was your first man: have you

Gio. I thank thee; thou hast done for me [enough? But what I would have else done on myself.

Art sure thy lord is dead?

Vas. O, impudent slave!

As cure as I am sure to see thee die.

Car. Think on thy life and end, and call for mercy.

Gio. Mercy! why, I have found it in this justice.

Car. Strive yet to cry to Heaven.

Gio. O, I bleed fast!

Death, thou'rt a guest long looked for; I embrace
Thee and thy wounds: O, my last minute comes!
Where'er I go, let me enjoy this grace,
Freely to view my Annabella's face.

[Dies.]

Don. Strange miracle of justice!

Car. Raise up the city; we shall be murdered all!

Vas. You need not fear, you shall not: this strange task being ended, I have paid the duty to the son which I have vowed to the father.

Car. Speak, wretched villain, what incarnate fiend Hath led thee on to this?

Vas. Honesty, and pity of my master's wrongs: for know, my lord, I am by birth a Spaniard, brought forth my country in my youth by Lord Soranzo's father, whom whilst he lived I served faithfully: since whose death I have been to this man as I was to him. What I have done was duty, and I repent nothing, but that the loss of my life had not ransomed his.

Car. Say, fellow, know'st thou any yet unnamed Of counsel in this incest?

Vas. Yes, an old woman, sometimes 1 guardian to this murdered lady.

Car. And what's become of her?

Vas. Within this room she is! whose eyes, after her confession, I caused to be put out, but kept alive, to confirm what from Giovanni's own mouth you have heard. Now, my lord, what I have done you may judge of; and let your own wisdom be a judge in your own reason.

1 i.e. Formerly.

Car. Peace!—First this woman, chief in these effects, My sentence is, that forthwith she be ta'en Out of the city, for example's sake, There to be burnt to ashes.

Don. 'Tis most just.

Car. Be it your charge, Donado, see it done.

Don. I shall.

Vas. What for me? if death, 'tis welcome: I have been honest to the son, as I was to the father.

Car. Fellow, for thee, since what thou didst was done Not for thyself, being no Italian,

We banish thee for ever; to depart

Within three days: in this we do dispense

With grounds of reason, not of thine offence.

Vas. 'Tis well: this conquest is mine, and I rejoice that a Spaniard outwent an Italian in revenge. [Exit.

Car. Take up these slaughtered bodies, see them And all the gold and jewels, or whatsoever, [buried; Confiscate by the canons of the church,

We seize upon to the pope's proper use.

Rich. [Discovers himself.] Your grace's pardon: thus long I lived disguised,

To see the effect of pride and lust at once Brought both to shameful ends.

Car. What! Richardetto, whom we thought for dead? Don. Sir, was it you—

Rich.

Your friend.

Car. We

We shall have time

To talk at large of all: but never yet
Incest and murder have so strangely met.
Of one so young, so rich in nature's store,
Who could not say, 'TIS PITY SHE'S A WHORE?

Exeunt.

THE BROKEN HEART.

O account remains of the first appearance of this play, or of its success. It was acted by the King's servants at the Blackfriars Theatre, and was published in 1633. It is said in the Prologue that the story—the scene of which is curiously placed in Sparta—had some foundation in fact. It may have been taken from an Italian novel.

To the most worthy deserver of the noblest titles in honour, WILLIAM, LORD CRAVEN, BARON OF HAMP-STEAD-MARSHALL.¹

My Lord,

HE glory of a great name, acquired by a greater glory of action, hath in all ages lived the truest chronicle to his own memory. In the practice of which argument your growth to perfection, even in youth, hath appeared so sincere, so unflattering a penman, that posterity cannot with more delight read the merit of noble endeavours than noble endeavours merit thanks from posterity to be read with delight. Many nations, many eyes have been witnesses of your deserts, and loved them. be pleased,

Peerage), "the eldest son of Sir W. Craven, Lord Mayor, was much affected with military exercises from his youth, and signalised himself in Germany and in the Netherlands under Henry, Prince of Orange. In which valuant adventures he gained such honour, that on his return he was first knighted at Newmarket, March 4, 1626, and in the year after deservedly raised to the dignity of Lord Craven of Hampstead-Marshall. In 1631 he was one of the commanders of those forces sent to the assistance of the great Gustavus Adolphus, and was wounded in the assault upon the strong fortress of Kreutznach. He died, after a very active and chequered life, April 9, 1697, at the advanced age of 88. He is now chiefly remembered for his romantic attachment to the Queen of Bohemia, daughter of James I., to whom it is generally supposed he was privately married." "One may be pardoned for remembering," Ward adds, "that the chivalrous knight-errant and (as is thought) secret husband of Elizabeth of Bohemia survived her for nearly a quarter of a century."

then, with the freedom of your own name, to admit one amongst all, particularly into the list of such as honour a fair example of nobility. There is a kind of humble ambition, not uncommendable, when the silence of study breaks forth into discourse, coveting rather encouragement than applause; yet herein censure commonly is too severe an auditor, without the moderation of an able patronage. I have ever been slow in courtship of greatness, not ignorant of such defects as are frequent to opinion: but the justice of your inclination to industry emboldens my weakness of confidence to relish an experience of your mercy, as many brave dangers have tasted of your courage. Your Lordship strove to be known to the world, when the world knew you least, by voluntary but excellent attempts: like allowance I plead of being known to your Lordship (in this low presumption), by tendering, to a favourable entertainment, a devotion offered from a heart that can be as truly sensible of any least respect as ever profess the owner in my best, my readiest services, a lover of your natural love to virtue.

JOHN FORD.

OUR scene is Sparta. He whose best of art Hath drawn this piece calls it THE BROKEN HEART. The title lends no expectation here Of apish laughter, or of some lame jeer At place or persons; no pretended clause Of jests fit for a brothel courts applause From vulgar admiration: such low songs, Tuned to unchaste ears, suit not modest tongues. The virgin-sisters then deserved fresh bays When innocence and sweetness crowned their lays; Then vices gasped for breath, whose whole commerce Was whipped to exile by unblushing verse. This law we keep in our presentment now, Not to take freedom more than we allow; What may be here thought Fiction, when time's youth Wanted some riper years, was known a Truth: In which, if words have clothed the subject right, You may partake a pity with delight.

AMYCLAS, King of Laconia.

ITHOCLES, a Favourite.

ORGILUS, Son of Crotolon.

BASSANES, a jealous Nobleman.

PENTHEA, Sister of Ithocles and Wife of Bassanes.

EUPHRANEA, Daughter of Crotolon, a Maid of honour.

CHRISTALLA, PHILEMA, Maids of honour.

GRAUSIS, Overseer of Penthea.

SCENE—SPARTA.

THE BROKEN HEART.

ACT THE FIRST.

SCENE I .- A Room in CROTOLON'S House.

Enter CROTOLON and ORGILUS.

ROT. Dally not further; I will know the reason

That speeds thee to this journey.

Org. Reason! good sir,

I can yield many.

Crot. Give me one, a good one; Such I expect, and ere we part must

Athens! pray, why to Athens? you intend not [have: To kick against the world, turn cynic, stoic, Or read the logic-lecture, or become An Areopagite, and judge in cases Touching the commonwealth; for, as I take it, The budding of your chin cannot prognosticate So grave an honour.

Org. All this I acknowledge.

Crot. You do I then, son, if books and love of knowledge

Inflame you to this travel, here in Sparta You may as freely study.

Org. Tis not that, sir.

Crot. Not that, sir! As a father, I command thee T' acquaint me with the truth.

Org.

Thus I obey ye.

After so many quarrels as dissension,
Fury, and rage had broached in blood, and sometimes
With death to such confederates as sided
With now-dead Thrasus and yourself, my lord;
Our present king, Amyclas, reconciled
Your eager swords and sealed a gentle peace:
Friends you professed yourselves; which to confirm,
A resolution for a lasting league
Betwixt your families was entertained,
By joining in a Hymenean bond
Me and the fair Penthea, only daughter
To Thrasus.

Crot.

What of this?

Org.

Much, much, dear sir.

A freedom of convérse, an interchange Of holy and chaste love, so fixed our souls In a firm growth of union, that no time Can eat into the pledge: we had enjoyed The sweets our vows expected, had not cruelty Prevented all those triumphs we prepared for, By Thrasus his untimely death.

Crot.

Most certain.

Org. From this time sprouted-up that poisonous stalk Of aconite, whose ripened fruit hath ravished All health, all comfort of a happy life; For Ithocles, her brother, proud of youth, And prouder in his power, nourished closely The memory of former discontents, To glory in revenge. By cunning partly, Partly by threats, he woos at once, and forces His virtuous sister to admit a marriage With Bassanes, a nobleman, in honour And riches, I confess, beyond my fortunes.

Crot. All this is no sound reason to importune My leave for thy departure.

Org.

Now it follows.

Beauteous Penthea, wedded to this torture By an insulting brother, being secretly Compelled to yield her virgin freedom up To him, who never can usurp her heart, Before contracted mine, is now so yoked To a most barbarous thraldrom, misery, Affliction, that he savours not humanity, Whose sorrow melts not into more than pity In hearing but her name.

Crot.

As how, pray?

Org.

Bassanes,

The man that calls her wife, considers truly
What heaven of perfections he is lord of
By thinking fair Penthea his: this thought
Begets a kind of monster-love, which love
Is nurse unto a fear so strong and servile
As brands all dotage with a jealousy:
All eyes who gaze upon that shrine of beauty
He doth resolve do homage to the miracle;
Some one, he is assured, may now or then,
If opportunity but sort, prevail:
So much, out of a self-unworthiness,
His fears transport him; not that he finds cause
In her obedience, but his own distrust.

Crot. You spin-out your discourse.

Org.

My griefs are violent:

For, knowing how the maid was heretofore
Courted by me, his jealousies grow wild
That I should steal again into her favours,
And undermine her virtues; which the gods
Know I nor dare nor dream of. Hence, from hence,
I undertake a voluntary exile;
First, by my absence to take off the cares
Of jealous Bassanes; but chiefly, sir,
To free Penthea from a hell on earth;
Lastly, to lose the memory of something

i.e. Convince himself.

Her presence makes to live in me afresh.

Crot. Enough, my Orgilus, enough. To Athens, I give a full consent.—Alas, good lady!—
We shall hear from thee often?

Org.

Often.

Crot.

See,

Thy sister comes to give a farewell.

Enter EUPHRANEA.

Euph.

Brother!

Org. Euphranea, thus upon thy cheeks I print A brother's kiss; more careful of thine honour, Thy health, and thy well-doing, than my life. Before we part, in presence of our father, I must prefer a suit t' ye.

Euph.

You may style it,

My brother, a command.

Org.

That you will promise

Never to pass to any man, however

Worthy, your faith, till, with our father's leave, I give a free consent.

Crot.

An easy motion!

I'll promise for her, Orgilus.

Org.

Your pardon;

Euphranea's oath must yield me satisfaction.

Euph. By Vesta's sacred fires I swear.

Crot.

And I,

By great Apollo's beams, join in the vow, Not without thy allowance to bestow her On any living.

Org. Dear Euphranea,
Mistake me not: far, far 'tis from my thought,
As far from any wish of mine, to hinder
Preferment to an honourable bed
Or fitting fortune; thou art young and handsome;
And 'twere injustice,—more, a tyranny,—
Not to advance thy merit: trust me, sister,

It shall be my first care to see thee matched As may become thy choice and our contents. I have your oath.

Euph. You have. But mean you, brother, To leave us, as you say?

Crot.

Ay, ay, Euphranea:

He has just grounds direct him. I will prove

A father and a brother to thee.

Euph.

Heaven

Does look into the secrets of all hearts:

Gods, you have mercy with ye, else-

Crot.

Thy brother will return in safety to us.

Org. Souls sunk in sorrows never are without 'em; They change fresh airs, but bear their griefs about 'em.

[Exeunt.

Doubt nothing;

SCENE II.—A Room in the Palace.

Flourish. Enter AMYCLAS, ARMOSTES, PROPHILUS, Courtiers, and Attendants.

Amy. The Spartan gods are gracious; our humility Shall bend before their altars, and perfume Their temples with abundant sacrifice. See, lords, Amyclas, your old king, is entering Into his youth again! I shall shake off This silver badge of age, and change this snow For hairs as gay as are Apollo's locks; Our heart leaps in new vigour.

Arm.

May old time

Run back to double your long life, great sir!

Amy. It will, it must, Armostes: thy bold nephew, Death-braving Ithocles, brings to our gates
Triumphs and peace upon his conquering sword.
Laconia is a monarchy at length;

Ford.

Hath in this latter war trod under foot
Messene's pride; Messene bows her neck
To Lacedæmon's royalty. O, 'twas
A glorious victory, and doth deserve
More than a chronicle—a temple, lords,
A temple to the name of Ithocles.—
Where didst thou leave him, Prophilus?

Pro. At Pephon,

Most gracious sovereign; twenty of the noblest Of the Messenians there attend your pleasure, For such conditions as you shall propose In settling peace, and liberty of life.

Amy. When comes your friend the general?

Pro.

He promised

To follow with all speed convenient.

Enter CALANTHA, EUPHRANEA; CHRISTALLA and PHILEMA with a garland; and CROTOLON.

Amy. Our daughter!—Dear Calantha, the happy news, The conquest of Messene, hath already Enriched thy knowledge.

Cal. With the circumstance And manner of the fight, related faithfully By Prophilus himself.—But, pray, sir, tell me How doth the youthful general demean His actions in these fortunes?

Pro. Excellent princess, Your own fair eyes may soon report a truth Unto your judgment, with what moderation, Calmness of nature, measure, bounds, and limits Of thankfulness and joy, he doth digest Such amplitude of his success as would In others, moulded of a spirit less clear, Advance 'em to comparison with heaven: But Ithocles—

Cal. Your friend—

Pro. He is so, madam,

In which the period of my fate consists:
He, in this firmament of honour, stands
Like a star fixed, not moved with any thunder
Of popular applause or sudden lightning
Of self-opinion; he hath served his country,
And thinks 'twas but his duty.

Crot.

You describe

A miracle of man.

Amy.

Such, Crotolon,

On forfeit of a king's word, thou wilt find him.—

[Flourish.

Hark, warning of his coming! all attend him.

Enter ITHOCLES, ushered in by the Lords, and followed by HEMOPHIL and GRONEAS.

Return into these arms, thy home, thy sanctuary, Delight of Sparta, treasure of my bosom, Mine own, own Ithocles!

Ith.

Your humblest subject.

Arm. Proud of the blood I claim an interest in, As brother to thy mother, I embrace thee, Right noble nephew.

Ith.

Sir, your love's too partial.

Crot. Our country speaks by me, who by thy valour, Wisdom, and service, shares in this great action; Returning thee, in part of thy due merits, A general welcome.

Ith.

You exceed in bounty.

Cal. Christalla, Philema, the chaplet. [Takes the chaplet from them.]—Ithocles,

Upon the wings of fame the singular And chosen fortune of an high attempt Is borne so past the view of common sight, That I myself with mine own hands have wrought, To crown thy temples, this provincial garland¹:

¹ i.e. The laurel wreath conferred on those who added a province to the empire.

Accept, wear, and enjoy it as our gift Deserved, not purchased.

Ith.

You're a royal maid.

Amy. She is in all our daughter.

Ith.

Let me blush,

Acknowledging how poorly I have served,
What nothings I have done, compared with the honours
Heaped on the issue of a willing mind;
In that lay mine ability, that only:
For who is he so sluggish from his birth,
So little worthy of a name or country,
That owes not out of gratitude for life
A debt of service, in what kind soever
Safety or counsel of the commonwealth
Requires, for payment?

Cal.

He speaks truth.

Ith.

Whom heaven

Is pleased to style victorious, there to such Applause runs madding, like the drunken priests In Bacchus' sacrifices, without reason Voicing the leader-on a demi-god; Whenas, indeed, each common soldier's blood Drops down as current coin in that hard purchase As his whose much more delicate condition Hath sucked the milk of ease: judgment commands, But resolution executes. I use not, Before this royal presence, these fit slights¹ As in contempt of such as can direct; My speech hath other end; not to attribute All praise to one man's fortune, which is strengthened By many hands: for instance, here is Prophilus, A gentleman—I cannot flatter truth— Of much desert; and, though in other rank, Both Hemophil and Groneas were not missing To wish their country's peace; for, in a word, All there did strive their best, and 'twas our duty.

¹ i.e. Slight words fitting slight services,

Amy. Courtiers turn soldiers!—We vouchsafe our hand.
[Hemophil and Groneas kiss his hand.
Observe our great example.

Hem.

With all diligence.

Gron. Obsequiously and hourly.

Amy.

Some repose

After these toils is needful. We must think on Conditions for the conquered; they expect 'em. On!—Come, my Ithocles.

Euph.

Sir, with your favour,

I need not a supporter.

Pro.

Fate instructs me.

[Exit Amyclas attended, Ithocles, Calantha, &c. As Christalla and Philema are following Calantha they are detained by Hemophil and Groneas.

Chris. With me?

Phil.

Indeed I dare not stay.

Hem.

Sweet lady.

Soldiers are blunt,—your lip.

[Kisses her.

Chris. Fie, this is rudeness: You went not hence such creatures.

Gro.

Spirit of valour

Is of a mounting nature.

Phil.

It appears so.—

Pray, in earnest, how many men apiece

Have you two been the death of?

Gro.

'Faith, not many;

We were composed of mercy.

Hem.

For our daring,

You heard the general's approbation Before the king.

Chris.

You "wished your country's peace;"

That showed your charity: where are your spoils,

Such as the soldier fights for?

Phil.

They are coming.

Chris. By the next carrier, are they not?

Gro.

Sweet Philema,

When I was in the thickest of mine enemies, Slashing off one man's head, another's nose, Another's arms and legs,—

Phil.

And all together.

Gro. Then would I with a sigh remember thee, And cry "Dear Philema, 'tis for thy sake I do these deeds of wonder!"—dost not love me With all thy heart now?

Phil.

Now as heretofore.

I have not put my love to use; the principal Will hardly yield an interest.

Gro.

By Mars,

I'll marry thee!

Phil. By Vulcan, you're forsworn, Except my mind do alter strangely.

Gro.

One word.

Chris. You lie beyond all modesty:—forbear me. Hem. I'll make thee mistress of a city; 'tis

Mine own by conquest.

Chris. By petition; sue for't In formâ pauperis.—City! kennel.—Gallants! Off with your feathers, put on aprons, gallants; Learn to reel, thrum, or trim a lady's dog, And be good quiet souls of peace, hobgoblins!

Hem. Christalla!

Chris. Practise to drill hogs, in hope To share in the acorns.—Soldiers! corncutters, But not so valiant; they ofttimes draw blood, Which you durst never do. When you have practised More wit or more civility, we'll rank ye I' the list of men: till then, brave things-at-arms, Dare not to speak to us,—most potent Groneas!—

Phil. And Hemophil the hardy!—at your services.

[Exeunt Christalla and Philema.

Gro. They scorn us, as they did before we went.

Hem. Hang 'em! let us scorn them, and be revenged. Gro. Shall we?

Hem. We will: and when we slight them thus, Instead of following them, they'll follow us; It is a woman's nature.

Gro.

'Tis a scurvy one.

[Exeunt.

SCENE III.—The Gardens of the Palace. A Grove.

Enter TECNICUS, and ORGILUS disguised like one of his Scholars.

Tec. Tempt not the stars; young man, thou canst not With the severity of fate: this change [play Of habit and disguise in outward view Hides not the secrets of thy soul within thee From their quick-piercing eyes, which dive at all times Down to thy thoughts: in thy aspect I note A consequence of danger.

Org. Give me leave,
Grave Tecnicus, without foredooming destiny,
Under thy roof to ease my silent griefs,
By applying to my hidden wounds the balm
Of thy oraculous lectures. If my fortune
Run such a crooked by-way as to wrest
My steps to ruin, yet thy learned precepts
Shall call me back and set my footings straight.
I will not court the world.

Tec. Ah, Orgilus, Neglects in young men of delights and life Run often to extremities; they care not For harms to others who contemn their own.

Org. But I, most learned artist, am not so much At odds with nature that I grudge the thrift Of any true deserver; nor doth malice Of present hopes so check them with despair As that I yield to thought of more affliction

Than what is incident to frailty: wherefore Impute not this retired course of living Some little time to any other cause Than what I justly render,—the information Of an unsettled mind; as the effect Must clearly witness.

Tec. Spirit of truth inspire thee! On these conditions I conceal thy change, And willingly admit thee for an auditor.—
I'll to my study.

Org. I to contemplations
In these delightful walks. [Exit Tecnicus.

Thus metamorphosed,
I may without suspicion hearken after
Penthea's usage and Euphranea's faith.
Love, thou art full of mystery! the deities
Themselves are not secure¹ in searching out
The secrets of those flames, which, hidden, waste
A breast made tributary to the laws
Of beauty: physic yet hath never found
A remedy to cure a lover's wound.—
Ha! who are those that cross yon private walk
Into the shadowing grove in amorous foldings?

PROPHILUS passes by, supporting EUPHRANEA and whispering.

My sister! O, my sister! 'tis Euphranea
With Prophilus: supported too! I would
It were an apparition! Prophilus
Is Ithocles his friend: it strangely puzzles me.

Re-enter Prophilus and Euphranea.

Again! help me, my book; this scholar's habit Must stand my privilege: my mind is busy, Mine eyes and ears are open.

[Walks aside, pretending to read.

¹ Certain.

Pro.

Do not waste

The span of this stol'n time, lent by the gods For precious use, in niceness. Bright Euphranea, Should I repeat old vows, or study new, For purchase of belief to my desires,—

Org. [Aside] Desires!

Pro.

My service, my integrity,—

Org. [Aside] That's better.

I should but repeat a lesson Pro. Oft conned without a prompter but thine eyes:

My love is honourable.

Org. [Aside]

So was mine

To my Penthea, chastely honourable.

Pro. Nor wants there more addition to my wish Of happiness than having thee a wife; Already sure of Ithocles, a friend Firm and unalterable.

Org. [Aside]

But a brother

More cruel than the grave.

Euph.

What can you look for,

In answer to your noble protestations, From an unskilful maid, but language suited To a divided mind?

Org. Aside

Hold out, Euphranea!

Euph. Know, Prophilus, I never undervalued, From the first time you mentioned worthy love, Your merit, means, or person: it had been A fault of judgment in me, and a dulness In my affections, not to weigh and thank My better stars that offered me the grace Of so much blissfulness. For, to speak truth, The law of my desires kept equal pace With yours; nor have I left that resolution: But only, in a word, whatever choice Lives nearest in my heart must first procure Consent both from my father and my brother,

¹ Preciseness.

Ere he can own me his.

Org. [Aside]

She is forsworn else.

Pro. Leave me that task.

Euph.

My brother, ere he parted

To Athens, had my oath.

Org. [Aside]

Yes, yes, he had, sure.

Pro. I doubt not, with the means the court supplies, But to prevail at pleasure.

Org. [Aside]

Very likely!

Pro. Meantime, best, dearest, I may build my hopes On the foundation of thy constant sufferance In any opposition.

Euph.

Death shall sooner

Divorce life and the joys I have in living Than my chaste vows from truth.

Pro.

On thy fair hand

I seal the like.

Org. [Aside] There is no faith in woman. Passion, O, be contained! my very heart-strings Are on the tenters.

Euph.

Sir, we are overheard.

Cupid protect us! 'twas a stirring,

Of some one near.

Pro. Your fears are needless, lady; None have access into these private pleasures Except some near in court, or bosom-student From Tecnicus his oratory, granted By special favour lately from the king Unto the grave philosopher.

Euph.

Methinks

I hear one talking to himself,—I see him.

Pro. 'Tis a poor scholar, as I told you, lady.

Org. [Aside] I am discovered.—[Half aloud to him-self, as if studying] Say it; is it possible,

With a smooth tongue, a leering countenance, Flattery, or force of reason—I come t'ye, sir—To turn or to appease the raging sea?

Answer to that.—Your art! what art? to catch And hold fast in a net the sun's small atoms? No, no; they'll out, they'll out: ye may as easily Outrun a cloud driven by a northern blast As fiddle-faddle so! Peace, or speak sense.

Euph. Call you this thing a scholar? 'las, he's lunatic.

Pro. Observe him, sweet; 'tis but his recreation.

Org. But will you hear a little? You're so tetchy, You keep no rule in argument: philosophy Works not upon impossibilities, But natural conclusions.—Mew!—absurd! The metaphysics are but speculations Of the celestial bodies, or such accidents As not mixed perfectly, in the air engendered, Appear to us unnatural; that's all. Prove it; yet, with a reverence to your gravity,

Prove it; yet, with a reverence to your gravity, I'll balk illiterate sauciness, submitting My sole opinion to the touch of writers.

Pro. Now let us fall in with him.

[They come forward.

Org.

Ha, ha, ha!

These apish boys, when they but taste the grammates And principles of theory, imagine
They can oppose their teachers. Confidence
Leads many into errors.

Pro.

By your leave, sir.

Euph. Are you a scholar, friend?

Org.

I am, gay creature,

With pardon of your deities, a mushroom On whom the dew of heaven drops now and then; The sun shines on me too, I thank his beams! Sometime I feel their warmth; and eat and sleep.

Pro. Does Tecnicus read to thee?

Org.

Yes, forsooth,

He is my master surely; yonder door Opens upon his study.

Pro.

Happy creatures!

Such people toil not, sweet, in heats of state,
Nor sink in thaws of greatness; their affections
Keep order with the limits of their modesty;
Their love is love of virtue.—What's thy name?

Org. Aplotes, sumptuous master, a poor wretch.

Euph. Dost thou want anything?

Org. Books, Venus, books.

Pro. Lady, a new conceit comes in my thought, And most available for both our comforts.

Euph. My lord,—

Your father's blessing to our loves, this scholar
May daily at some certain hours attend,
What notice I can write of my success,
Here in this grove, and give it to your hands;
The like from you to me: so can we never,
Barred of our mutual speech, want sure intelligence,
And thus our hearts may talk when our tongues cannot.

Euph. Occasion is most favourable; use it.

Pro. Aplotes, wilt thou wait us twice a-day, At nine i' the morning and at four at night, Here in this bower, to convey such letters As each shall send to other? Do it willingly, Safely, and secretly, and I will furnish Thy study, or what else thou canst desire.

Org. Jove, make me thankful, thankful, I beseech thee,

Propitious Jove! I will prove sure and trusty: You will not fail me books?

Pro.

Nor aught besides
Thy heart can wish. This lady's name's Euphranea,
Mine Prophilus.

Org. I have a pretty memory; It must prove my best friend. I will not miss One minute of the hours appointed.

Pro. Write The books thou wouldst have bought thee in a note,

Or take thyself some money.

Org.
No, no, money;
Money to scholars is a spirit invisible,
We dare not finger it: or books, or nothing.

Pro. Books of what sort thou wilt: do not forget
Our names.

Org. I warrant ye, I warrant ye.

Pro. Smile, Hymen, on the growth of our desires;
We'll feed thy torches with eternal fires!

[Excunt PROPHILUS and EUPHRANEA.

Org. Put out thy torches, Hymen, or their light
Shall meet a darkness of eternal night!
Inspire me, Mercury, with swift deceits.
Ingenious Fate has leapt into mine arms,
Beyond the compass of my brain. Mortality
Creeps on the dung of earth, and cannot reach
The riddles which are purposed by the gods.
Great arts best write themselves in their own stories,
They die too basely who outlive their glories.

[Exit.

ACT THE SECOND.

SCENE I .- A Room in BASSANES' House.

Enter BASSANES and PHULAS.

A A A

ASS. I'll have that window next the street dammed up;

It gives too full a prospect to tempta-

And courts a gazer's glances: there's a hust

Committed by the eye, that sweats and travails,

Plots, wakes, contrives, till the deformed bear-whelp, Adultery, be licked into the act,

The very act: that light shall be dammed up; D'ye hear, sir?

Phu. I do hear, my lord; a mason Shall be provided suddenly.

Bass. Some rogue,

Some rogue of your confederacy,—factor
For slaves and strumpets !—to convey close packets
From this spruce springal and the t'other youngster;
That gaudy earwig, or my lord your patron,
Whose pensioner you are.—I'll tear thy throat out,
Son of a cat, ill-looking hound's-head, rip-up
Thy ulcerous maw, if I but scent a paper,
A scroll, but half as big as what can cover
A wart upon thy nose, a spot, a pimple,

1 Youth.

Directed to my lady; it may prove A mystical preparative to lewdness.

Phu. Care shall be had: I will turn every thread About me to an eye.—[Aside] Here's a sweet life!

Bass. The city housewives, cunning in the traffic Of chamber merchandise, set all at price By wholesale; yet they wipe their mouths and simper, Cull, kiss, and cry "sweetheart," and stroke the head Which they have branched; and all is well again! Dull clods of dirt, who dare not feel the rubs Stuck on their foreheads.

Phu. 'Tis a villainous world; One cannot hold his own in't.

Bass.

Dames at court,

Who flaunt in riots, run another bias;
Their pleasure heaves the patient ass that suffers
Up on the stilts of office, titles, incomes;
Promotion justifies the shame, and sues for't.
Poor honour, thou art stabbed, and bleed'st to death
By such unlawful hire! The country mistress
Is yet more wary, and in blushes hides
Whatever trespass draws her troth to guilt.
But all are false: on this truth I am bold,
No woman but can fall, and doth, or would.—
Now for the newest news about the city;
What blab the voices, sirrah?

Phu. O, my lord, The rarest, quaintest, strangest, tickling news That ever—

Bass. Hey-day! up and ride me, rascal! What is't?

Phu. Forsooth, they say the king has mewed? All his gray beard, instead of which is budded Another of a pure carnation colour, Speckled with green and russet.

Bass.

Ignorant block!

¹ Embrace.

² Shed. A term in falconry.

Phu. Yes, truly; and 'tis talked about the streets, That since Lord Ithocles came home, the lions Never left roaring, at which noise the bears Have danced their very hearts out.

Bass. Dance out thine too.

Phu. Besides, Lord Orgilus is fled to Athens Upon a fiery dragon, and 'tis thought He never can return.

Bass. Grant it, Apollo!

Phu. Moreover, please your lordship, 'tis reported For certain, that whoever is found jealous Without apparent proof that's wife is wanton Shall be divorced: but this is but she-news; I had it from a midwife. I have more yet.

Bass. Antic, no more! idiots and stupid fools Grate my calamities. Why to be fair Should yield presumption of a faulty soul—Look to the doors.

Phu. The horn of plenty crest him!

[Aside, and exit.

Bass. Swarms of confusion huddle in my thoughts In rare distemper.—Beauty! O, it is An unmatched blessing or a horrid curse. She comes, she comes! so shoots the morning forth, Spangled with pearls of transparent dew.—

The way to poverty is to be rich,
As I in her am wealthy; but for her,
In all contents a bankrupt.

Enter PENTHEA and GRAUSIS.

Loved Penthea!

How fares my heart's best joy?

Grau.

In sooth, not well,

She is so over-sad.

Bass. Leave chattering, magpie.—
Thy brother is returned, sweet, safe, and honoured
With a triumphant victory; thou shalt visit him:

We will to court, where, if it be thy pleasure,
Thou shalt appear in such a ravishing lustre
Of jewels above value, that the dames
Who brave it there, in rage to be outshined,
Shall hide them in their closets, and unseen
Fret in their tears; whiles every wondering eye
Shall crave none other brightness but thy presence.
Choose thine own recreations; be a queen
Of what delights thou fanciest best, what company,
What place, what times; do anything, do all things
Youth can command, so thou wilt chase these clouds
From the pure firmament of thy fair looks.

Grau. Now 'tis well said, my lord.—What, lady! laugh, Be merry; time is precious.

Bass. [Aside]

Furies whip thee!

Pen. Alas, my lord, this language to your hand-maid Sounds as would music to the deaf; I need No braveries nor cost of art to draw The whiteness of my name into offence:
Let such, if any such there are, who covet A curiosity of admiration,
By laying-out their plenty to full view,
Appear in gaudy outsides; my attires
Shall suit the inward fashion of my mind;
From which, if your opinion, nobly placed,
Change not the livery your words bestow,
My fortunes with my hopes are at the highest.

Bass. This house, methinks, stands somewhat too much inward,

It is too melancholy; we'll remove
Nearer the court: or what thinks my Penthea
Of the delightful island we command?
Rule me as thou canst wish.

Pen. : I am no mistress:

Whither you please, I must attend; all ways Are alike pleasant to me.

Grau.

Island! prison;

Ford.

A prison is as gaysome: we'll no islands; Marry, out upon 'em! whom shall we see there? Sea-gulls, and porpoises, and water-rats, And crabs, and mews, and dog-fish; goodly gear For a young lady's dealing,—or an old one's! On no terms islands; I'll be stewed first.

Bass. [Aside to GRAUSIS]

Grausis,

You are a juggling bawd.—This sadness, sweetest,

Becomes not youthful blood.—[Aside to Grausis] I'll have you pounded.—

For my sake put on a more cheerful mirth;

Thou'lt mar thy cheeks, and make me old in griefs.—

[Aside to Grausis] Damnable bitch-fox!

I am thick of hearing, Grau.

Still, when the wind blows southerly.—What think ye, If your fresh lady breed young bones, my lord!

Would not a chopping boy d'ye good at heart?

But, as you said-

Bass. [Aside to Grausis] I'll spit thee on a stake, Or chop thee into collops!

Grau.

Pray, speak louder.

Sure, sure the wind blows south still.

Pen.

Thou prat'st madly.

Bass. 'Tis very hot; I sweat extremely.

Re-enter Phulas.

Now?

A flock of ladies.

Phu. A herd of lords, sir.

Bass.

Ha!

Phu.

Bass. Where?

Phu.

Shoals of horses.

Bass.

Peasant, how?

Phu.

Caroches 1

In drifts; the one enter, the other stand without, sir: And now I vanish.

¹ Coaches.

Enter Prophilus, Hemophil, Groneas, Christalla, and Philema.

Pro.

Noble Bassanes!

Bass. Most welcome, Prophilus; ladies, gentlemen, To all my heart is open; you all honour me,— [Aside] A tympany swells in my head already,— Honour me bountifully.—[Aside] How they flutter,
Wagtails and jays together!

Pro. From your brother By virtue of your love to him, I require Your instant presence, fairest.

Pen.

He is well, sir?

Pro. The gods preserve him ever! Yet, dear beauty, I find some alteration in him lately, Since his return to Sparta.—My good lord, I pray, use no delay.

Bass. We had not needed An invitation, if his sister's health Had not fall'n into question.—Haste, Penthea,

Slack not a minute.—Lead the way, good Prophilus; I'll follow step by step.

Pro.

Your arm, fair madam.

[Exeunt all but Bassanes and Grausis.

Bass. One word with your old bawdship: th' hadst been better

Railed at the sins 1 thou worshipp'st than have thwarted My will: I'll use thee cursedly

Grau.

You dote,

You are beside yourself. A politician
In jealousy? no, you're too gross, too vulgar.
Pish, teach not me my trade; I know my cue:
My crossing you sinks me into her trust,
By which I shall know all; my trade's a sure one.

Bass. Forgive me, Grausis, 'twas consideration

I relished not; but have a care now.

1 Altered by Gifford to "saints."

Grau.

Fear not.

I am no new-come-to't.

Bass.

Thy life's upon it,

And so is mine. My agonies are infinite.

Exeunt.

SCENE II. The Palace. ITHOCLES' Apartment.

Enter ITHOCLES.

Ith. Ambition! 'tis of vipers' breed: it gnaws
A passage through the womb that gave it motion.
Ambition, like a seeled 'dove, mounts upward,
Higher and higher still, to perch on clouds,
But tumbles headlong down with heavier ruin.
So squibs and crackers fly into the air,
Then, only breaking with a noise, they vanish
In stench and smoke. Morality, applied
To timely practice, keeps the soul in tune,
At whose sweet music all our actions dance:
But this is formed of books and school-tradition;
It physics not the sickness of a mind
Broken with griefs: strong fevers are not eased
With counsel, but with best receipts and means;
Means, speedy means and certain; that's the cure.

Enter Armostes and Crotolon.

Arm. You stick, Lord Crotolon, upon a point Too nice and too unnecessary; Prophilus Is every way desertful. I am confident Your wisdom is too ripe to need instruction From your son's tutelage.

Crot. Yet not so ripe,
My Lord Armostes, that it dare to dote
Upon the painted meat² of smooth persuasion,
Which tempts me to a breach of faith.

Ith. Not yet

Resolved, my lord? Why, if your son's consent Be so available, we'll write to Athens

For his repair to Sparta: the king's hand

Will join with our desires; he has been moved to't.

Arm. Yes, and the king himself importuned Crotolon For a dispatch.

Crot. Kings may command; their wills Are laws not to be questioned.

Ith. By this marriage

You knit an union so devout, so hearty,
Between your loves to me and mine to yours,
As if mine own blood had an interest in it;
For Prophilus is mine, and I am his.

Crot. My lord, my lord!—

Ith. What, good sir? speak your thought.

Crot. Had this sincerity been real once,
My Orgilus had not been now unwived,
Nor your lost sister buried in a bride-bed:
Your uncle here, Armostes, knows this truth;
For had your father Thrasus lived,—but peace
Dwell in his grave! I've done.

Arm. You're bold and bitter.

Ith. [Aside]. He presses home the injury; it smarts.—
No reprehensions, uncle; I deserve 'em,
Yet, gentle sir, consider what the heat
Of an unsteady youth, a giddy brain,
Green indiscretion, flattery of greatness,
Rawness of judgment, wilfulness in folly,
Thoughts vagrant as the wind and as uncertain,
Might lead a boy in years to:—'twas a fault,
A capital fault; for then I could not dive
Into the secrets of commanding love;
Since when experience, by the extremes in others,
Hath forced me collect—and, trust me, Crotolon,
I will redeem those wrongs with any service
Your satisfaction can require for current.

Arm. The acknowledgment is satisfaction:

What would you more?

Crot.

I'm conquered: if Euphranea

Herself admit the motion, let it be so;

I doubt not my son's liking.

Ith.

Use my fortunes,

Life, power, sword, and heart,—all are your own. Arm. The princess, with your sister.

Enter Calantha, Penthea, Euphranea, Christalla, Philema, Grausis, Bassanes, and Prophilus.

Cal.

I present ye

A stranger here in court, my lord; for did not Desire of seeing you draw her abroad, We had not been made happy in her company.

* Ith. You are a gracious princess.—Sister, wedlock Holds too severe a passion in your nature, Which can engross all duty to your husband, Without attendance on so dear a mistress.—

[To Bassanes] 'Tis not my brother's pleasure, I presume, T' immure her in a chamber.

Bass.

'Tis her will;

She governs her own hours. Noble Ithocles, We thank the gods for your success and welfare: Our lady has of late been indisposed, Else we had waited on you with the first.

Ith. How does Penthea now?

Pen.

You best know, brother,

From whom my health and comforts are derived.

Bass. [Aside.] I like the answer well; 'tis sad and modest.

There may be tricks yet, tricks.—Have an eye, Grausis! Cal. Now, Crotolon, the suit we joined in must not Fall by too long demur.

Crot.

'Tis granted, princess,

For my part.

Arm. With condition, that his son Favour the contract.

Cal. Such delay is easy.—
The joys of marriage make thee, Prophilus,
A proud deserver of Euphranea's love,
And her of thy desert!

Pro. Most sweetly gracious!

Bass. The joys of marriage are the heaven on earth, Life's paradise, great princess, the soul's quiet, Sinews of concord, earthly immortality, Eternity of pleasures;—no restoratives

Like to a constant woman!—[Aside] But where is she? 'Twould puzzle all the gods but to create

Such a new monster.—I can speak by proof, For I rest in Elysium; 'tis my happiness.

Crot. Euphranea, how are you resolved, speak freely, In your affections to this gentleman?

Euph. Nor more nor less than as his love assures me; Which—if your liking with my brother's warrants—I cannot but approve in all points worthy.

Crot. So, so !—[To Prophilus] I know your answer. Ith. 'T had been pity

To sunder hearts so equally consented.

Enter HEMOPHIL.

Hem. The king, Lord Ithocles, commands your presence;—

And, fairest princess, yours.

Cal.

We will attend him.

Enter GRONEAS.

Gro. Where are the lords? all must unto the king Without delay: the Prince of Argos—

Cal. Well, sir?

Gro. Is coming to the court, sweet lady.

Cal. How.

The Prince of Argos?

Gro. 'Twas my fortune, madam,

T' enjoy the honour of these happy tidings.

Ith. Penthea!--

Pen.

Brother?

Ith.

Let me an hour hence

Meet you alone within the palace-grove;
I have some secret with you.—Prithee, friend,
Conduct her thither, and have special care
The walks be cleared of any to disturb us.

Pro. I shall.

Bass. [Aside] How's that?

Ith.

Alone, pray be alone.--

I am your creature, princess.—On, my lords!

[Exeunt all but Bassanes.

Bass. Alone! alone! what means that word "alone"? Why might not I be there?—hum!—he's her brother. Brothers and sisters are but flesh and blood, And this same whoreson court-ease is temptation To a rebellion in the veins;—besides, His fine friend Prophilus must be her guardian: Why may not he dispatch a business nimbly Before the other come?—or—pandering, pandering For one another,—be't to sister, mother, Wife, cousin, anything,—'mongst youths of mettle Is in request; it is so—stubborn fate! But if I be a cuckold, and can know it, I will be fell, and fell.

Re-enter GRONEAS.

Gro.

My lord, you're called for.

Bass. Most heartily I thank ye. Where's my wife, pray?

Gro. Retired amongst the ladies.

Bass.

Still I thank ye.

There's an old waiter with her; saw you her too?

Gro. She sits i' the presence-lobby fast asleep, sir.

Bass. Asleep! asleep, sir!

Gro.

Is your lordship troubled?

You will not to the king?

Bass.

Your humblest vassal.

Gro. Your servant, my good lord.

Bass.

I wait your footsteps.

[Exeunt.

SCENE III.—The Gardens of the Palace. A Grove.

Enter Prophilus and Penthea.

Pro. In this walk, lady, will your brother find you: And, with your favour, give me leave a little To work a preparation. In his fashion I have observed of late some kind of slackness To such alacrity as nature once And custom took delight in; sadness grows Upon his recreations, which he hoards In such a willing silence, that to question The grounds will argue little skill in friendship, And less good manners.

Pen. Sir, I'm not inquisitive Of secrecies without an invitation.

• Pro. With pardon, lady, not a syllable Of mine implies so rude a sense; the drift—

Enter Orgilus, disguised as before.

[To Org.] Do thy best

To make this lady merry for an hour.

Org. Your will shall be a law, sir. [Exit Prophilus. Pen. Prithee, leave me;

I have some private thoughts I would account with; Use thou thine own.

Org. Speak on, fair nymph; our souls Can dance as well to music of the spheres As any's who have feasted with the gods.

Pen. Your school-terms are too troublesome.

Org. What Heaven

Refines mortality from dross of earth

But such as uncompounded beauty hallows With glorified perfection?

Pen.

Set thy wits

In a less wild proportion.

. . . sprinkled, like dews, to feed them And to increase their fervour.

Pen.

Be not frantic,

Org. All pleasures are but mere imagination, Feeding the hungry appetite with steam And sight of banquet, whilst the body pines, Not relishing the real taste of food:
Such is the leanness of a heart divided
From intercourse of troth-contracted loves;
No horror should deface that precious figure Sealed with the lively stamp of equal souls.

Pen. Away! some Fury hath bewitched thy tongue: The breath of ignorance, that flies from thence, Ripens a knowledge in me of afflictions Above all sufferance.—Thing of talk, begone! Begone, without reply!

Org. Be just, Penthea, In thy commands; when thou send'st forth a doom Of banishment, know first on whom it lights. Thus I take off the shroud, in which my cares

¹ This passage is corrupt; it was amended by Gifford; the old copy reads,

"as the incense smoking
The holiest artars, virgin tears (like
On Vesta's odours) sprinkled dews to feed 'em,
And to increase," &c.

Are folded up from view of common eyes. [Throws off his Scholar's dress. What is thy sentence next? Rash man! thou laý'st Pen. A blemish on mine honour, with the hazard Of thy too-desperate life: yet I profess, By all the laws of ceremonious wedlock, I have not given admittance to one thought Of female change since cruelty enforced Divorce betwixt my body and my heart. Why would you fall from goodness thus? Org. O, rather Examine me, how I could live to say I have been much, much wronged. 'Tis for thy sake I put on this imposture: dear Penthea, If thy soft bosom be not turned to marble, Thou'lt pity our calamities; my interest Confirms me thou art mine still. Pen. Lend your hand; With both of mine I clasp it thus, thus kiss it, Thus kneel before ye. PENTHEA kneels. You instruct my duty. [Orgilus kneels. Pen. We may stand up. [They rise.] Have you aught else to urge Of new demand? as for the old, forget it; 'Tis buried in an everlasting silence, And shall be, shall be ever: what more would ye? Org. I would possess my wife; the equity Of very reason bids me. Pen. Is that all? Org. Why, 'tis the all of me, myself. Remove Pen. Your steps some distance from me:—at this space A few words I dare change; but first put on Your borrowed shape.

You are obeyed; 'tis done.

[He resumes his disguise.

Org.

Pen. How, Orgilus, by promise I was thine The heavens do witness; they can witness too A rape done on my truth: how I do love thee Yet, Orgilus, and yet, must best appear In tendering thy freedom; for I find The constant preservation of thy merit, By thy not daring to attempt my fame With injury of any loose conceit, Which might give deeper wounds to discontents. Continue this fair race: then, though I cannot Add to thy comfort, yet I shall more often Remember from what fortune I am fall'n, And pity mine own ruin.—Live, live happy,-Happy in thy next choice, that thou mayst people This barren age with virtues in thy issue! And O, when thou art married, think on me With mercy, not contempt! I hope thy wife, Hearing my story, will not scorn my fall.— Now let us part.

Org. Part! yet advise thee better: Penthea is the wife to Orgilus, And ever shall be.

Pen. Never shall nor will.

Org. How!

Pen. Hear me; in a word I'll tell thee why. The virgin-dowry which my birth bestowed Is ravished by another; my true love Abhors to think that Orgilus deserved No better favours than a second bed.

Org. I must not take this reason.

Pen. To confirm it;

Should I outlive my bondage, let me meet Another worse than this and less desired, If, of all men alive, thou shouldst but touch My lip or hand again!

Org. Penthea, now I tell ye, you grow wanton in my sufferance: Come, sweet, thou'rt mine.

Uncivil sir, forbear! Pen. Or I can turn affection into vengeance; Your reputation, if you value any, Lies bleeding at my feet. Unworthy man, If ever henceforth thou appear in language, Message, or letter, to betray my frailty, I'll call thy former protestations lust, And curse my stars for forfeit of my judgment. Go thou, fit only for disguise, and walks, To hide thy shame: this once I spare thy life. I laugh at mine own confidence; my sorrows By thee are made inferior to my fortunes. If ever thou didst harbour worthy love, Dare not to answer. My good genius guide me, That I may never see thee more !—Go from me!

Org. I'll tear my veil of politic French off,
And stand up like a man resolved to do:
Action, not words, shall show me.—O Penthea! [Exit.

Pen. He sighed my name, sure, as he parted from

I fear I was too rough. Alas, poor gentleman!
He looked not like the ruins of his youth,

But like the ruins of those ruins. Honour,

How much we fight with weakness to preserve thee!

[Walks aside.]

Enter Bassanes and Grausis.

Bass Fie on thee! damn thee, rotten maggot, damn thee!

Sleep? sleep at court? and now? Aches,¹ convulsions, Imposthumes, rheums, gouts, palsies, clog thy bones A dozen years more yet!

Grau. Now you're in humours.

Bass. She's by herself, there's hope of that; she's sad too;

She's in strong contemplation; yes, and fixed: The signs are wholesome.

I The word was pronounced as a dissyllable, aitches.

Gau. Very wholesome, truly.

Bass. Hold your chops, nightmare!—Lady, come; your brother

Is carried to his closet; you must thither.

Pen. Not well, my lord?

Bass. A sudden fit; 'twill off!

Some surfeit or disorder.—How dost, dearest?

Pen. Your news is none o' the best.

Ré-enter PROPHILUS.

Pro. The chief of men,

The excellentest Ithocles, desires Your presence, madam.

Bass. We are hasting to him.

Pen. In vain we labour in this course of life To piece our journey out at length, or crave Respite of breath: our home is in the grave.

Bass. Perfect philosophy!

Pen. Then let us care

To live so, that our reckonings may fall even When we're to make account.

Pro. He cannot fear

Who builds on noble grounds: sickness or pain Is the deserver's exercise; and such Your virtuous brother to the world is known. Speak comfort to him, lady; be all gentle: Stars fall but in the grossness of our sight; A good man dying, the earth doth lose a light.

[Exeunt.

ACT THE THIRD.

SCENE I .- The Study of TECNICUS.

Enter TECNICUS, and ORGILUS in his usual dress.

EC. Be well advised; let not a resolu-

Of giddy rashness choke the breath of reason.

Org. It shall not, most sage master.

Tec. I am jealous; 1

For if the borrowed shape so late put

Inferred a consequence, we must conclude Some violent design of sudden nature Hath shook that shadow off, to fly upon A new-hatched execution. Orgilus, Take heed thou hast not, under our integrity, Shrouded unlawful plots; our mortal eyes Pierce not the secrets of your heart, the gods Are only privy to them.

Org. Learned Tecnicus,
Such doubts are causeless; and, to clear the truth
From misconceit, the present state commands me.
The Prince of Argos comes himself in person
In quest of great Calantha for his bride,
Our kingdom's heir; besides, mine only sister,
Euphranea, is disposed to Prophilus;
Lastly, the king is sending letters for me
To Athens, for my quick repair to court:

1 Suspicious,

Please to accept these reasons.

Tec. Just ones, Orgilus,

Not to be contradicted: yet beware
Of an unsure foundation; no fair colours
Can fortify a building faintly jointed.
I have observed a growth in thy aspéct
Of dangerous extent, sudden, and—look to't—
I might add, certain—

Org. My aspect! could art Run through mine inmost thoughts, it should not sift An inclination there more than what suited With justice of mine honour.

Tec. I believe it.

But know then, Orgilus, what honour is: Honour consists not in a bare opinion By doing any act that feeds content, Brave in appearance, 'cause we think it brave; Such honour comes by accident, not nature, Proceeding from the vices of our passion, Which makes our reason drunk: but real honour Is the reward of virtue, and acquired By justice, or by valour which for basis Hath justice to uphold it. He then fails In honour, who for lucre or revenge Commits thefts, murders, treasons, and adulteries, With suchlike, by intrenching on just laws, Whose sovereignty is best preserved by justice. Thus, as you see how honour must be grounded On knowledge, not opinion,—for opinion Relies on probability and accident, But knowledge on necessity and truth,— I leave thee to the fit consideration Of what becomes the grace of real honour, Wishing success to all thy virtuous meanings.

Org. The gods increase thy wisdom, reverend oracle, And in thy precepts make me ever thrifty!

Tec. I thank thy wish.

[Exit Orgilus.]

Much mystery of fate

Lies hid in that man's fortunes; curiosity
May lead his actions into rare attempts:—
But let the gods be moderators still;
No human power can prevent their will.

Enter ARMOSTES with a casket.

From whence come ye?

Arm. From King Amyclas,—pardon My interruption of your studies.—Here, In this sealed box, he sends a treasure to you, Dear to him as his crown: he prays your gravity, You would examine, ponder, sift, and bolt The pith and circumstance of every tittle The scroll within contains.

Tec.

What is't, Armostes?

Arm. It is the health of Sparta, the king's life, Sinews and safety of the commonwealth; The sum of what the oracle delivered When last he visited the prophetic temple At Delphos: what his reasons are, for which, After so long a silence, he requires Your counsel now, grave man, his majesty Will soon himself acquaint you with.

Tec. Apollo [He takes the tasket. Inspire my intellect!—The Prince of Argos
Is entertained?

Arm. He is; and has demanded Our princess for his wife; which I conceive One special cause the king importunes you For resolution of the oracle.

Tec. My duty to the king, good peace to Sparta, And fair day to Armostes!

Arm.

Like to Tecnicus! [Exeunt.

Ford.

Q

SCENE II.—The Palace. ITHOCLES' Apartment.

Soft music. A song within, during which Prophilus, Bassanes, Penthea, and Grausis pass over the stage. Bassanes and Grausis re-enter softly, and listen in different places.

Song.

Can you paint a thought? or number Every fancy in a slumber? Can you count soft minutes roving From a dial's point by moving? Can you grasp a sigh? or, lastly, Rob a virgin's honour chastely? No, O, no! yet you may Sooner do both that and this, This and that, and never miss, Than by any praise display Beauty's beauty; such a glory, As beyond all fate, all story, All arms, all arts, All loves, all hearts, Greater than those or they, Do, shall, and must obey.

Bass. All silent, calm, secure.—Grausis, no creaking? No noise? dost hear nothing?

Grau.

Not a mouse,

Or whisper of the wind.

Bass. The floor is matted;
The bedposts sure are steel or marble.—Soldiers
Should not affect, methinks, strains so effeminate:
Sounds of such delicacy are but fawnings
Upon the sloth of luxury, they heighten
Cinders of covert lust up to a flame.

Grau. What do you mean, my lord?—speak low; that gabbling

Of yours will but undo us.

Bass.

Chamber-combats

Are felt, not heard.

Pro. [Within] He wakes.

Bass.

What's that?

Ith. [Within]

Who's there?

Sister?—All quit the room else.

Bass.

'Tis consented!

Re-enter Prophilus.

Pro. Lord Bassanes, your brother would be private, We must forbear; his sleep hath newly left him. Please ye withdraw.

Bass.

By any means; 'tis fit.

Pro. Pray, gentlewoman, walk too.

Grau.

Yes, I will, sir. [Exeunt.

The scene opens; ITHOCLES is discovered in a chair, and Penthea beside him.

Ith. Sit nearer, sister to me; nearer yet: We had one father, in one womb took life, Were brought up twins together, yet have lived At distance, like two strangers: I could wish That the first pillow whereon I was cradled Had proved to me a grave.

Pen.

You had been happy:

Then had you never known that sin of life
Which blots all following glories with a vengeance,
For forfeiting the last will of the dead,
From whom you had your being.

.Ith.

Sad Penthea,

Thou canst not be too cruel; my rash spleen
Hath with a violent hand plucked from thy bosom
A love-blest heart, to grind it into dust;
For which mine's now a-breaking.

Pen.

Not yet, Heaven,

I do beseech thee! first let some wild fires

Scorch, not consume it! may the heat be cherished

Here, lo, I breathe,

With desires infinite, but hopes impossible!

Ith. Wronged soul, thy prayers are heard.

Pen.

A miserable creature, led to ruin By an unnatural brother!

Ith. I consume

In languishing affections for that trespass; Yet cannot die.

Pen. The handmaid to the wages Of country toil drinks the untroubled streams With leaping kids and with the bleating lambs, And so allays her thirst secure; whiles I Quench my hot sighs with fleetings of my tears.

Ith. The labourer doth eat his coarsest bread, Earned with his sweat, and lies him down to sleep; While every bit I touch turns in digestion To gall as bitter as Penthea's curse. Put me to any penance for my tyranny, And I will call thee merciful.

Pen. Pray kill me,

Rid me from living with a jealous husband; Then we will join in friendship, be again

Brother and sister.—Kill me, pray; nay, will ye?

Ith. How does thy lord esteem thee?

Pen. Such an one

As only you have made me; a faith-breaker,

A spotted whore:—forgive me, I am one— In act, not in desires, the gods must witness.

Ith. Thou dost belie thy friend.

Pen. I do not, Ithocles;

For she that's wite to Orgilus, and lives
In known adultery with Bassanes,
Is at the best a whore. Wilt kill me now?
The ashes of our parents will assume
Some dreadful figure, and appear to charge
Thy bloody guilt, that hast betrayed their name
To infamy in this reproachful match.

Ith. After my victories abroad, at home
I meet despair; ingratitude of nature
Hath made my actions monstrous: thou shalt stand
A deity, my sister, and be worshipped
For thy resolvèd martyrdom; wronged maids
And married wives shall to thy hallowed shrine
Offer their orisons, and sacrifice
Pure turtles, crowned with myrtle; if thy pity
Unto a yielding brother's pressure lend
One finger but to ease it.

Pen.

Ith.

O, no more!

Ith. Death waits to waft me to the Stygian banks, And free me from this chaos of my bondage; And till thou wilt forgive, I must endure.

Pen. Who is the saint you serve?

Ith. Friendship, or nearness

Of birth to any but my sister, durst not Have moved that question; 'tis a secret, sister, I dare not murmur to myself.

Pen. Let me,

By your new protestations I conjure ye, Partake her name.

Ith. Her name?—'tis—'tis—I dare not.

Pen. All your respects are forged.

Ith. They are not.—Peace!

Calantha is—the princess—the king's daughter—

Sole heir of Sparta.—Me, most miserable!

Do I now love thee? for my injuries

Revenge thyself with bravery, and gossip

My treasons to the king's ears, do:-Calantha

Knows it not yet, nor Prophilus, my nearest.

Pen. Suppose you were contracted to her, would it not

Split even your very soul to see her father
Snatch her out of your arms against her will,
And force her on the Prince of Argos?

And force her on the Prince of Argos?

Trouble not

The fountains of mine eyes with thine own story; I sweat in blood for't.

Pen. We are reconciled.

Alas, sir, being children, but two branches Of one stock, 'tis not fit we should divide:

Have comfort, you may find it.

Ith. Yes, in thee;

Only in thee, Penthea mine.

Pen. If sorrows

Have not too much dulled my infected brain, I'll cheer invention for an active strain.

Ith. Mad man! why have I wronged a maid so excellent!

Bassanes rushes in with a poniard, followed by Pro-PHILUS, GRONEAS, HEMOPHIL, and GRAUSIS.

Bass. I can forbear no longer; more, I will not: Keep off your hands, or fall upon my point.—Patience is tired; for, like a slow-paced ass, Ye ride my easy nature, and proclaim My sloth to vengeance a reproach and property.

Ith. The meaning of this rudeness?

Pro. He's distracted.

Pen. O, my grieved lord!—

Grau. Sweet lady, come not near him;

He holds his perilous weapon in his hand

To prick he cares not whom nor where,—see, see, see!

Bass. My birth is noble: though the popular blast Of vanity, as giddy as thy youth, Hath reared thy name up to bestride a cloud,

Or progress in the chariot of the sun, I am no clod of trade, to lackey pride,

This passage is not without curiosity as tending to prove that some of the words now supposed to be Americanisms were in use among our ancestors, and crossed the Atlantic with them. It is not generally known that Ford's county (Devonshire) supplied a very considerable number of the earlier settlers in the Colonies.— Gifford.

Nor, like your slave of expectation, wait The bawdy hinges of your doors, or whistle For mystical conveyance to your bed-sports.

Gro. Fine humours! they become him.

Hem. How he stares,

Struts, puffs, and sweats! most admirable lunacy!

Ith. But that I may conceive the spirit of wine Has took possession of your soberer custom, I'd say you were unmannerly.

Pen.

Dear brother!—

Bass. Unmannerly!—mew, kitling!—smooth formality Is usher to the rankness of the blood, But impudence bears up the train. Indeed, sir,

Your fiery mettle, or your springal blaze

Of huge renown, is no sufficient royalty

To print upon my forehead the scorn, "cuckold."

Ith. His jealousy has robbed him of his wits; He talks he knows not what.

Bass.

Yes, and he knows

To whom he talks; to one that franks his lust In swine-security 1 of bestial incest.

Ith. Ha, devil!

Bass. I will haloo't; though I blush more To name the filthiness than thou to act it.

Ith. Monster!

[Draws his sword.

Pro.

Sir, by our friendship—

Pen.

By our bloods—

Will you quite both undo us, brother?

Grau.

Out on him!

These are his megrims, firks,² and melancholies.

Hem. Well said, old touch-hole.

Gro.

Kick him out of doors.

¹ Bassanes alludes to the small enclosures—"franks," as distinguished from "styes"—in which boars were fattened. As these animals were dangerous when full-fed, it was necessary to shut them up alone.—Gifford.

Pen. With favour, let me speak.—My lord, what slack-ness.

In my obedience hath deserved this rage? Except humility and silent duty Have drawn on your unquiet, my simplicity Ne'er studied your vexation.

Bass.

Light of beauty,

Deal not ungently with a desperate wound!

No breach of reason dares make war with her

Whose looks are sovereignty, whose breath is balm:

O, that I could preserve thee in fruition

As in devotion!

Pen. Sir, may every evil

Locked in Pandora's box shower, in your presence,
On my unhappy head, if, since you made me
A partner in your bed, I have been faulty
In one unseemly thought against your honour!

Ith. Purge not his griefs, Penthea.

Bass. Yes, say on,

Excellent creature!—[To ITHOCLES.] Good, be not a hindrance

To peace and praise of virtue.—O, my senses
Are charmed with sounds celestial!—On, dear, on:
I never gave you one ill word; say, did I?
Indeed I did not.

Pen. Nor, by Juno's forehead,

Was I e'er guilty of a wanton error.

Bass. A goddess! let me kneel.

Grau.

Alas, kind animal!

Ith. No; but for penance.

Bass. Noble sir, what is it?

With gladness I embrace it; yet, pray let not My rashness teach you to be too unmerciful.

Ith. When you shall show good proof that manly wisdom,

Not overswayed by passion or opinion, Knows how to lead your judgment, then this lady, Your wife, my sister, shall return in safety Home, to be guided by you; but, till first I can out of clear evidence approve it, She shall be my care.

Bass. Rip my bosom up, I'll stand the execution with a constancy; This torture is insufferable.

Ith. Well, sir,

I dare not trust her to your fury.

Bass. But

Penthea says not so.

Pen. She needs no tongue

To plead excuse who never purposed wrong.

[Exit with ITHOCLES and PROPHILUS.

Hem. Virgin of reverence and antiquity, Stay you behind.

[To Grausis, who is following Penthea. Gro. The court wants not your diligence.

Exeunt Hemophil and Groneas.

Grau. What will you do, my lord? my lady's gone; I am denied to follow.

Bass. I may see her,

Or speak to her once more?

Grau. And feel her too, man;

Be of good cheer, she's your own flesh and bone.

Bass. Diseases desperate must find cures alike. She swore she has been true.

Grau. True, on my modesty.

Bass. Let him want truth who credits not her vows!

Much wrong I did her, but her brother infinite;

Rumour will voice me the contempt of manhood,

Should I run on thus: some way I must try

To outdo art, and jealousy decry.

[Exeunt.

SCENE III.—A Room in the Palace.

Flourish. Enter Amyclas, Nearchus, leading Calantha, Armostes, Crotolon, Euphranea, Christalla, Philema, and Amelus.

Amy. Cousin of Argos, what the heavens have pleased, In their unchanging counsels, to conclude For both our kingdoms' weal, we must submit to:

Nor can we be unthankful to their bounties,
Who, when we were even creeping to our grave,
Sent us a daughter, in whose birth our hope
Continues of succession. As you are
In title next, being grandchild to our aunt,
So we in heart desire you may sit nearest Calantha's love; since we have ever vowed
Not to enforce affection by our will,
But by her own choice to confirm it gladly.

Near. You speak the nature of a right just father. I come not hither roughly to demand My cousin's thraldom, but to free mine own: Report of great Calantha's beauty, virtue, Sweetness, and singular perfections, courted All ears to credit what I find was published By constant truth; from which, if any service Of my desert can purchase fair construction, This lady must command it.

Cal. Princely sir,
So well you know how to profess observance,
That you instruct your hearers to become
Practitioners in duty; of which number
I'll study to be chief.

Near. Chief, glorious virgin,
In my devotion, as in all men's wonder.

Amy. Excellent cousin, we deny no liberty;
Use thine own opportunities.—Armostes,
We must consult with the philosophers;
The business is of weight.

Arm.

Sir, at your pleasure.

Amy. You told me, Crotolon, your son's returned From Athens: wherefore comes he not to court, As we commanded?

Crot.

He shall soon attend

Your royal will, great sir.

Amy.

The marriage

Between young Prophilus and Euphranea Tastes of too much delay.

Crot.

My lord,—

Amy.

Some pleasures

At celebration of it would give life

To the entertainment of the prince our kinsman;

Our court wears gravity more than we relish.

Arm. Yet the heavens smile on all your high attempts,

Without a cloud.

Crot.

So may the gods protect us!

Cal. A prince a subject?

Near.

Yes, to beauty's sceptre;

As all hearts kneel, so mine.

Cal.

You are too courtly.

Enter Ithocles, Orgilus, and Prophilus.

Ith. Your safe return to Sparta is most welcome:

I joy to meet you here, and, as occasion

Shall grant us privacy, will yield you reasons

Why I should covet to deserve the title

Of your respected friend; for, without compliment,

Believe it, Orgilus, 'tis my ambition.

Org. Your lordship may command me, your poor servant.

Ith. [Aside] So amorously close!—so soon!—my heart!

Pro. What sudden change is next?

Ith. Life to the king!

To whom I here present this noble gentleman,

New come from Athens: royal sir, vouchsafe Your gracious hand in favour of his merit.

[The King gives Orgilus his hand to kiss.

Crot. [Aside] My son preferred by Ithocles!

Amy. Our bounties

Shall open to thee, Orgilus; for instance,—
Hark in thine ear,—if, out of those inventions
Which flow in Athens, thou hast there engrossed
Some rarity of wit, to grace the nuptials
Of thy fair sister, and renown our court
In the eyes of this young prince, we shall be debtor
To thy conceit: think on't.

Org. Your highness honours me.

Near. My tongue and heart are twins.

Cal. A noble birth,

Becoming such a father.—Worthy Orgilus, You are a guest most wished for.

Org. May my duty.

Still rise in your opinion, sacred princess!

Ith. Euphranea's brother, sir; a gentleman Well worthy of your knowledge.

Near. We embrace him,

Proud of so dear acquaintance.

Amy. All prepare

For revels and disport; the joys of Hymen, Like Phœbus in his lustre, put to flight

All mists of dulness, crown the hours with gladness:

No sounds but music, no discourse but mirth!

Cal. Thine arm, I prithee, Ithocles.—Nay, good

My lord, keep on your way; I am provided.

Near. I dare not disobey.

Ith. Most heavenly lady!

[Exeunt.

SCENE IV.—A Room in the House of CROTOLON.

Enter CROTOLON and ORGILUS.

Crot. The king hath spoke his mind.

Org. His will he hath;

But were it lawful to hold plea against
The power of greatness, not the reason, haply
Such undershrubs as subjects sometimes might Borrow of nature justice, to inform
That license sovereignty holds without check
Over a meek obedience.

Crot. How resolve you Touching your sister's marriage? Prophilus Is a deserving and a hopeful youth.

Org. I envy not his merit, but applaud it; Could wish him thrift in all his best desires, And with a willingness inleague our blood With his, for purchase of full growth in friendship. He never touched on any wrong that maliced The honour of our house nor stirred our peace: Yet, with your favour, let me not forget Under whose wing he gathers warmth and comfort, Whose creature he is bound, made, and must live so.

Crot. Son, son, I find in thee a harsh condition; 1 No courtesy can win it, 'tis too rancorous.

Org. Good sir, be not severe in your construction; I am no stranger to such easy calms
As sit in tender bosoms: lordly Ithocles
Hath graced my entertainment in abundance;
Too humbly hath descended from that height
Of arrogance and spleen which wrought the rape
On grieved Penthea's purity; his scorn
Of my untoward fortunes is reclaimed
Unto a courtship, almost to a fawning:—
I'll kiss his foot, since you will have it so.

Crot. Since I will have it so! friend, I will have it so,

1 i.e. Disposition.

Without our ruin by your politic plots, Or wolf of hatred snarling in your breast. You have a spirit, sir, have ye? a familiar That posts i' the air for your intelligence? Some such hobgoblin hurried you from Athens, For yet you come unsent for.

Org.

If unwelcome,

I might have found a grave there.

Crot.

Sure, your business

Was soon dispatched, or your mind altered quickly.

Org. 'Twas care, sir, of my health cut short my journey; For there a general infection Threatens a desolation.

Crot.

And I fear

Thou hast brought back a worse infection with thee,— Infection of thy mind; which, as thou say'st, Threatens the desolation of our family.

Org. Forbid it, our dear genius! I will rather Be made a sacrifice on Thrasus' monument, Or kneel to Ithocles his son in dust, Than woo a father's curse. My sister's marriage With Prophilus is from my heart confirmed; May I live hated, may I die despised, If I omit to further it in all

That can concern me!

Crot.

I have been too rough.

My duty to my king made me so earnest; Excuse it, Orgilus.

Org.

Dear sir!—

Crot.

Here comes

Euphranea, with Prophilus and Ithocles.

Enter Prophilus, Euphranea, Ithocles, Groneas and Hemophil.

Org. Most honoured !—ever famous!

th. Y

Your true friend;

On earth not any truer.—With smooth eyes

Look on this worthy couple; your consent Can only make them one.

Org. They have it.—Sister,
Thou pawnedst to me an oath, of which engagement
I never will release thee, if thou aim'st
At any other choice than this.

Euph.

Dear brother,

At him, or none.

Crot.

To which my blessing's added.

Org. Which, till a greater ceremony perfect,— Euphranea, lend thy hand,—here, take her, Prophilus: Live long a happy man and wife; and further, That these in presence may conclude an omen. Thus for a bridal song I close my wishes:

(Sings) Comforts lasting, loves increasing,
Like soft hours never ceasing:
Plenty's pleasure, peace complying,
Without jars, or tongues envying;
Hearts by holy union wedded,
More than theirs by custom bedded;
Fruitful issues; life so graced,
Not by age to be defaced,
Budding, as the year ensu'th,
Every spring another youth:
All what thought can add beside
Crown this bridegroom and this bride!

Pro. You have sealed joy close to my soul.—Euphranea Now I may call thee mine.

Ith.

I but exchange

One good friend for another.

Org.

If these gallants

Will please to grace a poor invention By joining with me in some slight device, I'll venture on a strain my younger days Have studied for delight.

Hem.

With thankful willingness

I offer my attendance.

Gro.

No endeavour

Of mine shall fail to show itself.

Ith.

We will

All join to wait on thy directions, Orgilus.

Org. O, my good lord, your favours flow towards A too unworthy worm;—but as you please;

I am what you will shape me.

Ith.

A fast friend.

Crot. I think thee, son, for this acknowledgment; It is a sight of gladness.

Org.

But my duty.

Exeunt.

SCENE V.—CALANTHA'S Apartment in the Palace.

Enter Calantha, Penthea, Christalla, and Philema.

Cal. Whoe'er would speak with us, deny his entrance; Be careful of our charge.

Chris.

We shall, madam.

Cal. Except the king himself, give none admittance; Not any.

Phil. Madam, it shall be our care.

[Exeunt CHRISTALLA and PHILEMA.

Cal. Being alone, Penthea, you have granted The opportunity you sought, and might At all times have commanded.

Pen.

'Tis a benefit

Which I shall owe your goodness even in death for: My glass of life, sweet princess, hath few minutes Remaining to run down; the sands are spent; For by an inward messenger I feel

The summons of departure short and certain.

Cal. You feel too much your melancholy.

Pen.

Glories

Of human greatness are but pleasing dreams

And shadows soon decaying: on the stage Of my mortality my youth hath acted Some scenes of vanity, drawn out at length By varied pleasures, sweetened in the mixture, But tragical in issue: beauty, pomp, With every sensuality our giddiness Doth frame an idol, are unconstant friends, When any troubled passion makes assault On the unguarded castle of the mind.

Cal. Contemn not your condition for the proof -Of bare opinion only: to what end Reach all these moral texts?

Pen.

To place before ye

Indeed

A perfect mirror, wherein you may see How weary I am of a lingering life, Who count the best a misery.

Cal.

You have no little cause; yet none so great As to distrust a remedy.

Pen. That remedy Must be a winding-sheet, a fold of lead, And some untrod-on corner in the earth.— Not to detain your expectation, princess, I have an humble suit.

Speak; I enjoy it. Cal.

Pen. Vouchsafe, then, to be my executrix, And take that trouble on ye to dispose Such legacies as I bequeath impartially; I have not much to give, the pains are easy; Heaven will reward your piety, and thank it When I am dead; for sure I must not live; I hope I cannot.

Now, beshrew thy sadness, Cal. Thou turn'st me too much woman.

[Weeps.

Pen. [Aside]

Her fair eyes

Melt into passion.—Then I have assurance Encouraging my boldness. In this paper

Ford.

My will was charactered; which you, with pardon, Shall now know from mine own mouth.

Cal.

Talk on, prithee;

It is a pretty earnest.

Pen.

I have left me

But three poor jewels to bequeath. The first is My youth; for though I am much old in griefs, In years I am a child.

Cal.

To whom that jewel?

Pen. To virgin-wives, such as abuse not wedlock By freedom of desires, but covet chiefly The pledges of chaste beds for ties of love, Rather than ranging of their blood; and next To married maids, such as prefer the number Of honourable issue in their virtues Before the flattery of delights by marriage: May those be ever young!

Cal.

A second jewel

You mean to part with?

Pen.

'Tis my fame, I trust

By scandal yet untouched: this I bequeath To Memory, and Time's old daughter, Truth.

If ever my unhappy name find mention

When I am fall'n to dust, may it deserve

Beseeming charity without dishonour!

Cal. How handsomely thou play'st with harmless sport

Of mere imagination! speak the last.

I strangely like thy will.

Pen.

This jewel, madam,

Is dearly precious to me; you must use
The best of your discretion to employ
This gift as I intend it.

Cal.

Do not doubt me.

Pen. 'Tis long agone since first I lost my heart! Long I have lived without it, else for certain I should have given that too; but instead

Of it, to great Calantha, Sparta's heif, By service bound and by affection vowed, I do bequeath, in holiest rites of love, Mine only brother, Ithocles.

Cal.

What saidst thou?

Pen. Impute not, heaven-blest lady, to ambition A faith as humbly perfect as the prayers Of a devoted suppliant can endow it:

Look on him, princess, with an eye of pity;

How like the ghost of what he late appeared He moves before you.

Cal. Shall I answer here, Or lend my ear too grossly?

Pen. First his heart
Shall fall in cinders, scorched by your disdain,
Ere he will dare, poor man, to ope an eye
On these divine looks, but with low-bent thoughts
Accusing such presumption; as for words,
He dares not utter any but of service:
Yet this lost creature loves ye.—Be a princess
In sweetness as in blood; give him his doom,
Or raise him up to comfort.

Cal. What new change Appears in my behaviour, that thou dar'st Tempt my displeasure?

Pen. I must leave the world To revel in Elysium, and 'tis just To wish my brother some advantage here; Yet, by my best hopes, Ithocles is ignorant Of this pursuit: but if you please to kill him, Lend him one angry look or one harsh word, And you shall soon conclude how strong a power Your absolute authority holds over His life and end.

Cal. You have forgot, Penthea, How still I have a father.

Pen.

But remember

I am a sister, though to me this brother

Hath been, you know, unkind, O, most unkind!

Cal. Christalla, Philema, where are ye?—Lady,

Your check lies in my silence.

Re-enter CHRISTALLA and PHILEMA.

Chris, and Phil.

Madam, here.

Cal. I think ye sleep, ye drones: wait on Penthea Unto her lodging.—[Aside] Ithocles? wronged lady! Pen. My reckonings are made even; death or fate Can now nor strike too soon nor force too late.

[Exeunt.

ACT THE FOURTH.

SCENE I .-- The Palace. ITHOCLES' Apartment.

Enter ITHOCLES and ARMOSTES.

TH. Forbear your inquisition: curiosity Is of too subtle and too searching

In fears of love too quick, too slow of credit. --

I am not what you doubt me.

Nephew, be, then, Arm.

As I would wish ;---all is not right.--Good heaven Confirm your resolutions for dependence On worthy ends, which may advance your quiet!

Ith. I did the noble Orgilus much injury, But grieved Penthea more: I now repent it,--Now, uncle, now; this "now" is now too late. So provident is folly in sad issue, That after-wit, like bankrupts' debts, stands tallied, Without all possibilities of payment. Sure, he's an honest, very honest gentleman;

A man of single 1 meaning.

Arm. I believe it:

Yet, nephew, 'tis the tongue informs our ears; Our eyes can never pierce into the thoughts, For they are lodged too inward: but I question No truth in Orgilus.—The princess, sir.

Ith. The princess! ha!

Arm. With her the Prince of Argos.

¹ Sincere.

Enter Nearchus, leading Calantha; Amelus, Christalla, Philema.

Near. Great fair one, grace my hopes with any instance

Of livery,1 from the allowance of your favour;

This little spark—[Attempts to take a ring from her finger.

Cal. A toy!

Near.

Love feasts on toys,

For Cupid is a child;—vouchsafe this bounty: It cannot be denied.

Cal. You shall not value, Sweet cousin, at a price, what I count cheap; So cheap, that let him take it who dares stoop for't, And give it at next meeting to a mistress: She'll thank him for't, perhaps.

[Casts the ring before ITHOCLES, who takes it up. The ring, sir, is

The princess's; I could have took it up.

Ith. Learn manners, prithee.—To the blessed owner,
Upon my knees— [Kneels and offers it to CALANTHA.

Near. You're saucy.

Cal. This is pretty!

I am, belike, "a mistress"—wondrous pretty!— Let the man keep his fortune, since he found it; He's worthy on't.—On, cousin!

[Exeunt Nearchus, Calantha, Christalla, and Philema.

Ith. [to Amelus]

Follow, spaniel;

I'll force ye to a fawning else.

Ame.

Ame.

You dare not.

Exit.

Arm. My lord, you were too forward.

Ith.

Look ye, uncle,

Some such there are whose liberal contents Swarm without care in every sort of plenty;

¹ This was the language of courtship, and was derived from the practice of distinguishing the followers and retainers of great families by the badge or crest of the house.—Gifford.

Who after full repasts can lay them down
To sleep; and they sleep, uncle: in which silence
Their very dreams present 'em choice of pleasures,
Pleasures—observe me, uncle—of rare object;
Here heaps of gold, there increments of honours,
Now change of garments, then the votes of people;
Anon varieties of beauties, courting,
In flatteries of the night, exchange of dalliance:
Yet these are still but dreams. Give me felicity
Of which my senses waking are partakers,
A real, visible, material happiness;
And then, too, when I stagger in expectance
Of the least comfort that can cherish life.—
I saw it, sir, I saw it; for it came
From her own hand.

Arm.

The princess threw it t'ye.

Ith. True; and she said—well I remember what—Her cousin prince would beg it.

Arm.

Yes, and parted

In anger at your taking on't.

Ith.

Panthea,

O, thou hast pleaded with a powerful language! I want a fee to gratify thy merit;
But I will do—

Arm.

What is't you say?

Ith.

In anger!

In anger let him part; for could his breath,
Like whirlwinds, toss such servile slaves as lick
The dust his footsteps print into a vapour,
It durst not stir a hair of mine, it should not;
I'd rend it up by the roots first. To be anything
Calantha smiles on, is to be a blessing
More sacred than a petty prince of Argos
Can wish to equal or in worth or title.

Arm. Contain yourself, my lord: Ixion, aiming To embrace Juno, bosomed but a cloud, And begat Centaurs; 'tis an useful moral:

Ambition hatched in clouds of mere opinion Proves but in birth a prodigy.

Ith. I thank ye;

Yet, with your license, I should seem uncharitable To gentler fate, if, relishing the dainties Of a soul's settled peace, I were so feeble Not to digest it.

Arm. He deserves small trust Who is not privy-counsellor to himself.

Re-enter NEARCHUS and AMELUS, with ORGILUS.

Near. Brave me?

Org. Your excellence mistakes his temper; For Ithocles in fashion of his mind
Is beautiful, soft, gentle, the clear mirror
Of absolute perfection.

Ame. Was't your modesty Termed any of the prince's servants "spaniel"?

Your nurse, sure, taught you other language.

Ith. Language!

Near. A gallant man-at-arms is here, a doctor In feats of chivalry, blunt and rough-spoken,
Vouchsafing not the fustian of civility,
Which less rash spirits style good manners.

Ith. Manners!

Org. No more, illustrious sir; 'tis matchless Ithocles.

Near. You might have understood who I am.

Ith. Yes,

I did; else—but the presence calmed the affront—You're cousin to the princess.

Near. To the king too;

A certain instrument that lent supportance To you colossic greatness—to that king too, You might have added.

Ith. There is more divinity

In beauty than in majesty.

Arm.

O fie, fie!

Near. This odd youth's pride turns heretic in loyalty. Sirrah! low mushrooms never rival cedars.

[Exeunt Nearchus and Amelus.

Ith. Come back!—What pitiful dull thing am I
So to be tamely scolded at! come back!—
Let him come back, and echo once again
That scornful sound of mushroom! painted colts—
Like heralds' coats gilt o'er with crowns and sceptres—
May bait a muzzled lion.

Arm.

Cousin, cousin,

Thy tongue is not thy friend.

Org.

In point of honour

Discretion knows no bounds. Amelus told me 'Twas all about a little ring.

Ith.

A ring

The princess threw away, and I took up:
Admit she threw't to me, what arm of brass
Can snatch it hence? No; could he grind the hoop
To powder, he might sooner reach my heart
Than steal and wear one dust on't.—Orgilus,
I am extremely wronged.

Org.

A lady's favour

Is not to be so slighted.

Ith.

Slighted!

Arm.

Quiet

These vain unruly passions, which will render ye Into a madness.

Org.

Griefs will have their vent.

Enter TECNICUS with a scroll.

Arm. Welcome; thou com'st in season, reverend man, To pour the balsam of a suppling patience Into the festering wound of ill-spent fury.

Org. [Aside] What makes he here?

Tec. The hurts are yet but mortal, Which shortly will prove deadly. To the king,

Armostes, see in safety thou deliver

This sealed-up counsel; bid him with a constancy Peruse the secrets of the gods.—O Sparta, O Lacedæmon! double-named, but one In fate: when kingdoms reel,—mark well my saw,— Their heads must needs be giddy. Tell the king That henceforth he no more must inquire after My agèd head; Apollo wills it so: I am for Delphos.

Not without some conference Arm. With our great master?

Never more to see him: Tec.

A greater prince commands me.—Ithocles,

"When youth is ripe, and age from time doth part, The lifeless trunk shall wed the broken heart."

Ith. What's this, if understood?

List, Orgilus; Tec.

Remember what I told thee long before, These tears shall be my witness.

'Las, good man! Arm.

Tec. "Let craft with courtesy a while confer, Revenge proves its own executioner."

Org. Dark sentences are for Apollo's priests; I am not Œdipus.

My hour is come; Tec.

Cheer up the king; farewell to all.—O Sparta,

O Lacedæmon!

[Exit.

If prophetic fire Have warmed this old man's bosom, we might construe His words to fatal sense.

Leave to the powers Ith.

Above us the effects of their decrees;

My burthen lies within me: servile fears

Prevent no great effects—Divine Calantha!

Arm. The gods be still propitious!

[Exeunt ITHOCLES and ARMOSTES.

Org. Something oddly

The book-man prated, yet he talked it weeping;

"Let craft with courtesy a while confer, Revenge proves its own executioner." Con it again;—for what? It shall not puzzle me; 'Tis dotage of a withered brain.—Penthea Forbade me not her presence; I may see her, And gaze my fill. Why see her, then, I may, When, if I faint to speak—I must be silent.

Exit.

SCENE II.—A Room in Bassanes' House. Enter Bassanes, Grausis, and Phulas.

Bass. Pray, use your recreations, all the service I will expect is quietness amongst ye; Take liberty at home, abroad, at all times, And in your charities appease the gods, Whom I, with my distractions, have offended.

Grau. Fair blessings on thy heart!

Phu. [Aside] Here's a rare change! My lord, to cure the itch, is surely gelded; The cuckold in conceit hath cast his horns.

Bass. Betake ye to your several occasions; And wherein I have heretofore been faulty, Let your constructions mildly pass it over; Henceforth I'll study reformation,—more I have not for employment.

O, sweet man! Grau.

Thou art the very "Honeycomb of Honesty."

Phu. The "Garland of Good-will."1—Old lady, hold up Thy reverend snout, and trot behind me softly, As it becomes a moil² of ancient carriage.

[Exeunt Grausis and Phulas.

Bass. Beasts, only capable of sense, enjoy

1 The Honeycomb of Honesty, like the Garland of Goodwill, was probably one of the popular miscellanies of the day.—Gifford.

The benefit of food and ease with thankfulness; Such silly creatures, with a grudging, kick not Against the portion nature hath bestowed: But men, endowed with reason and the use Of reason, to distinguish from the chaff Of abject scarcity the quintessence, Soul, and elixir of the earth's abundance, The treasures of the sea, the air, nay, heaven, Repining at these glories of creation Are verier beasts than beasts; and of those beasts The worst am I: I, who was made a monarch Of what a heart could wish for,—a chaste wife,— Endeavoured what in me lay to pull down That temple built for adoration only, And level't in the dust of causeless scandal. But, to redeem a sacrilege so impious, Humility shall pour, before the deities I have incensed, a largess of more patience Than their displeased altars can require: No tempests of commotion shall disquiet The calms of my composure.

Enter Orgilus.

Org.

I have found thee,
Thou patron of more horrors than the bulk
Of manhood, hooped about with ribs of iron,
Can cram within thy breast: Penthea, Bassanes,
Cursed by thy jealousies,—more, by thy dotage,—
Is left a prey to words.

Bass. Exercise
Your trials for addition to my penance;
I am resolved.

Org. Play not with misery
Past cure: some angry minister of fate hath
Deposed the empress of her soul, her reason,
From its most proper throne; but, what's the miracle
More new, I, I have seen it, and yet live!

Bass. You may delude my senses, not my judgment; 'Tis anchored into a firm resolution; Dalliance of mirth or wit can ne'er unfix it: Practise 'yet further.

Org. May thy death of love to her Damn all thy comforts to a lasting fast From every joy of life! Thou barren rock, By thee we have been split in ken of harbour.

Enter Penthea with her hair loose, Ithocles, Armostes, Philema, and Christalla.

Ith. Sister, look up; your Ithocles, your brother, Speaks t'ye; why do you weep? dear, turn not from me.—Here is a killing sight; lo, Bassanes, A lamentable object!

Org. Man, does see't?

Sports are more gamesome; am I yet in merriment?

Why dost not laugh?

Bass. Divine and best of ladies,
Please to forget my outrage; mercy ever
Cannot but lodge under a roof so excellent:
I have cast off that cruelty of frenzy
Which once appeared imposture, and then juggled
To cheat my sleeps of rest.

Org. Was I in earnest?

Pen. Sure, if we were all Sirens, we should sing pitifully, And 'twere a comely music, when in parts
One sung another's knell: the turtle sighs
When he hath lost his mate; and yet some say
He must be dead first: 'tis a fine deceit
To pass away in a dream! indeed, I've slept
With mine eyes open a great while. No falsehood
Equals a broken faith; there's not a hair
Sticks on my head but, like a leaden plummet,
It sinks me to the grave: I must creep thither;
The journey is not long.

¹ i.e. Practise on my patience.

Ith. But thou, Penthea,

Hast many years, I hope, to number yet, Ere thou canst travel that way.

Bass. Let the sun first

Be wrapped up in an everlasting darkness, Before the light of nature, chiefly formed For the whole world's delight, feel an eclipse So universal!

Org. Wisdom, look ye, begins To rave!—art thou mad too, antiquity?

Pen. Since I was first a wife, I might have been Mother to many pretty prattling babes; They would have smiled when I smiled, and for certain I should have cried when they cried:—truly, brother, My father would have picked me out a husband, And then my little ones had been no bastards; But 'tis too late for me to marry now, I am past child-bearing; 'tis not my fault.

Bass. Fall on me, if there be a burning Ætna, And bury me in flames! sweats hot as sulphur Boil through my pores! affliction hath in store No torture like to this.

Org. Behold a patience! Lay-by thy whining gray dissimulation,¹
Do something worth a chronicle; show justice Upon the author of this mischief; dig out The jealousies that hatched this thraldom first With thine own poniard: every antic rapture Can roar as thine does.

Ith. Orgilus, forbear.

Bass. Disturb him not; it is a talking motion² Provided for my torment. What a fool am I

² Puppet.

¹ Gifford remarks that this beautiful expression is happily adopted by Milton, the great plunderer of the poetical hive ot our old dramatists;

[&]quot;He ended here; and Satan, bowing low His gray dissimulation," &c. Par. Reg.

To bandy passion! ere I'll speak a word, I will look on and burst.

Pen. I loved you once. [To Orgilus.

Org. Thou didst, wronged creature: in despite of malice,

For it I love thee ever.

Pen.

Spare your hand;

Believe me, I'll not hurt it.

Org.

My heart too.

Pen. Complain not though I wring it hard: I'll kiss it; O, 'tis a fine soft palm!—hark, in thine ear; Like whom do I look, prithee?—nay, no whispering. Goodness! we had been happy; too much happiness Will make folk proud, they say—but that is he—

[Pointing to ITHOCLES.

And yet he paid for't home; alas, his heart
Is crept into the cabinet of the princess;
We shall have points¹ and bride-laces. Remember,
When we last gathered roses in the garden,
I found my wits; but truly you lost yours.
That's he, and still 'tis he.

[Again pointing to ITHOCLES.

Ith.

Poor soul, how idly

Her fancies guide her tongue!

Bass. [Aside]

Keep in, vexation,

And break not into clamour.

Org. [Aside]

She has tutored me,

Some powerful inspiration checks my laziness.— Now let me kiss your hand, grieved beauty.

Pen.

Kiss it.—

Alack, alack, his lips be wondrous cold;
Dear soul, 'has lost his colour: have ye seen
A straying heart? all crannies! every drop

Of blood is turned to an amethyst,

Which married bachelors hang in their ears.

Org. Peace usher her into Elysium !--

If this be madness, madness is an oracle.

[Aside, and exit.

Ith. Christalla, Philema, when slept my sister, Her ravings are so wild?

Chris.

Sir, not these ten days.

Phil. We watch by her continually; besides, We can not any way pray her to eat.

Bass. O, misery of miseries!

Pen.

Take comfort;

You may live well, and die a good old man: By yea and nay, an oath not to be broken, If you had joined our hands once in the temple,— 'Twas since my father died, for had he lived He would have done't,—I must have called you father.— O, my wrecked honour! ruined by those tyrants, A cruel brother and a desperate dotage. There is no peace left for a ravished wife Widowed by lawless marriage; to all memory Penthea's, poor Penthea's name is strumpeted: But since her blood was seasoned by the forfeit Of noble shame with mixtures of pollution, Her blood—'tis just—be henceforth never heightened With taste of sustenance! starve; let that fulness Whose plurisy hath fevered faith and modesty— Forgive me; O, I faint!

[Falls into the arms of her Attendants.

Arm.

Be not so wilful,

Sweet niece, to work thine own destruction.

Ith.

Nature

Will call her daughter monster!—What! not eat? Refuse the only ordinary means

Which are ordained for life? Be not, my sister,

A murderess to thyself.—Hear'st thou this, Bassanes?

Bass. Foh! I am busy; for I have not thoughts

Enow to think: all shall be well anon.

'Tis tumbling in my head; there is a mastery In art to fatten and keep smooth the outside,

Yes, and to comfort-up the vital spirits
Without the help of food, fumes or perfumes,
Perfumes or fumes. Let her alone; I'll search out
The trick on't.

Pen. Lead me gently; heavens reward ye. Griefs are sure friends; they leave without control Nor cure nor comforts for a leprous soul.

[Exit, supported by Christalla and Philema.

Bass. I grant ye; and will put in practice instantly What you shall still admire: 'tis wonderful,' Tis super-singular, not to be matched; Yet, when I've done't, I've done't:—ye shall all thank me.

[Exit.

Arm. The sight is full of terror.

Ith. On my soul

Lies such an infinite clog of massy dulness,
As that I have not sense enough to feel it.—
See, uncle, the angry thing returns again;
Shall's welcome him with thunder? we are haunted,
And must use exorcism to conjure down
This spirit of malevolence.

Arm.

Mildly, nephew.

Enter NEARCHUS and AMELUS.

Near. I come not, sir, to chide your late disorder, Admitting that the inurement to a roughness In soldiers of your years and fortunes, chiefly So lately prosperous, hath not yet shook off The custom of the war in hours of leisure; Nor shall you need excuse, since you're to render Account to that fair excellence, the princess, Who in her private gallery expects it From your own mouth alone: I am a messenger But to her pleasure.

Ith. Excellent Nearchus,
Be prince still of my services, and conquer
Without the combat of dispute; I honour ye.

Ford.

Near. The king is on a sudden indisposed, Physicians are called for; 'twere fit, Armostes, You should be near him.

Arm.

Sir, I kiss your hands.

[Exeunt ITHOCLES and ARMOSTES.

Near. Amelus, I perceive Calantha's bosom Is warmed with other fires than such as can Take strength from any fuel of the love I might address to her: young Ithocles, Or ever I mistake, is lord ascendant Of her devotions; one, to speak him truly, In every disposition nobly fashioned.

Ame. But can your highness brook to be so rivalled, Considering the inequality of the persons?

Near. I can, Amelus; for affections injured By tyranny or rigour of compulsion,
Like tempest-threatened trees unfirmly rooted,
Ne'er spring to timely growth: observe, for instance,
Life-spent Penthea and unhappy Orgilus.

Ame. How does your grace determine?

Near.
In public of what privately I'll further;

And though they shall not know, yet they shall find it.

[Exeunt.

To be jealous

SCENE III.—An Apartment in the Palace.

Enter Amyclas, led by Hemophil and Groneas, followed by Armostes with a box, Crotolon, and Prophilus. Amyclas is placed in a chair.

Amy. Our daughter is not near?

Arm.

She is retired, sir,

Into her gallery.

Amy.

Where's the prince our cousin?

Pro. New walked into the grove, my lord.

Amy. - All leave us

Except Armostes, and you, Crotolon; We would be private.

Pro. Health unto your majesty!

[Exeunt Prophilus, Hemophil, and Groneas.

Amy. What! Tecnicus is gone?

Arm. He is to Delphos;

And to your royal hands presents this box.

Amy. Unseal it, good Armostes; therein lie The secrets of the oracle; out with it:

[Armostes takes out the scroll.

Apollo live our patron! Read, Armostes.

Arm. [Reads] "The plot in which the vine takes root Begins to dry from head to foot;
The stock, soon withering, want of sap Doth cause to quail the budding grape;
But from the neighbouring elm a dew Shall drop, and feed the plot anew."

Amy. That is the oracle: what exposition Makes the philosopher?

Arm,

This brief one only.

[Reads] "The plot is Sparta, the dried vine the king; The quailing grape his daughter; but the thing Of most importance, not to be revealed, Is a near prince, the elm: the rest concealed.

TECNICUS."

Amy. Enough; although the opening of this riddle Be but itself a riddle, yet we construe How near our labouring age draws to a rest: But must Calantha quail too? that young grape Untimely budded! I could mourn for her; Her tenderness hath yet deserved no rigour So to be crossed by fate.

Arm. You misapply, sir,—With favour let me speak it,—what Apollo Hath clouded in hid sense: I here conjecture

Her marriage with some neighbouring prince, the dew Of which befriending elm shall ever strengthen Your subjects with a sovereignty of power.

Crot. Besides, most gracious lord, the pith of oracles Is to be then digested when the events Expound their truth, not brought as soon to light As uttered; Truth is child of Time: and herein I find no scruple, rather cause of comfort, With unity of kingdoms.

Amy. May it prove so,
For weal of this dear nation!—Where is Ithocles?—
Armostes, Crotolon, when this withered vine
Of my frail carcass, on the funeral pile
Is fired into its ashes, let that young man
Be hedged about still with your cares and loves:
Much owe I to his worth, much to his service.—
Let such as wait come in now.

Arm.

All attend here!

Enter Calantha, Ithocles, Prophilus, Orgilus, Euphranea, Hemophil, and Groneas.

Cal. Dear sir! king! father!

Ith. O, my royal master!

Amy. Cleave not my heart, sweet twins of my life's solace,

With your forejudging fears; there is no physic
So cunningly restorative to cherish
The fall of age, or call back youth and vigour,
As your consents in duty: I will shake off
This languishing disease of time, to quicken
Fresh pleasures in these drooping hours of sadness.
Is fair Euphranea married yet to Prophilus?

Crot. This morning, gracious lord.

Org. This very morning; Which, with your highness' leave, you may observe

Our sister looks, methinks, mirthful and sprightly,

As if her chaster fancy could already
Expound the riddle of her gain in losing
A trifle maids know only that they know not.
Pish! prithee, blush not; 'tis but honest change
Of fashion in the garment, loose for strait,
And so the modest maid is made a wife:
Shrewd business—is't not, sister?

Euph.

You are pleasant.

Amy. We thank thee, Orgilus; this mirth becomes thee.

But wherefore sits the court in such a silence?

A wedding without revels is not seemly.

Cal. Your late indisposition, sir, forbade it.

Amy. Be it thy charge, Calantha, to set forward The bridal sports, to which I will be present; If not, at least consenting.—Mine own Ithocles, I have done little for thee yet.

Ith.

You've built me

To the full height I stand in.

Cal. [Aside]

Now or never!—

May I propose a suit?

Amy.

Demand, and have it.

Cal. Pray, sir, give me this young man, and no further Account him yours than he deserves in all things To be thought worthy mine: I will esteem him According to his merit.

Amy.

Still thou'rt my daughter,

Still grow'st upon my heart.—[To ITHOCLES] Give me thine hand;—

Calantha, take thine own: in noble actions

Thou'lt find him firm and absolute.—I would not

Have parted with thee, Ithocles, to any

But to a mistress who is all what I am.

Ith. A change, great king, most wished for, 'cause the same.

Cal. [Aside to ITHOCLES] Thou'rt mine. Have I now kept my word?

Ith. [Aside to CALANTHA]

Divinely.

Org. Rich fortunes guard, the favour of a princess Rock thee, brave man, in ever-crowned plenty! You're minion of the time; be thankful for it.—
[Aside] Ho! here's a swing in destiny—apparent! The youth is up on tiptoe, yet may stumble.

Amy. On to your recreations.—Now convey me Unto my bed-chamber: none on his forehead Wear a distempered look.

All.

The gods preserve ye!

Cal. [Aside to ITHOCLES] Sweet, be not from my sight.

Ith. [Aside to CALANTHA] My whole felicity!

[AMYCLUS is carried out. Exeunt all but

ITHOCLES, who is detained by Orgilus.

Org. Shall I be bold, my lord?

Ith. Thou canst not, Orgilus.

Call me thine own; for Prophilus must henceforth Be all thy sister's: friendship, though it cease not In marriage, yet is oft at less command Than when a single freedom can dispose it.

Org. Most right, my most good lord, my most great lord,

My gracious princely lord, I might add, royal.

Ith. Royal! a subject royal?

Org. Why not, pray, sir?

The sovereignty of kingdoms in their nonage
Stooped to desert, not birth; there's as much merit
In clearness of affection as in puddle
Of generation: you have conquered love
Even in the loveliest; if I greatly err not,
The son of Venus hath bequeathed his quiver
To Ithocles his manage, by whose arrows
Calantha's breast is opened.

Ith. Can't be possible?

Org. I was myself a piece of suitor once, And forward in preferment too; so forward,- That, speaking truth, I may without offence, sir, Presume to whisper that my hopes, and—hark ye— My certainty of marriage stood assured With as firm footing—by your leave—as any's Now at this very instant—but— Ith. Tis granted: And for a league of privacy between us, Read o'er my bosom and partake a secret; The princess is contracted mine. Org. Still, why not? I now applaud her wisdom: when your kingdom Stands seated in your will secure and settled, I dare pronounce you will be a just monarch; Greece must admire and tremble. Then the sweetness Ith. Of so imparadised a comfort, Orgilus! It is to banquet with the gods. Org. The glory Of numerous children, potency of nobles, Bent knees, hearts paved to tread on! Ith. With a friendship So dear, so fast as thine. I am unfitting Org. For office; but for service-We'll distinguish Ith. Our fortunes merely in the title; partners In all respects else but the bed. Org. The bed! Forfend it Jove's own jealousy!—till lastly We slip down in the common earth together; And there our beds are equal; save some monument To show this was the king, and this the subject.— Soft sad music. List, what sad sounds are these,—extremely sad ones? Ith. Sure, from Penthea's lodgings.

Org.

Hark! a voice too.

Song within.

O, no more, no more, too late
Sighs are spent; the burning tapers
Of a life as chaste as fate,

Pure as are unwritten papers, Are burnt out: no heat, no light Now remains; 'tis ever night.

Love is dead; let lovers' eyes,

Locked in endless dreams,

Th' extremes of all extremes,

Ope no more, for now Love dies,

Now Love dies,—implying

Love's martyrs must be ever, ever dying.

Ith. O, my misgiving heart!

Org. A horrid stillness
Succeeds this deathful air; let's know the reason:
Tread softly; there is mystery in mourning. [Exeunt.

SCENE IV.—PENTHEA'S Apartment in the Palace.

PENTHEA discovered in a chair, veiled; CHRISTALLA and PHILEMA at her feet mourning. Enter two Servants with two other chairs, one with an engine.¹

Enter ITHOCLES and ORGILUS.

1st Ser. [Aside to Orgilus] 'Tis done; that on her right hand.

Org. Good: begone.

[Exeunt Servants.

Ith. Soft peace enrich this room!

Org. How fares the lady?

¹ This "engine," as it is here called, in correspondence with the homely properties of our old theatres, was merely a couple of movable arms added to the common chair. The contrivance itself is of early date, and, if Pausanias (Attica, c. 20) is to be trusted, of Phil. Dead!

Chris. Dead!

Phil. Starved!

Chris. Starved!

Me miserable! Ith.

Org. Tell us

How parted she from life.

She called for music, Phil.

And begged some gentle voice to tune a farewell To life and griefs: Christalla touched the lute; I wept the funeral song.

Which scarce was ended Chris. But her last breath sealed-up these hollow sounds, "O, cruel Ithocles and injured Orgilus!" So down she drew her veil, so died.

So died! Ith.

Org. Up! you are messengers of death; go from us; [CHRISTALLA and PHILEMA rise.

Here's woe enough to court without a prompter: Away; and—hark ye—till you see us next, No syllable that she is dead.—Away, Keep a smooth brow.

> [Exeunt Christalla and Philema. My lord,—

Mine only sister! Ith.

Another is not left me.

Take that chair; Org.

I'll seat me here in this: between us sits

The object of our sorrows; some few tears

celestial origin. Vulcan, he tells us, in order to be revenged of Juno for turning him out of heaven, insidiously presented her with a golden throne with hidden springs, which prevented her, after being seated upon it, from rising up again. Ford, however, brought no golden chair trom Olympus: he found his simple contrivance not only on the stage, but (where his predecessors probably found it) in Bandello, Nov. i. Parte iv. vol. ix. p. 13, ed. Milano, 1814, where it is described at length, and Deodati is entrapped by il Turchi, precisely as Ithocles is here by Orgilus, and then stabbed with a dagger.—Gifford.

We'll part among us: I perhaps can mix One lamentable story to prepare 'em.— There, there; sit there, my lord.

Ith.

Yes, as you please.

[Sits down, the chair closes upon him.

What means this treachery?

Org. Caught! you are caught, Young master; 'tis thy throne of coronation, Thou fool of greatness! See, I take this veil off; Survey a beauty withered by the flames Of an insulting Phaëton, her brother.

Ith. Thou mean'st to kill me basely?

Org. I foreknew The last act of her life, and trained thee hither

To sacrifice a tyrant to a turtle.

You dreamt of kingdoms, did ye? how to bosom

The delicacies of a youngling princess;

How with this nod to grace that subtle courtier, How with that frown to make this noble tremble,

And so forth; whiles Penthea's groans and tortures,

Her agonies, her miseries, afflictions,

Ne'er touched upon your thought: as for my injuries,

Alas, they were beneath your royal pity;

But yet they lived, thou proud man, to confound thee.

Behold thy fate; this steel!

Ith.

[Draws a dagger. Strike home! A courage

As keen as thy revenge shall give it welcome: But prithee faint not; if the wound close up,

Tent¹ it with double force, and search it deeply.

Thou look'st that I should whine and beg compassion,

As loth to leave the vainness of my glories;

A statelier resolution arms my confidence,

To cozen thee of honour; neither could I

With equal trial of unequal fortune

By hazard of a duel; 'twere a bravery

Too mighty for a slave intending murder.

¹ Probe.

On to the execution, and inherit A conflict with thy horrors.

Org. By Apollo, Thou talk'st a goodly language! for requital

I will report thee to thy mistress richly:

And take this peace along; some few short minutes
Determined, my resolves shall quickly follow
Thy wrathful ghost; then, if we tug for mastery,
Penthea's sacred eyes shall lend new courage.

Give me thy hand: be healthful in thy parting

From lost mortality! thus, thus I free it. [Stabs him.

Ith. Yet, yet, I scorn to shrink.

Org. Keep up thy spirit:

I will be gentle even in blood; to linger Pain, which I strive to cure, were to be cruel.

[Stabs him again.

Ith. Nimble in vengeance, I forgive thee. Follow Safety, with best success: O, may it prosper!—Penthea, by thy side thy brother bleeds; The earnest of his wrongs to thy forced faith. Thoughts of ambition, or delicious banquet With beauty, youth, and love, together perish In my last breath, which on the sacred altar Of a long-looked-for peace—now—moves—to heaven.

[Dies.

Org. Farewell, fair spring of manhood! henceforth welcome

Best expectation of a noble sufferance.

I'll lock the bodies safe, till what must follow

Shall be approved.—Sweet twins, shine stars for ever !-
In vain they build their hopes whose life is shame:

No monument lasts but a happy name.

[Locks the door, and exit.

ACT THE FIFTH.

SCENE I .- A Room in BASSANES' House.

Enter Bassanes.

ASS. Athens—to Athens I have sent, the nursery

Of Greece for learning and the fount of knowledge;

For here in Sparta there's not left amongst us

One wise man to direct; we're all turned madcaps.

'Tis said Apollo is the god of herbs,
Then certainly he knows the virtue of 'em:
To Delphos I have sent too. If there can be
A help for nature, we are sure yet.

Enter Orgilus.

Org.

Honour

Attend thy counsels ever!

Bass.

I beseech thee

With all my heart, let me go from thee quietly;
I will not aught to do with thee, of all men.
The doubles of a hare,—or, in a morning,
Salutes from a splay-footed witch,—to drop
Three drops of blood at th' nose just and no more,—
Croaking of ravens, or the screech of owls,
Are not so boding mischief as thy crossing

My private meditations: shun me, prithee; And if I cannot love thee heartily, I'll love thee as well as I can.

Org.

Noble Bassanes,

Mistake me not.

Bass.

Phew! then we shall be troubled.

Thou wert ordained my plague—heaven make me thankful,

And give me patience too, heaven, I beseech thee.

Org. Accept a league of amity; for henceforth,

I vow, by my best genius, in a syllable,

Never to speak vexation: I will study

Service and friendship, with a zealous sorrow

For my past incivility towards ye.

Bass. Hey-day, good words, good words! I must believe 'em,

And be a coxcomb for my labour.

Org.

Use not

So hard a language; your misdoubt is causeless:

For instance, if you promise to put on

A constancy of patience, such a patience

As chronicle or history ne'er mentioned,

As follows not example, but shall stand

A wonder and a theme for imitation,

The first, the index 1 pointing to a second,

I will acquaint ye with an unmatched secret,

Whose knowledge to your griefs shall set a period.

Bass. Thou canst not, Orgilus; 'tis in the power Of the gods only: yet, for satisfaction, Because I note an earnest in thine utterance, Unforced and naturally free, be resolute ² The virgin-bays shall not withstand the lightning With a more careless danger than my constancy The full of thy relation; could it move Distraction in a senseless marble statue,

² Satisfied.

It should find me a rock: I do expect now Some truth of unheard moment.

Org. To your patience

You must add privacy, as strong in silence

As mysteries locked-up in Jove's own bosom.

Bass. A skull hid in the earth a treble age Shall sooner prate.

Org. Lastly, to such direction

As the severity of a glorious action

Deserves to lead your wisdom and your judgment, You ought to yield obedience.

Bass. With assurance

Of will and thankfulness.

Org. With manly courage

Please, then, to follow me.

Bass.

Where'er, I fear not. [Exeunt.

SCENE II! - A State-room in the Palace.

A flourish. Enter Euphranea, led by Groneas and Hemophil; Prophilus, led by Christalla and Philema; Nearchus supporting Calantha; Crotolon and Amelus.

Cal. We miss our servant Ithocles and Orgilus; On whom attend they?

Crot. My son, gracious princess,

Whispered some new device, to which these revels Should be but usher: wherein I conceive

Lord Ithocles and he himself are actors.

Cal. A fair excuse for absence: as for Bassanes, Delights to him are troublesome: Armostes Is with the king?

Crot. He is.

1 Hazlitt pointed out that this scene was suggested by the masks scene in Marston's Malcontent.

Cal.

On to the dance!—

Dear cousin, hand you the bride; the bridegroom must be

Intrusted to my courtship. Be not jealous, Euphranea; I shall scarcely prove a temptress.— Fall to our dance.

THE REVELS.

Music. NEARCHUS dances with Euphranea, Prophilus with CALANTHA, CHRISTALLA with HEMOPHIL, PHI-LEMA with GRONEAS.

They dance the first change; during which Armostes enters.

Arm. [Whispers Calantha] The king your father's dead.

Cal. To the other change.

Arm.

Is't possible?

They dance the second change.

Enter BASSANES.

Bass. [Whispers CALANTHA]

O, madam!

Penthea, poor Penthea's starved.

Cal.

Beshrew thee!—

Lead to the next.

Bass.

Amazement dulls my senses.

They dance the third change.

Enter Orgilus.

Org. [Whispers CALANTHA] Brave Ithocles is murdered, murdered cruelly.

Cal. How dull this music sounds! Strike up more sprightly;

Our footings are not active like our heart,

Which treads the nimbler measure.

Org.

I am thunderstruck.

The last change.

Cal. So! let us breathe awhile.

[Music ceases.]—

Hath not this motion

Raised fresher colour on our cheeks?

Near.

Sweet princess,

A perfect purity of blood enamels The beauty of your white.

Cal. We all look cheerfully:

And, cousin, 'tis methinks a rare presumption In any who prefer our lawful pleasures Before their own sour censure, t' interrupt The custom of this ceremony bluntly.

Near. None dares, lady.

Cal. Yes, yes; some hollow voice delivered to me How that the king was dead.

Arm. The king is dead:

That fatal news was mine; for in mine arms

He breathed his last, and with his crown bequeathed

ye

Your mother's wedding-ring; which here I tender.

Crot. Most strange!

· Cal. Peace crown his ashes! We are queen, then.

Near. Long live Calantha! Sparta's sovereign queen!

All. Long live the queen!

Cal. What whispered Bassanes?

Bass. That my Penthea, miserable soul,

Was starved to death.

Cal. She's happy; she hath finished A long and painful progress.—A third murmur Pierced mine unwilling ears.

Org. That Ithocles

Was murdered;—rather butchered, had not bravery Of an undaunted spirit, conquering terror, Proclaimed his last act triumph over ruin.

Arm. How! murdered!

Cal. By whose hand?

Org. By mine; this weapon

Was instrument to my revenge: the reasons

Are just, and known; quit him of these, and then Never lived gentleman of greater merit, Hope or abiliment to steer a kingdom.

Crot. Fie, Orgilus!

Euph.

Fie, brother!

Cal.

You have done it?

Bass. How it was done let him report, the forfeit Of whose allegiance to our laws doth covet Rigour of justice; but that done it is Mine eyes have been an evidence of credit Too sure to be convinced.1 Armostes, rend not Thine arteries with hearing the bare circumstances Of these calamities; thou'st lost a nephew, A niece, and I a wife: continue man still; Make me the pattern of digesting evils, Who can outlive my mighty ones, not shrinking At such a pressure as would sink a soul Into what's most of death, the worst of horrors. But I have sealed a covenant with sadness, And entered into bonds without condition, To stand these tempests calmly; mark me, nobles, I do not shed a tear, not for Penthea! Excellent misery!

Cal. We begin our reign With a first act of justice: thy confession, Unhappy Orgilus, dooms thee a sentence; But yet thy father's or thy sister's presence Shall be excused.—Give, Crotolon, a blessing To thy lost son; —Euphranea, take a farewell; — And both be gone.

Crot. [To Orgilus.] Confirm thee noble sorrow In worthy resolution!

Euph.

Could my tears speak,

My griefs were slight.

Org.

All goodness dwell amongst ye!

1 i.e. Consuted.

Ford.

Enjoy my sister, Prophilus: my vengeance Aimed never at thy prejudice.

Cal.

Now withdraw.

[Exeunt Crotolon, Prophilus, and Euphranea. Bloody relater of thy stains in blood, For that thou hast reported him, whose fortunes And life by thee are both at once snatched from him, With honourable mention, make thy choice Of what death likes thee best; there's all our bounty.—But to excuse delays, let me, dear cousin, Intreat you and these lords see execution Instant before ye part.

Near.

Your will commands us

Org. One suit, just queen, my last: vouchsafe your clemency,

That by no common hand I be divided From this my humble frailty.

Cal.

To their wisdoms

Who are to be spectators of thine end I make the reference: those that are dead Are dead; had they not now died, of necessity They must have paid the debt they owed to nature One time or other.—Use dispatch, my lords; We'll suddenly prepare our coronation.

[Exeunt CALANTHA, PHILEMA, and CHRISTALLA. Arm. 'Tis strange these tragedies should never touch on

Her female pity.

Bass. She has a masculine spirit; And wherefore should I pule, and, like a girl, Put finger in the eye? let's be all toughness, Without distinction betwixt sex and sex.

Near. Now, Orgilus, thy choice?

Org. To bleed to death.

Arm. The executioner?

Org. Myself, no surgeon;

I am well skilled in letting blood. Bind fast

This arm, that so the pipes may from their conduits Convey a full stream; here's a skilful instrument:

[Shows his dagger

Only I am a beggar to some charity
To speed me in this execution
By lending th' other prick to the tother arm,
When this is bubbling life out.

Bass.

I am for ye;

It most concerns my art, my care, my credit.— Quick fillet both his arms.

Org.

Grammercy, friendship!

Such courtesies are real which flow cheerfully Without an expectation of requital.

Reach me a staff in this hand.

[They give him a staff.]

—If a proneness

Or custom in my nature from my cradie
Had been inclined to fierce and eager bloodshed,
A coward guilt, hid in a coward quaking,
Would have betrayed me to ignoble flight
And vagabond pursuit of dreadful safety:
But look upon my steadiness, and scorn not
The sickness of my fortune, which since Bassanes
Was husband to Penthea had lain bed-rid.
We trifle time in-words:—thus I show cunning
In opening of a vein too full, too lively.

[Pierces the vein with his dagger.

Arm. Desperate courage!

Near.

Honourable infamy!

Hem. I tremble at the sight.

Gro.

Would I were loose!

Bass. It sparkles like a lusty wine new broached; The vessel must be sound from which it issues.—Grasp hard this other stick—I'll be as nimble—But prithee, look not pale—have at ye! stretch out

¹ In performing the operation of bleeding, formerly so common, the arm was bound above the spot selected in order to distend the veins. For the same reason the patient grasped a staff.

Thine arm with vigour and with unshook virtue.

[Opens the vein.

Good! O, I envy not a rival, fitted
To conquer in extremities: this pastime
Appears majestical; some high-tuned poem
Hereafter shall deliver to posterity
The writer's glory and his subject's triumph.
How is't, man?—droop not yet.

Org. I feel no palsies.

On a pair-royal do I wait in death;

My sovereign, as his liegeman; on my mistress,

As a devoted servant; and on Ithocles,

As if no brave, yet no unworthy enemy:

Nor did I use an engine to entrap

His life, out of a slavish fear to combat

Youth, strength, or cunning; 1 but for that I durst not

Engage the goodness of a cause on fortune,

By which his name might have outfaced my vengeance. O, Tecnicus, inspired with Phœbus' fire!

I call to mind thy augury, 'twas perfect;

"Revenge proves its own executioner."

When feeble man is bending to his mother,

The dust he was first framed on, thus he totters.

Bass. Life's fountain is dried up.

Org. So falls the standard Of my prerogative in being a creature!

A mist hangs o'er mine eyes, the sun's bright splendour. Is clouded in an everlasting shadow;
Welcome, thou ice, that sitt'st about my heart

No heat can ever thaw thee.

Near.

Speech hath left him.

Bass. He has shook hands with time; his funeral urn Shall be my charge: remove the bloodless body. The coronation must require attendance; That past, my few days can be but one mourning.

[Exeunt.

Dies.

¹ Skiil.

SCENE III .-- A Temple.

An altar covered with white; two lights of virgin wax upon it. Recorders 1 play, during which enter Attendants bearing Ithocles on a hearse (in a rich robe, with a crown on his head) and place him on one side of the altar. Afterwards enter Calantha in white, crowned, attended by Euphranea, Philema, and Christalla, also in white; Nearchus, Armostes, Crotolon, Prophilus, Amelus, Bassanes, Hemephil, and Groneas.

CALANTHA kneels before the altar, the Ladies kneeling behind her, the rest stand off. The recorders cease during her devotions. Soft music. CALANTHA and the rest rise, doing obeisance to the altar.

Cal. Our orisons are heard; the gods are merciful.—
Now tell me, you whose loyalties pay tribute
To us your lawful sovereign, how unskilful
Your duties or obedience is to render
Subjection to the sceptre of a virgin,
Who have been ever fortunate in princes
Of masculine and stirring composition.
A woman has enough to govern wisely
Her own demeanours, passions, and divisions.
A nation warlike and inured to practice
Of policy and labour cannot brook
A feminate authority: we therefore
Command your counsel, how you may advise us
In choosing of a husband, whose abilities
Can better guide this kingdom.

Near.

Royal lady,

Your law is in your will.

Arm. We h

We have seen tokens

Of constancy too lately to mistrust it.

Crot. Yet, if your highness settle on a choice By your own judgment both allowed and liked of,

1 A kind of flutes or flageolets.

Sparta may grow in power, and proceed To an increasing height.

Cal. Hold you the same mind?

Bass. Alas, great mistress, reason is so clouded With the thick darkness of my infinite woes, That I forecast nor dangers, hopes, or safety. Give me some corner of the world to wear out The remnant of the minutes I must number, Where I may hear no sounds but sad complaints Of virgins who have lost contracted partners; Of husbands howling that their wives were ravished By some untimely fate; of friends divided By churlish opposition; or of fathers Weeping upon their children's slaughter'd carcases; Or daughters groaning o'er their fathers' hearses; And I can dwell there, and with these keep consort As musical as theirs. What can you look for From an old, foolish, peevish, doting man But craziness of age?

Cal. Cousin of Argos,—

Near.

Madam?

Cal.

Were I presently

To choose you for my lord, I'll open freely What articles I would propose to treat on Before our marriage.

Near.

Name them, virtuous lady.

Cal. I would presume you would retain the royalty Of Sparta in her own bounds; then in Argos Armostes might be viceroy; in Messene Might Crotolon bear sway; and Bassanes—

Bass. I, queen! alas, what I?

Cal.

Be Sparta's marshal:

The multitudes of high employments could not But set a peace to private griefs. These gentlemen, Groneas and Hemophil, with worthy pensions, Should wait upon your person in your chamber.— I would bestow Christalla on Amelus,

She'll prove a constant wife; and Philema Should into Vesta's Temple.

Bass.

This is a testament!

It sounds not like conditions on a marriage.

Near. All this should be performed.

Cal.

Lastly, for Prophilus,

He should be, cousin, solemnly invested In all those honours, titles, and preferments Which his dear friend and my neglected husband Too short a time enjoyed.

Pro.

I am unworthy

To live in your remembrance.

Euph.

Excellent lady!

Near. Madam, what means that word, "neglected husband"?

Cal. Forgive me:—now I turn to thee, thou shadow Of my contracted lord! Bear witness all, I put my mother's wedding-ring upon His finger; 'twas my father's last bequest.

Places a ring on the finger of ITHOCLES.

Thus I new-marry him whose wife I am;
Death shall not separate us. O, my lords,
I but deceived your eyes with antic gesture,
When one news straight came huddling on another
Of death! and death! and death! still I danced forward;
But it struck home, and here, and in an instant.
Be such mere women, who with shrieks and outcries
Can vow a present end to all their sorrows,
Yet live to court new pleasures, and outlive them:
They are the silent griefs which cut the heart-strings;
Let me die smiling.

Near. 'Tis a truth too ominous.

Cal. One kiss on these cold lips, my last! [Kisses ITHOCLES.]—Crack, crack!—

Argos now's Sparta's king.—Command the voices Which wait at the altar now to sing the song I fitted for my end.

Near.

Sirs, the song!

DIRGE.

Glories, pleasures, pomps, delights, and ease, Chor. Can but please

> The outward senses, when the mind Is or untroubled or by peace refined.

1st. Voice. Crowns may flourish and decay, Beauties shine, but fade away.

2nd Voice. Youth may revel, yet it must Lie down in a bed of dust.

3rd Voice. Earthly honours flow and waste, Time alone doth change and last.

Sorrows mingled with contents prepare Rest far care;

> Love only reigns in death; though art Can find no comfort for a broken heart.

> > [CALANTHA dies.

Arm. Look to the queen!

Bass. Her heart is broke indeed. O, royal maid, would thou hadst missed this part! Yet 'twas a brave one. I must weep to see Her smile in death.

Wise Tecnicus! thus said he; Arm."When youth is ripe, and age from time doth part, The Lifeless Trunk shall wed the Broken Heart." 'Tis here fulfilled.

Near.

I am your king.

All.

Long live

Nearchus, King of Sparta!

Her last will Near.

Shall never be digressed from: wait in order Upon these faithful lovers, as becomes us.— The counsels of the gods are never known

Till men can call the effects of them their own. [Exeunt.

Where noble judgments and clear eyes are fixed To grace endeavour, there sits truth, not mixed With ignorance; those censures may command Belief which talk not till they understand. Let some say, "This was flat;" some, "Here the scene Fell from its height;" another, "That the mean Was ill observed in such a growing passion As it transcended either state or fashion:"

Some few may cry, "Twas pretty well," or so, "But—" and there shrug in silence: yet we know Our writer's aim was in the whole addrest Well to deserve of all, but please the best; Which granted, by the allowance of this strain The Broken Heart may be pieced-up again.

LOVE'S SACRIFICE.

OVE'S SACRIFICE was acted at the Phoenix in Drury Lane, and published in 1633, as "a tragedy received generally well." The source of the story is unknown. The passages in which D'Avolos excites the jealousy of the Duke were evidently suggested by Othello. The words in which D'Avolos bids farewell to his judges resemble, as Ward points out, those of Marinelli in Lessing's Emilia Galotti.

To my Friend, Master John Ford.

Unto this altar, rich with thy own spice,
I bring one grain to thy LOVE'S SACRIFICE;
And boast to see thy flames ascending, while
Perfumes enrich our air from thy sweet pile.
Look here, thou that hast malice to the stage,
And impudence enough for the whole age;
"Voluminously"-ignorant, be vext
To read this tragedy, and thy own be next.

JAMES SHIRLFY.

Thou cheat'st us, Ford: mak'st one seem two by art:
What is Love's Sacrifice but the Broken Heart?
RICHARD CRASHAW.1

¹ This appeared in Crashaw's Delights of the Muses (1646). It is interesting to note the evident regard which the religious poet and mystic felt for the dramatist.

To my Truest Friend, my Worthiest Kinsman,

JOHN FORD, OF GRAY'S INN, Esq.

s HE title of this little work, my good cousin, is in sense but the argument of a dedication; which being in most writers a custom, in many a compliment, I question not but your clear knowledge of my intents will, in me, read as the earnest of affection. My ambition herein aims at a fair flight, borne up on the double wings of gratitude for a received, and acknowledgement for a continued love. It is not so frequent to number many kinsmen, and amongst them some friends, as to presume on some friends, and amongst them little friendship. But in every fulness of these particulars I do not more partake through you, my cousin, the delight than enjoy the benefit of them. This inscription to your name is only a faithful deliverance to memory of the truth of my respects to virtue, and to the equal in honour with virtue, desert. The contempt thrown on studies of this kind by such as dote on their own singularity hath almost so outfaced invention and proscribed judgment, that it is more safe, more wise, to be suspectedly silent than modestly confident of opinion herein. Let me be bold to tell the severity of censurers how willingly I neglect their practice, so long as I digress from no becoming thankfulness. Accept, then, my cousin, this witness to posterity of my constancy to your merits; for no ties of blood, no engagements of friendship, shall more justly live a precedent than the sincenty of both in the heart of

JOHN FORD.

¹ Here is an allusion to Prynne, also referred to by Shirley in the verses prefixed to this play. Prynne had just produced his Histriomastix, or Actor's Tragedy, and was at this time before the Star-Chamber for a supposed insult to the Queen by his reflection on women-players. A few days before Histriomastix appeared the Queen and her ladies had acted in a pastoral at Whitehall.

LOVE'S SACRIFICE.

ACT THE FIRST.

SCENE I .- A Room in the Palace.

Enter Roseilli and Roderico D'Avolos.

OS. Depart the court?

D'Av. Such was the duke's command.

Ros. You're secretary to the state and him, [honest.

Great in his counsels, wise, and, I think,

Have you, in turning over old records, Read but one name descended of the house Of Lesui in his loyalty remiss?

D'Av. Never, my lord.

Ros. Why, then, should I now, now when glorious peace

Triumphs in change of pleasures, be wiped off, Like to a useless moth, from courtly ease?—
And whither must I go?

D'Av. You have the open world before you.

Ros. Why, then 'tis like I'm banished?

D'Av. Not so: my warrant is only to command you from the court; within five hours to depart after notice taken, and not to live within thirty miles of it, until it be thought meet by his excellence to call you back. Now

I have warned you, my lord, at your peril be it, if you disobey. I shall inform the duke of your discontent.

Exit.

Res. Do, politician. do! I scent the plot Of this disgrace: 'tis Fiormonda, she. That glorious widow, whose commanding check Ruins my love: like foolish beasts, thus they Find danger that prey too near the lions' den.

Enter Fernando and Petruchio.

Fern. My noble lord. Roseilli:

Res. Sir. the joy I should have welcomed you with is wrapt up In clouds of my disgrace: yet, honoured sir. Howsoe'er frowns of great ones cast me down. My service shall pay tribute in my lowness To your uprising virtues.

Fern. Sir. I know You are so well acquainted with your own. You need not flatter mine: trust me. my lord, I'll be a suitor for you.

Pet. And I'll second My nephew's suit with importunity.

Res. You are, my Lord Fernando, late returned From travels; pray instruct me;—since the voice Of most supreme authority commands. My absence, I determine to lestow. Some time in learning languages abroad; Perhaps the change of air may change in me. Remembrance of my wrongs at home; good sir. Inform me; say I meant to live in Spain. What benefit of knowledge might I treasure?

Fern. Troth, sir. I'll freely speak as I have found.

Fern. Troth, sir, I'll freely speak as I have found. In Spain you lose experience; 'tis a climate Too hot to nourish arts;' the nation proud.

¹ It was the age of Velasquez and Ca'deron, but Spain was not popular in England at this period. Ford was probably indebted in part to Howell for this description.

And in their pride unsociable; the court
More pliable to glorify itself
Than do a stranger grace: if you intend
To traffic like a merchant, 'twere a place
Might better much your trade; but as for me,
I soon took surfeit on it.

Ros.

What for France?

Fern. France I more praise and love. You are, my lord,

Yourself for horsemanship much famed; and there You shall have many proofs to show your skill.¹ The French are passing courtly, ripe of wit, Kind, but extreme dissemblers; you shall have A Frenchman ducking lower than your knee, At the instant mocking even your very shoe-ties. To give the country due, it is on earth A paradise; and if you can neglect Your own appropriaments, but praising that In others wherein you excel yourself, You shall be much beloved there.

Ros.

Yet methought

I heard you and the duchess, two night since, Discoursing of an island thereabouts, Called—let me think—'twas—

Fern.

England?

Ros.

That: pray, sir—

You have been there, methought I heard you praise it.

Fern. I'll tell you what I found there; men as neat, As courtly as the French, but in condition ² Quite opposite. Put case that you, my lord, Could be more rare on horseback than you are,

² Disposition.

Ford.

¹ It seems that about this period the English were surpassed by most nations in this noble art: nor was it till James I. wisely encouraged horse-races, that we thought of improving the old, heavy, short-winded breed of horses, by the introduction of Barbary and other stallions.—Gifford.

If there—as there are many—one excelled You in your art as much as you do others, Yet will the English think their own is nothing Compared with you, a stranger; in their habits They are not more fantastic than uncertain; In short, their fair abundance, manhood, beauty, No nation can disparage but itself.

Ros. My lord, you have much eased me; I resolve. Fern. And whither are you bent?

Ros. My lord, for travel;

To speed or England.

Fern. No, my lord, you must not:

I have yet some private conference
T' impart unto you for your good; at night
I'll meet you at my Lord Petruchio's house:
Till then be secret.

Ros. Dares my cousin trust me?

Pet. Dare I, my lord! yes, 'less your fact were greater Than a bold woman's spleen.

Ross. The duke's at hand,

And I must hence: my service to your lordships. [Exit.

Pet. Now, nephew, as I told you, since the duke Hath held the reins of state in his own hand, Much altered from the man he was before,—

As if he were transformed in his mind,¹
To soothe him in his pleasures, amongst whom Is fond Ferentes; one whose pride takes pride In nothing more than to delight his lust; And he—with grief I speak it—hath, I fear, Too much besotted my unhappy daughter, My poor Colona; whom, for kindred's sake, As you are noble, as you honour virtue, Persuade to love herself: a word from you May win her more than my entreaties or frowns.

¹ One or more lines, the purport of which may easily be gathered, have dropped out here.

Fern. Uncle, I'll do my best: meantime, pray tell

Whose mediation wrought the marriage Betwixt the duke and duchess,—who was agent.

Pet. His roving eye and her enchanting face, The only dower nature had ordained T' advance her to her bride-bed. She was daughter Unto a gentleman of Milán—no better— Preferred to serve i' the Duke of Milan's court; Where for her beauty she was greatly famed: And passing late from thence to Monaco To visit there her uncle, Paul Baglione The Abbot, Fortune—queen to such blind matches— Presents her to the duke's eye, on the way, As he pursues the deer: in short, my lord, He saw her, loved her, wooed her, won her, matched her;

No counsel could divert him.

Fern.

She is fair.

Pet. She is; and, to speak truth, I think right noble In her conditions.1

If, when I should choose, Fern. Beauty and virtue were the fee proposed, I should not pass² for parentage.

Pet.

The duke

Doth come.

Fern. Let's break-off talk.—[Aside] If ever, now, Good angel of my soul, protect my truth!

Enter the Duke, BIANCA, FIORMONDA, NIBRASSA, FERENTES, JULIA, and D'Avolos.

Duke. Come, my Bianca, revel in mine arms; Whiles I, wrapt in my admiration, view Lilies and roses growing in thy cheeks.— Fernando! O, thou half myself! no joy Could make my pleasure full without thy presence:

¹ Disposition.

I am a monarch of felicity, Proud in a pair of jewels, rich and beautiful,—

A perfect friend, a wife above compare.

Fern. Sir, if a man so low in rank may hope, By loyal duty and devoted zeal, To hold a correspondency in friendship With one so mighty as the Duke of Pavy, 'My uttermost ambition is to climb To those deserts may give the style of servant.

Duke. Of partner in my dukedom, in my heart, As freely as the privilege of blood
Hath made them mine; Philippo and Fernando
Shall be without distinction.—Look, Bianca,
On this good man; in all respects to him
Be as to me: only the name of husband,
And reverent observance of our bed,
Shall differ us in person, else in soul
We are all one.

Bian. I shall, in best of love,

Regard the bosom-partner of my lord.

Fior. [Aside to Ferentes] Ferentes,—

Feren. [Aside to FIORMONDA]

Madam?

Fior. [Aside to FERENTES] You are one loves courtship He hath some change of words,² 'twere no lost labour To stuff your table-books;³ the man speaks wisely!

Feren. [Aside to FIORMONDA] I'm glad your highness is so pleasant.

Duke.

Sister,—

Fior. My lord and brother?

Duke.

You are too silent,

Quicken 4 your sad remembrance, though the loss Of your dead husband be of more account Than slight neglect, yet 'tis a sin against The state of princes to exceed a mean In mourning for the dead.

² i.e. He is a ready talker.

⁴ Enliven.

Fior. Should form, my lord, Prevail above affection? no, it cannot. You have yourself here a right noble duchess, Virtuous at least; and should your grace now pay—Which Heaven forbid!—the debt you owe to nature, I dare presume she'd not so soon forget A prince that thus advanced her.—Madam, could you?

D'Av. [Aside] Bitter and shrewd.

Bian. Sister, I should too much bewray my weakness, To give a resolution on a passion I never felt nor feared.

Nib. A modest answer.

Fern. If credit may be given to a face, My lord, I'll undertake on her behalf; Her words are trusty heralds to her mind.

Fior. [Aside to D'Avolos] Exceeding good; the man will "undertake"!

Observe it, D'Avolos.

D'Av. [Aside to FIORMONDA] Lady, I do; 'Tis a smooth praise.

Duke. Friend, in thy judgment I approve thy love, And love thee better for thy judging mine. Though my gray-headed senate in the laws Of strict opinion and severe dispute Would tie the limits of our free affects, — Like superstitious Jews,—to match with none But in a tribe of princes like ourselves, Gross-nurtured slaves, who force their wretched souls To crouch to profit; nay, for trash and wealth Dote on some crookèd or misshapen form; Hugging wise nature's lame deformity, Begetting creatures ugly as themselves:—But why should princes do so, that command The storehouse of the earth's hid minerals?—No, my Bianca, thou'rt to me as dear

1 i.e. Affections.

As if thy portion had been Europe's riches; Since in thine eyes lies more than these are worth. Set on; they shall be strangers to my heart That envy thee thy fortunes.—Come, Fernando, My but divided self; what we have done We are only debtor to Heaven for.—On!

Fior. [Aside to D'Avolos.] Now take thy time, or never, D'Avolos;

Prevail, and I will raise thee high in grace.

D'Av. [Aside to FIORMONDA.] Madam, I will omit no art.

[Exeunt all but D'Avolos, who recalls Fernando. My honoured Lord Fernando!

Fern. To me, sir?

D'Av. Let me beseech your lordship to excuse me, in the nobleness of your wisdom, if I exceed good manners: I am one, my lord, who in the admiration of your perfect virtues do so truly honour and reverence your deserts, that there is not a creature bears life shall more faithfully study to do you service in all offices of duty and vows of due respect.

Fern. Good sir, you bind me to you: is this all?

D'Av. I beseech your ear a little; good my lord, what I have to speak concerns your reputation and best fortune.

Fern. How's that! my reputation? lay aside Superfluous ceremony; speak; what is't?

D'Av. I do repute myself the blessedest man alive, that I shall be the first gives your lordship news of your perpetual comfort.

Fern. As how?

D'Av. If singular beauty, unimitable virtues, honour, youth, and absolute goodness be a fortune, all those are at once offered to your particular choice.

Fern. Without delays, which way?

D'Av. The great and gracious Lady Fiormonda loves you, infinitely loves you.—But, my lord, as ever you tendered a servant to your pleasures, let me not be revealed that I gave you notice on't.

Fern. Sure, you are strangely out of tune, sir.

D'Av. Please but to speak to her; be but courtly-ceremonious with her, use once but the language of affection, if I misreport aught besides my knowledge, let me never have place in your good opinion. O, these women, my lord, are as brittle metal as your glasses, as smooth, as slippery,—their very first substance was quicksands: let 'em look never so demurely, one fillip chokes them. My lord, she loves you; I know it.—But I beseech your lordship not to discover me; I would not for the world she should that you know it by me.

Fern. I understand you, and to thank your care Will study to requite it; and I vow
She never shall have notice of your news
By me or by my means. And, worthy sir,
Let me alike enjoin you not to speak
A word of that I understand her love;
And as for me, my word shall be your surety
I'll not as much as give her cause to think
I ever heard it.

D'Av. Nay, my lord, whatsoever I infer, you may break with her in it, if you please; for, rather than silence should hinder you one step to such a fortune, I will expose myself to any rebuke for your sake, my good lord.

Fern. You shall not indeed, sir; I am still your friend, and will prove so. For the present I am forced to attend the duke: good hours befall ye! I must leave you. [Exit.

D'Av. Gone already? 'sfoot, I ha' marred all! this is worse and worse; he's as cold as hemlock. If her highness knows how I have gone to work she'll thank me scurvily: a pox of all dull brains! I took the clean contrary course. There is a mystery in this slight carelessness of his; I must sift it, and I will find it. Ud's me, fool myself out of my wit! well, I'll choose some fitter opportunity to inveigle him, and till then smooth her up that he is a man overjoyed with the report.

[Exit.

SCENE II.— Another Room in the Palace.

Enter FERENTES and COLONA.

Feren. Madam, by this light I vow myself your servant; only yours, in especially yours. Time, like a turncoat, may order and disorder the outward fashions of our bodies, but shall never enforce a change on the constancy of my mind. Sweet Colona, fair Colona, young and sprightful lady, do not let me in the best of my youth languish in my earnest affections.

Col. Why should you seek, my lord, to purchase glory By the disgrace of a silly maid.

Feren. That I confess too. I am every way so unworthy of the first-fruits of thy embraces, so far beneath the riches of thy merit, that it can be no honour to thy fame to rank me in the number of thy servants; yet prove me how true, how firm I will stand to thy pleasures, to thy command; and, as time shall serve, be ever thine. Now, prithee, dear Colona,—

Col. Well, well, my lord, I have no heart of flint; Or if I had, you know by cunning words

How to outwear it:—but—

Feren. But what? do not pity thy own gentleness, lovely Colona. Shall I? Speak, shall I?—say but ay, and our wishes are made up.

Col. How shall I say ay, when my fears say no?

Feren. You will not fail to meet me two hours hence, sweet?

Col. No;

Yes, yes, I would have said: how my tongue trips!

Feren. I take that promise and that double "yes" as an assurance of thy faith. In the grove; good sweet, remember; in any case alone,—d'ye mark, love?—not as much as your duchess' little dog;—you'll not forget?—two hours hence—think on't, and miss not: till then—

Col. O, if you should prove false, and love another!

Feren. Defy me, then! I'll be all thine, and a servant only to thee, only to thee. [Exit Colona]—Very passing good! three honest women in our courts here of Italy are enough to discredit a whole nation of that sex. He that is not a cuckold or a bastard is a strangely happy man; for a chaste wife, or a mother that never stepped awry, are wonders, wonders in Italy. 'Slife! I have got the feat on't, and am every day more active in my trade: 'tis a sweet sin, this slip of mortality, and I have tasted enough for one passion of my senses.—Here comes more work for me.

Enter Julia.

And how does my own Julia? Mew upon this sadness! what's the matter you are melancholy?—Whither away, wench?

Jul. 'Tis well; the time has been when your smooth tongue

Would not have mocked my griefs; and had I been More chary of mine honour, you had still Been lowly as you were.

Feren. Lowly! why, I am sure I cannot be much more lowly than I am to thee; thou bringest me on my bare knees, wench, twice in every four-and-twenty hours, besides half-turns instead of bevers. What must we next do, sweetheart?

Jul. Break vows on your side; I expect no other,

1 A slight repast, usually between breakfast and dinner.

But every day look when some newer choice May violate your honour and my trust.

Feren. Indeed, forsooth! how say ye by that, la? I hope I neglect no opportunity to your nunquam satis, to be called in question for. Go, thou art as fretting as an old grogram: by this hand, I love thee for't; it becomes thee so prettily to be angry. Well, if thou shouldst die, farewell all love with me for ever! go; I'll meet thee soon in thy lady's back-lobby, I will, wench; look for me.

Jul. But shall I be resolved 2 you will be mine?

Feren. All thine; I will reserve my best ability, my heart, my honour only to thee, only to thee. Pity of my blood, away! I hear company coming on: remember, soon I am all thine, I will live perpetually only to thee: away! [Exit Julia] 'Sfoot! I wonder about what time of the year I was begot; sure, it was when the moon was in conjunction, and all the other planets drunk at a morris-dance: I am haunted above patience; my mind is not as infinite to do as my occasions are proffered of doing. Chastity! I am an eunuch if I think there be any such thing; or if there be, 'tis amongst us men, for I never found it in a woman thoroughly tempted yet. I have a shrewd hard task coming on; but let it pass.—Who comes now? My lord, the duke's friend! I will strive to be inward with him.

Enter FERNANDO.

My noble Lord Fernando!---

Fern. My Lord Ferentes, I should change some words Of consequence with you; but since I am, For this time, busied in more serious thoughts, I'll pick some fitter opportunity.

Feren. I will wait your pleasure, my lord. Good-day to your lordship. [Exit.

¹ A coarse kind of silk taffety, usually stiffened with gum, and easily losing its gloss.

Fern. Traitor to friendship, whither shall I run, That, lost to reason, cannot sway the float Of the unruly faction in my blood? The duchess, O, the duchess! in her smiles Are all my joys abstracted.—Death to my thoughts! My other plague comes to me.

Enter FIORMONDA and JULIA.

Fior. My Lord Fernando, what, so hard at study! You are a kind companion to yourself,
That love to be alone so.

Fern.

Madam, no;

I rather chose this leisure to admire
The glories of this little world, the court,
Where, like so many stars, on several thrones
Beauty and greatness shine in proper orbs;
Sweet matter for my meditation.

Fior. So, so, sir!—Leave us, Julia [Exit Julia]—your own proof,

By travel and prompt observation,
Instructs you how to place the use of speech.—
But since you are at leisure, pray let's sit:
We'll pass the time a little in discourse.
What have you seen abroad?

Fern.

No wonders, lady,

Like these I see at home.

Fior.

At home! as how?

Fern. Your pardon, if my tongue, the voice of truth, Report but what is warranted by sight.

Fior. What sight?

Fern.

Look in your glass, and you shall see

A miracle.

Fior.

What miracle?

Fern.

Your beauty,

So far above all beauties else abroad

As you are in your own superlative.

Fior. Fie, fie! your wit hath too much edge.

Fern. Would that,

Or any thing that I could challenge mine, Were but of value to express how much I serve in love the sister of my prince!

Fior. 'Tis for your prince's sake, then, not for mine?

Fern. For you in him, and much for him in you. I must acknowledge, madam, I observe In your affects 1 a thing to me most strange, Which makes me so much honour you the more.

Fior. Pray, tell it.

Fern. Gladly, lady:

I see how opposite to youth and custom
You set before you, in the tablature
Of your remembrance, the becoming griefs
Of a most loyal lady for the loss
Of so renowned a prince as was your lord.

Fior. Now, good my lord, no more of him.

Fern.

Of him!

I know it is a needless task in me
To set him forth in his deserved praise;
You better can record it; for you find
How much more he exceeded other men
In most heroic virtues of account,
So much more was your loss in losing him.
Of him! his praise should be a field too large,
Too spacious, for so mean an orator
As I to range in.

Fior. Sir, enough: 'tis true He well deserved your labour. On his deathbed This ring he gave me, bade me never part With this but to the man I loved as dearly As I loved him: yet since you know which way To blaze his worth so rightly, in return To your deserts wear this for him and me.

[Offers him the ring.

¹ Affections.

Fern. Madam!

'Tis yours, Fior.

Methought you said he charged you Fern. Not to impart it but to him you loved As dearly as you loved him.

Fior.

True, I said so.

Fern. O, then, far be it my unhallowed hand With any rude intrusion should annul A testament enacted by the dead!

Fior. Why, man, that testament is disannulled And cancelled quite by us that live. Look here, My blood is not yet freezed; for better instance, Be judge yourself; experience is no danger— Cold are my sighs; but, feel, my lips are warm.

Kisses him.

Fern. What means the virtuous marquess?

Fior. To new-kiss

The oath to thee, which whiles he lived was his: Hast thou yet power to love?

Fern.

To love!

Fior.

To meet

Sweetness of language in discourse as sweet?

Fern. Madam, 'twere dulness past the ignorance Of common blockheads not to understand Whereto this favour tends; and 'tis a fortune So much above my fate, that I could wish No greater happiness on earth: but know Long since I vowed to live a single life.

Fior. What was't you said?

Fern.

I said I made a vow—

Enter Bianca, Petruchio, Colona, and D'Avolos.

[Aside] Blessèd deliverance!

Fior. [Aside.] Prevented? mischief on this interrup tion!

Bian. My Lord Fernando, you encounter fitly I have a suit t'ye.

Fern. 'Tis my duty, madam, To be commanded.

Bian. Since my lord the duke Is now disposed to mirth, the time serves well For mediation, that he would be pleased. To take the Lord Roseilli to his grace. He is a noble gentleman; I dare Engage my credit, loyal to the state;—And, sister, one that ever strove, methought, By special service and obsequious care, To win respect from you: it were a part Of gracious favour, if you pleased to join With us in being suitors to the duke For his return to court.

Fior. To court! indeed,
You have some cause to speak; he undertook,
Most champion-like, to win the prize at tilt,
In honour of your picture; marry, did he.
There's not a groom o' the querry could have matched
The jolly riding-man: pray, get him back;
I do not need his service, madam, I.

Bian. Not need it, sister? why, I hope you think 'Tis no necessity in me to move it,

More than respect of honour.

Fior. Honour! puh!

Honour is talked of more than known by some.

Bian. Sister, these words I understand not.

Fern. [Aside.] Swell not, unruly thoughts!—Madam, the motion you propose proceeds
From the true touch of goodness; 'tis a plea
Wherein my tongue and knee shall jointly strive
To beg his highness for Roseilli's cause.
Your judgment rightly speaks him; there is not
In any court of Christendom a man
For quality or trust more absolute.

Fior. [Aside.] How! is't even so?

Pet.

I shall for ever bless

Your highness for your gracious kind esteem Of my disheartened kinsman; and to add Encouragement to what you undertake, I dare affirm 'tis no important fault Hath caused the duke's distaste.

Bian.

I hope so too.

D'Av. Let your highness, and you all, my lords, take advice how you motion his excellency on Roseilli's behalf; there is more danger in that man than is fit to be publicly reported. I could wish things were otherwise or his own sake; but I'll assure ye, you will exceedingly alter his excellency's disposition he now is in, if you but mention the name of Roseilli to his ear; I am so much acquainted in the process of his actions.

Bian. If it be so, I am the sorrier, sir: I'm loth to move my lord unto offence; Yet I'll adventure chiding.

Fern. [Aside.] O, had I India's gold, I'd give it all T' exchange one private word, one minute's breath, With this heart-wounding beauty!

Enter the Duke, FERENTES, and NIBRASSA.

Duke. Prithee, no more, Ferentes; by the faith I owe to honour, thou hast made me laugh Beside my spleen.1—Fernando, hadst thou heard The pleasant humour of Mauruccio's dotage Discoursed, how in the winter of his age He is become a lover, thou wouldst swear A morris-dance were but a tragedy Compared to that: well, we will see the youth.— What council hold you now, sirs?

We, my lord, Bian. Were talking of the horsemanship in France, Which, as your friend reports, he thinks exceeds All other nations.

1 i.e. Beyond my nature, the spleen being regarded as the source of any sudden and violent ebullition.

Duke. How! why, have not we

As gallant riders here?

Fern.

None that I know.

Duke. Pish, your affection leads you; I dare wage A thousand ducats, not a man in France Outrides Roseilli.

Fior. [Aside.] I shall quit this wrong.

Bian. I said as much, my lord.

Fern.

I have not seen

His practice since my coming back.

Duke.

Where is he?

How is't we see him not?

Pet. [Aside.]

What's this? what's this?

Fern. I hear he was commanded from the court.

D'Av. [Aside.] O, confusion on this villainous occasion!

Duke. True; but we meant a day or two at most Should be his furthest term. Not yet returned? Where's D'Avolos?

D'Av. [Advancing.] My lord?

Duke.

You know our mind:

How comes it thus to pass we miss Roseilli?

D'Av. My lord, in a sudden discontent I hear he departed towards Benevento, determining, as I am given to understand, to pass to Seville, minding to visit his cousin, Don Pedro de Toledo, in the Spanish court.

Duke. The Spanish court! now by the blessed bones Of good Saint Francis, let there posts be sent To call him back, or I will post thy head Beneath my foot: ha, you! you know my mind; Look that you get him back: the Spanish court! And without our commission!—

Pet. [Aside.]

Here's fine juggling!

Bian. Good sir, be not so moved.

Duke.

Fie, fie, Bianca,

'Tis such a gross indignity; I'd rather

Have lost seven years' revenue:—the Spanish court!—How now, what ails our sister?

Fior. On the sudden

I fall a-bleeding; 'tis an ominous sign,

Pray Heaven it turn to good! -Your highness' leave.

Exit.

Duke. Look to her. — Come, Fernando, — come, Bianca,—

Let's strive to overpass this choleric heat.—
Sirrah, see that you trifle not. [To D'Avolos]—How we

Who sway the manage of authority
May be abused by smooth officious agents!—
But look well to our sister.

[Exeunt all but PETRUCHIO and FERNANDO. Nephew, please you

To see your friend to-night?

Pet.

Fern. Yes, uncle, yes. [Exit Petruchio. Thus bodies walk unsouled! mine eyes but follow My heart entombed in yonder goodly shrine:

Life without her is but death's subtle snares,

And I am but a coffin to my cares. [Exit.

Ford.

ACT THE SECOND.

SCENE I .- A Room in MAURUCCIO'S House.

MAURUCCIO looking in a glass, trimming his beard; GIACOPO brushing him.

> AUR. Beard, be confined to neatness, that no hair

May stover up to prick my mistress' lip,

More rude than bristles of a porcupine.— Giacopo!

Gia. My lord?

Mau. Am I all sweet behind?

Gia. I have no poulterer's nose; but your apparel sits about you most debonairly.

Mau. But, Giacopo, with what grace do my words proceed out of my mouth? Have I a moving countenance? is there harmony in my voice? canst thou perceive, as it were, a handsomeness of shape in my very breath, as it is formed into syllables, Giacopo?

Enter above Duke, BIANCA, FIORMONDA, FERNANDO, Courtiers, and Attendants.

Gia. Yes, indeed, sir, I do feel a savour as pleasant as —a glister-pipe ² [Aside]—calamus, or civet.

Duke. Observe him, and be silent.

Mau. Hold thou the glass, Giacopo, and mark me with what exceeding comeliness I could court the lady marquess, if it come to the push.

² Enema syringe.

Duke. Sister, you are his aim.

Fior.

A subject fit

To be the stale of laughter!1

Bian.

That's your music.

Mau. Thus I reverse my pace, and thus stalking in courtly gait, I advance one, two, and three.—Good! I kiss my hand, make my congee, settle my countenance, and thus begin.—Hold up the glass higher, Giacopo.

Gia. Thus high, sir?

Mau. 'Tis well; now mark me.

"Most excellent marquéss, most fair la-dy,
Let not old age or hairs that are sil-vér
Disparage my desire; for it may be
I am than other green youth nimblé-er.
Since I am your gra-cé's servánt so true,
Great lady, then, love me for my vir-tue."

O, Giacopo, Petrarch was a dunce, Dante a jig-maker, Sanazzar a goose, and Ariosto a puck-fist,² to me! I tell thee, Giacopo, I am rapt with fury; and have been for these six nights together drunk with the pure liquor of Helicon.

Gia. I think no less, sir; for you look as wild, and talk as idly, as if you had not slept these nine years.

Duke. What think you of this language, sister? Fior. Sir,

I think in princes' courts no age nor greatness But must admit the fool; in me 'twere folly To scorn what greater states' than I have been.

Bian. O, but you are too general-

Fior. A fool!

I thank your highness: many a woman's wit Have thought themselves much better was much worse.

Bian. You still mistake me.

² i.e. An empty boaster, from the fungus better known as puffball.

³ i.e. Persons of state.

Duke.

Silence! note the rest.

Mau. God-a'mercy, brains! Giacopo, I have it.

Gia. What, my lord?

Mau. A conceit, Giacopo, and a fine one—down on thy knees, Giacopo, and worship my wit. Give me both thy ears. Thus it is; I will have my picture drawn most composituously, in a square table 1 of some two foot long, from the crown of the head to the waist downward, no further.

Gia. Then you'll look like a dwarf, sir, being cut off by the middle.

Mau. Speak not thou, but wonder at the conceit that follows. In my bosom, on my left side, I will have a leaf of blood-red crimson velvet—as it were part of my doublet—open; which being opened, Giacopo,—now mark!—I will have a clear and most transparent crystal in the form of a heart.—Singular-admirable!—When I have framed this, I will, as some rare outlandish piece of workmanship, bestow it on the most fair and illustrious Lady Fiormonda.

Gia. But now, sir, for the conceit.

Mau. Simplicity and ignorance, prate no more! blockhead, dost not understand yet? Why, this being to her instead of a looking-glass, she shall no oftener powder her hair, surfel her cheeks, cleanse her teeth, or conform the hairs of her eyebrows, but having occasion to use this glass—which for the rareness and richness of it she will hourly do—but she shall as often gaze on my picture, remember me, and behold the excellence of her excellency's beauty in the prospective and mirror, as it were, in my heart.

Gia. Ay, marry, sir, this is something.

1 The board or canvas on which the picture was to be painted.

² To "surfel" or "surphule" the cheeks is to wash them with mercurial or sulphur water, as it was called, one of those pernicious compounds which, under the name of cosmetics, found their way to the ladies' toilets. They were generally rubbed in with Spanish wool or a piece of scarlet cloth.—Gifford.

All above except Fior. Ha, ha, ha! [Exit FIORMONDA. Bian. My sister's gone in anger.

Mau. Who's that laughs? search with thine eyes, Giacopo.

Gia. O, my lord, my lord, you have gotten an everlasting fame! the duke's grace, and the duchess' grace, and my Lord Fernando's grace, with all the rabble of courtiers, have heard every word; look where they stand! Now you shall be made a count for your wit, and I lord for my counsel.

Duke. Beshrew the chance! we are discovered.

Mau. Pity—O, my wisdom! I must speak to them.—O, duke most great, and most renowned duchess! Excuse my apprehension, which not much is; 'Tis love, my lord, that's all the hurt you see; Angelica herself doth plead for me.

Duke. We pardon you, most wise and learned lord; And, that we may all glorify your wit, Entreat your wisdom's company to-day. To grace our table with your grave discourse: What says your mighty eloquence?

Mau. Giacopo, help me; 'his grace has put me out of my own bias, and I know not what to answer in form.

Gia. Ud's me, tell him you'll come.

Mau. Yes, I will come, my lord the duke, I will.

Duke. We take your word, and wish your honour health.—

Away, then! come, Bianca, we have found A salve for melancholy,—mirth and ease.

[Exit the Duke followed by all but BIANCA and FERNANDO.

Bian. I'll see the jolly lover and his glass Take leave of one another.

Mau. Are they gone?

Gia. O, my lord, I do now smell news.

Mau. What news, Giacopo?

Gia. The duke has a smackering towards you, and you shall clap-up with his sister the widow suddenly.

Mau. She is mine, Giacopo, she is mine! Advance the glass, Giacopo, that I may practise, as I pass, to walk a portly grace like a marquis, to which degree I am now a-climbing.

Thus do we march to honour's haven of bliss, To ride in triumph through Persepolis.'

[Exit GIACOPO, going backward with the glass, followed by MAURUCCIO complimenting.2

Bian. Now, as I live, here's laughter

Worthy our presence! I'll not lose him so.

Going.

Please but to hear

Fern. Madam,—

Bian.

To me, my lord?

Fern.
The story of a castaway in love;

And, O, let not the passage of a jest

Make slight a sadder subject, who hath placed

All happiness in your diviner eyes!

Bian. My lord, the time-

Fern. The time! yet hear me speak

For I must speak or burst: I have a soul So anchored down with cares in seas of woe,

That passion and the vows I owe to you

Have changed me to a lean anatomy:3

Sweet princess of my life,—

Bian.

Forbear, or I shall—

Fern. Yet, as you honour virtue, do not freeze My hopes to more discomfort than as yet My fears suggest; no beauty so adorns The composition of a well-built mind

As pity: hear me out.

Bian.

No more! I spare

To tell you what you are, and must confess

i.e. Practising the airs of a courtier.
Skeleton.

Do almost hate my judgment, that it once
Thought goodness dwelt in you. Remember now,
It is the third time since your treacherous tongue
Hath pleaded treason to my ear and fame;
Yet, for the friendship 'twixt my lord and you,
I have not voiced your follies: if you dare
To speak a fourth time, you shall rue your lust;
'Tis all no better:—learn and love yourself.

[Exit.

Fern. Gone! O, my sorrows! how am I undone!
Not speak again? no, no, in her chaste breast
Virtue and resolution have discharged
All female weakness: I have sued and sued,
Knelt, wept, and begged; but tears and vows and words

Move her no more than summer-winds a rock. I must resolve to check this rage of blood, And will: she is all icy to my fires, Yet even that ice inflames in me desires.

Exit.

SCENE II.—A Room in Petruchio's House.

Enter Petruchio and Roseilli.

Rose. Is't possible the duke should be so moved?

Pet. 'Tis true; you have no enemy at court

But her for whom you pine so much in love;

Then master your affections: I am sorry

You hug your ruin so.—

What say you to the project I proposed?

Rose. I entertain it with a greater joy

Than shame can check.

Enter FERNANDO.

Pet. You're come as I could wish; My cousin is resolved.

Fern. Without delay

Prepare yourself, and meet at court anon, Some half-hour hence; and Cupid bless your joy!

Rose. If ever man was bounden to a friend,—
Fern. No more; away!

[Exeunt Petruchio and Roseilli. Love's rage is yet unknown;

In his—ay me !—too well I feel my own !— So, now I am alone; now let me think. She is the duchess; say she be; a creature Sewed-up in painted cloth might so be styled; That's but a name: she's married too; she is, And therefore better might distinguish love: She's young and fair; why, madam, that's the bait Invites me more to hope: she's the duke's wife; Who knows not this?—she's bosomed to my friend; There, there, I am quite lost: will not be won; Still worse and worse: abhors to hear me speak; Eternal mischief! I must urge no more; For, were I not be-lepered in my soul, Here were enough to quench the flames of hell. What then? pish! if I must not speak, I'll write. Come, then, sad secretary to my plaints, Plead thou my faith, for words are turned to sighs. [Takes out a letter, and reads. What says this paper?

Enter D'Avolos behind with two pictures.

D'Av. [Aside] Now is the time. Alone? reading a letter? good; how now! striking his breast! what, in the name of policy, should this mean? tearing his hair! passion; by all the hopes of my life, plain passion! now I perceive it. If this be not a fit of some violent affection, I am an ass in understanding; why, 'tis plain,—plainer and plainer; love in the extremest. O, for the party who, now! The greatness of his spirits is too high cherished to be caught with some ordinary stuff, and if it be my Lady Fiormonda, I am strangely mistook. Well, that I have fit occasion soon to understand. I have here two pictures newly drawn, to be sent for a present to the Abbot of Monaco, the duchess' uncle, her own and my lady's: I'll observe which of these may, perhaps, bewray him—he turns about.—My noble lord!—

Fern. You're welcome, sir; I thank you.

D'Av. Me, my lord! for what, my lord?

Fern. Who's there? I cry you mercy, D'Avolos,

I took you for another; pray, excuse me.

What is't you bear there?

D'Av. No secret, my lord, but may be imparted to you: a couple of pictures, my good lord,—please you see them?

Fern. I care not much for pictures; but whose are they?

D'Av. The one is for my lord's sister, the other is the duchess.

Fern. Ha, D'Avolos! the duchess's?

D'Av. Yes, my lord.—[Aside] Sure, the word startled him: observe that.

Fern. You told me, Master Secretary, once, You owed me love.

D'Av. Service, my honoured lord; howsoever you please to term it.

Fern. 'Twere rudeness to be suitor for a sight; Yet trust me, sir, I'll be all secret.

D'Av. I beseech your lordship;—they are, as I am, constant to your pleasure. [Shows Fiormonda's picture.] This, my lord, is the widow marquess's, as it now newly came from the picture-drawer's, the oil yet green: a sweet picture; and, in my judgment, art hath not been a niggard in striving to equal the life. Michael Angelo himself needed not blush to own the workmanship.

Fern. A very pretty picture; but, kind signior, To whose use is it?

D'Av. For the duke's, my lord, who determines to send it with all speed as a present to Paul Baglione, uncle to the duchess, that he may see the riches of two such lustres as shine in the court of Pavy.

Fern. Pray, sir, the other?

D'Av. [Shows Bianca's picture] This, my lord, is for the duchess Bianca: a wondrous sweet picture, if you well observe with what singularity the artsman hath strove to set forth each limb in exquisitest proportion, not missing a hair.

Fern. A hair!

D'Av. She cannot more formally, or—if it may be lawful to use the word—more really, behold her own symmetry in her glass than in taking a sensible view of this counterfeit. When I first saw it, I verily almost was of a mind that this was her very lip.

Fern. Lip!

D'Av. [Aside] How constantly he dwells upon this portraiture!—Nay, I'll assure your lordship there is no defect of cunning²—[Aside] His eye is fixed as if it were incorporated there.—Were not the party herself alive to witness that there is a creature composed of flesh and blood as naturally enriched with such harmony of admirable beauty as is here artificially counterfeited, a very curious eye might repute it as an imaginary rapture of some transported conceit, to aim at an impossibility; whose very first gaze is of force almost to persuade a substantial love in a settled heart.

Fern. Love! heart!

D'Av. My honoured lord,—

Fern. O Heavens!

D'Av. [Aside] I am confirmed.—What ails your lordship?

Fern. You need not praise it, sir; itself is praise.—
[Aside] How near had I forgot myself!—I thank you.
'Tis such a picture as might well become
The shrine of some famed Venus; I am dazzled
With looking on't:—pray, sir, convey it hence.

¹ Skill.

D'Av. I am all your servant.—[Aside] Blessed, blessed discovery!—Please you to command me?

Fern. No, gentle sir.—[Aside] I'm lost beyond my senses.—

D'ye hear, sir? good, where dwells the picture-maker?

D'Av. By the castle's farther drawbridge, near Galiazzo's statue; his name is Alphonso Trinultio.—[Aside] Happy above all fate!

Fern. You say enough; my thanks t'ye! [Exit D'Avolos.]—Were that picture

But rated at my lordship, 'twere too cheap.

I fear I spoke or did I know not what;

All sense of providence was in mine eye.

Enter FERENTES, MAURUCCIO, and GIACOPO.

Feren. [Aside] Youth in threescore years and ten!—Trust me, my Lord Mauruccio, you are now younger in the judgment of those that compare your former age with your latter by seven-and-twenty years than you were three years ago: by all my fidelity, 'tis a miracle! the ladies wonder at you.

Mau. Let them wonder; I am wise as I am courtly.

Gia. The ladies, my lord, call him the green broom of the court,—he sweeps all before him,—and swear he has a stabbing wit: it is a very glister to laughter.

Mau. Nay, I know I can tickle 'em at my pleasure; I am stiff and strong, Ferentes.

Gia. [Aside] A radish-root is a spear of steel in comparison of I know what.

Feren. The marquess doth love you.

Mau. She doth love me.

Feren. And begins to do you infinite grace, Mauruccio, infinite grace.

Fern. I'll take this time.—[Comes forward] Good hour, my lords, to both!

Mau. Right princely Fernando, the best of the Fernandos; by the pith of generation, the man I look for.

His highness hath sent to find you out: he is determined to weather his own proper individual person for two days' space in my Lord Nibrassa's forest, to hunt the deer, the buck, the roe, and eke the barren doe.

Fern. Is his highness preparing to hunt?

Mau. Yes, my lord, and resolved to lie forth for the breviating the prolixity of some superfluous transmigration of the sun's double cadence to the western horizon, my most perspicuous good lord.

Fern. O, sir, let me beseech you to speak in your own mother tongue.—[Aside] Two days' absence, well.—My Lord Mauruccio, I have a suit t'ye,—

Mau. My Lord Fernando, I have a suit to you.

Fern. That you will accept from me a very choice token of my love: will you grant it?

Mau. Will you grant mine?

Fern. What is't?

Mau. Only to know what the suit is you please to prefer to me.

Fern. Why, 'tis, my lord, a fool.

Mau. A fool!

Fern. As very a fool as your lordship is—hopeful to see in any time of your life.

Gia. Now, good my lord, part not with the fool on any terms.

Mau. I beseech you, my lord, has the fool qualities?

Fern. Very rare ones: you shall not hear him speak one wise word in a month's converse; passing temperate of diet, for, keep him from meat four-and-twenty hours, and he will fast a whole day and a night together; unless you urge him to swear, there seldom comes an oath from his mouth; and of a fool, my lord, to tell ye the plain truth, had he but half as much wit as you, my lord, he would be in short time three-quarters as arrant wise as your lordship.

Mau. Giacopo, these are very rare elements in a creature of little understanding. O, that I long to see him!

Fern. A very harmless idiot;—and, as you could wish, look where he comes.

Enter Petruchio, and Roseilli dressed like a Fool.1

Pet. Nephew, here is the thing you sent for.—Come hither, fool; come, 'tis a good fool.

Fern. Here, my lord, I freely give you the fool; pray use him well for my sake.

Mau. I take the fool most thankfully at your hands, my lord.—Hast any qualities, my pretty fool? wilt dwell with me?

Ros. A, a, a, a, ay.

Pet. I never beheld a more natural creature in my life.

Fern. Uncle, the duke, I hear, prepares to hunt; Let's in and wait.—Farewell, Mauruccio.

[Exeunt FERNANDO and PETRUCHIO.

Mau. Beast that I am, not to ask the fool's name! 'tis no matter; fool is a sufficient title to call the greatest lord in the court by, if he be no wiser than he.

Gia. O, my lord, what an arrant excellent pretty creature 'tis!—Come, honey, honey, come!

Feren. You are beholding to my Lord Fernando for this gift.

Mau. True. O, that he could but speak methodically!
—Canst speak, fool?

Ros. Can speak; de e e e--

Feren. 'Tis a present for an emperor. What an excellent instrument were this to purchase a suit or a monopoly from the duke's ear!

Mau. I have it, I am wise and fortunate.—Giacopo, I will leave all conceits, and instead of my picture, offer the lady marquess this mortal man of weak brain.

Gia. My lord, you have most rarely bethought you; for so shall she no oftener see the fool but she shall remember you better than by a thousand looking-glasses.

¹ i.e. In the long petticoats with which innecents, or idiots, were furnished for the sake of decency.—Gifford.

The state of the s

Feren. She will most graciously entertain it.

Mau. I may tell you, Ferentes, there's not a great woman amongst forty but knows how to make sport with a fool.—Dost know how old thou art, sirrah?

Ros. Dud—a clap cheek for nown sake, gaffer; hee e e e e.

Feren. Alas, you must ask him no questions, but clap him on the cheek; I understand his language: your fool is the tender-heartedest creature that is.

Enter FIORMONDA and D'AVOLOS in close conversation.

Fior. No more; thou hast in this discovery Exceeded all my favours, D'Avolos.

Is't Mistress Madam Duchess? brave revenge!

D'Av. But had your grace seen the infinite appetite of lust in the piercing adultery of his eye, you would—

Fior. Or change him, or confound him: prompt dissembler!

Is here the bond of his religious vow?

And that, "now when the duke is rid abroad,

My gentleman will stay behind, is sick—or so"?

D'Av. "Not altogether in health;"—it was the excuse he made.

Mau. [Seeing them] Most fit opportunity! her grace comes just i' the nick; let me study.

Feren. Lose no time, my lord.

Gia. To her, sir.

Mau. Vouchsafe to stay thy foot, most Cynthian hue,

And from a creature ever vowed thy servant Accept this gift, most rare, most fine, most new;

The earnest penny of a love so fervent.

Fior. What means the jolly youth?

Mau. Nothing, sweet princess, but only to present your grace with this sweet-faced fool; please you to accept him to make you merry: I'll assure your grace he is a very wholesome fool.

Fior. A fool! you might as well ha' given yourself. Whence is he?

Mau. Now, just very now, given me out of special favour by the Lord Fernando, madam.

Fior. By him? well, I accept him; thank you for't: And, in requital, take that toothpicker; 'Tis yours.

Mau. A toothpicker! I kiss your bounty: no quibble now?—And, madam,

If I grow sick, to make my spirits quicker,

I will revive them with this sweet toothpicker.

Fior. Make use on't as you list.—Here D'Avolos, Take in the fool.

D'Av. Come, sweetheart, wilt along with me?

Ros. U u umh,—u u mh,—wonnot, wonnot—u u umh.

Fior. Wilt go with me, chick?

Ros. Will go, te e e—go will go—

Fior. Come D'Avolos, observe to-night; 'tis late: Or I will win my choice, or curse my fate.

[Exeunt FIORMONDA, ROSEILLI, and D'Avolos.

Feren. This was wisely done, now. 'Sfoot, you purchase a favour from a creature, my lord, the greatest king of the earth would be proud of.

Mau. Giacopo!—

Gia. My lord?

Mau. Come behind me, Giacopo: I am big with conceit, and must be delivered of poetry in the eternal commendation of this gracious toothpicker:—but, first, I hold it a most healthy policy to make a slight supper—

For meat's the food that must preserve our lives,

And now's the time when mortals whet their knives—on thresholds, shoe-soles, cart-wheels, &c.—Away, Giacopo!

[Exeunt.

SCENE III.—The Palace. BIANCA'S Apartment.

Enter Colona with lights, Bianca, Fiormonda, Julia, Fernando, and D'Avolos; Colona places the lights on a table, and sets down a chess-board.

Bian. 'Tis yet but early night, too soon to sleep: Sister, shall's have a mate at chess?

Fior. A mate!

No, madam, you are grown too hard for me;

My Lord Fernando is a fitter match.

Bian. He's a well-practised gamester: well, I care not How cunning soe'er he be.—To pass an hour

I'll try your skill, my lord: reach here the chess-board.

D'Av. [Aside] Are you so apt to try his skill, madam duchess? Very good!

Fern. I shall bewray too much my ignorance In striving with your highness; 'tis a game I lose at still by oversight.

Bian.

Fior.

I fear you not; let's to't.

You need not, madam.

Well, well,

D'Av. [Aside to FIORMONDA] Marry, needs she not; how gladly will she to't! 'tis a rook to a queen she heaves a pawn to a knight's place; by'r lady, if all be truly noted, to a duke's place; and that's beside the play, I can tell ye. [FERNANDO and BIANCA play.

Fior. Madam, I must entreat excuse; I feel The temper of my body not in case To judge the strife.

Bian. Lights for our sister, sirs!—

Good rest t'ye; I'll but end my game and follow.

Fior. [Aside to D'Avolos] Let 'em have time enough;
and, as thou canst,

Be near to hear their courtship, D'Avolos.

D'Av. [Aside to FIORMONDA] Madam, I shall observe 'em with all cunning secrecy.

Bian. Colona, attend our sister to her chamber.

Col. I shall, madam.

[Exit FIORMONDA, followed by COLONA, JULIA, and D'Avolos.

Bian. Play.

Fern. I must not lose the advantage of the game: Madam, your queen is lost.

Bian.

My clergy help me!

My queen! and nothing for it but a pawn? Why, then, the game's lost too: but play.

Fern.

What, madam?

[FERNANDO often looks about.

Bian. You must needs play well, you are so studious.— Fie upon't! you study past patience:— What do you dream on? here is demurring Would weary out a statue!—Good, now, play.

Fern. Forgive me; let my knees for ever stick

[Kneels.

Nailed to the ground, as earthy as my fears, Ere I arise, to part away so cursed In my unbounded anguish as the rage Of flames beyond all utterance of words Devour me, lightened by your sacred eyes.

Bian. What means the man?

Fern.

Ford.

To lay before your feet

 \mathbf{Y}

In lowest vassalage the bleeding heart
That sighs the tender of a suit disdained.
Great lady, pity me, my youth, my wounds;
And do not think that I have culled this time
From motion's swiftest measure to unclasp
The book of lust: if purity of love
Have residence in virtue's breast, lo here,
Bent lower in my heart than on my knee,
I beg compassion to a love as chaste
As softness of desire can intimate.

Re-enter D'Avolos behind.

D'Av. [Aside] At it already! admirable haste! Bian. Am I again betrayed? bad man!—

Fern. Keep in

Bright angel, that severer breath, to cool
That heat of cruelty which sways the temple
Of your too stony breast: you cannot urge
One reason to rebuke my trembling plea,
Which I have not with many nights' expense
Examined; but, O, madam, still I find
No physic strong to cure a tortured mind,
But freedom from the torture it sustains.

D'Av. [Aside] Not kissing yet? still on your knees? O, for a plump bed and clean sheets, to comfort the aching of his shins! We shall have 'em clip¹ anon and lisp kisses; here's ceremony with a vengeance!

Bian. Rise up; we charge you, rise! [He rises.

Look on our face:

What see you there that may persuade a hope Of lawless love? Know, most unworthy man, So much we hate the baseness of thy lust, As, were none living of thy sex but thee, We had much rather prostitute our blood To some envenomed serpent than admit Thy bestial dalliance. Couldst thou dare to speak Again, when we forbade? no, wretched thing, Take this for answer: if thou henceforth ope Thy leprous mouth to tempt our ear again, We shall not only certify our lord Of thy disease in friendship, but revenge Thy boldness with the forfeit of thy life. Think on't.

D'Av. [Aside] Now, now, now the game is a-foot! your gray jennet with the white face is curried, forsooth; —please your lordship leap up into the saddle, forsooth. —Poor duke, how does thy head ache now!

Fern. Stay; go not hence in choler, blessed woman! You've schooled me; lend me hearing: though the float Of infinite desires swell to a tide

¹ Embrace.

Too high so soon to ebb, yet, by this hand,

Kisses her hand.

This glorious, gracious hand of yours,—

D'Av. [Aside.] Ay, marry, the match is made; clap hands and to't, ho!

Fern. I swear,

Henceforth I never will as much in word,
In letter, or in syllable, presume
To make a repetition of my griefs.
Good-night t'ye! If, when I am dead, you rip
This coffin of my heart, there shall you read
With constant eyes, what now my tongue defines,
Bianca's name carved out in bloody lines.
For ever, lady, now good-night!

Bian. Good-night!
Rest in your goodness.—Lights there!—

Enter Attendants with lights.

Sir, good-night!

[Exeunt Bianca and Fernando sundry ways, with Attendants.]

D'Av. So, via!—To be cuckold—mercy and providence—is as natural to a married man as to eat, sleep, or wear a nightcap. Friends!—I will rather trust mine arm in the throat of a lion, my purse with a courtesan, my neck with the chance on a die, or my religion in a synagogue of Jews, than my wife with a friend. Wherein do princes exceed the poorest peasant that ever was yoked to a sixpenny strumpet but that the horns of the one are mounted some two inches higher by a choppine 1 than 1 i.e. Clogs or pattens, of cork or light framework covered with leather, and worn under the shoe. The practice never prevailed in this country, but seems to have been fashionable at Venice, and places where walking was not required, for which choppines were totally unfit, as no woman could drag them after her; at least, if we may trust Lessels, who says that he has often seen them of "a full half-yard high." Ford's choppines, however, are of a very moderate description, and do not reach the altitude of the high-heeled shoes which were fashionable in this country in the last century. They derive their origin, as well as their name, from Spain, the region of cork.—Gifford.

the other? O Actæon! the goodliest-headed beast of the forest amongst wild cattle is a stag; and the goodliest beast among tame fools in a corporation is a cuckold.

Re-enter FIORMONDA.

Fior. Speak, D'Avolos, how thrives intelligence?

D'Av. Above the prevention of fate, madam. I saw him kneel, make pitiful faces, kiss hands and forefingers, rise,—and by this time he is up, up, madam. Doubtless the youth aims to be duke, for he is gotten into the duke's seat an hour ago.

Fior. Is't true?

D'Av. Oracle, oracle! Siege was laid, parley admitted, composition offered, and the fort entered; there's no interruption. The duke will be at home to-morrow, gentle animal!—what d'ye resolve?

Fior. To stir-up tragedies as black as brave,
And send the lecher panting to his grave. [Exeunt.

SCENE IV.—A Bedchamber in the Palace.

Enter BIANCA, her hair loose, in her night-mantle. She draws a curtain, and FERNANDO is discovered in bed, sleeping; she sets down the candle, and goes to the bedside.

Bian. Resolve, and do; 'tis done.—What! are those eyes,

Which lately were so overdrowned in tears,
So easy to take rest? O happy man!
How sweetly sleep hath sealed up sorrows here!
But I will call him.—What, my lord, my lord,
My Lord Fernando!

Fern.

Who calls me?

Bian.

My lord,

Sleeping or waking?

Fern.

Ha! who is't?

Bian. 'Tis I:

Have you forgot my voice? or is your ear But useful to your eye?

Fern. Madam, the duchess!

Bian. She, 'tis she; sit up,

Sit up and wonder, whiles my sorrows swell:

The nights are short, and I have much to say.

Fern. Is't possible 'tis you?

Bian.

'Tis possible:

Why do you think I come?

Fern. Why! to crown joys,

And make me master of my best desires.

Bian. 'Tis true, you guess aright; sit up and listen.

With shame and passion now I must confess,

Since first mine eyes beheld you, in my heart

You have been only king; if there can be

A violence in love, then I have felt

That tyranny: be record to my soul

The justice which I for this folly fear!

Fernando, in short words, howe'er my tongue

Did often chide thy love, each word thou spak'st

Was music to my ear; was never poor,

Poor wretched woman lived that loved like me,

So truly, so unfeignedly.

Fern.

O, madam!

Bian. To witness that I speak is truth, look here!
Thus singly I adventure to thy bed,

And do confess my weakness: if thou tempt'st My bosom to thy pleasures, I will yield.

Fern. Perpetual happiness!

Bian.

Now hear me out.

When first Caraffa, Pavy's duke, my lord, Saw me, he loved me; and without respect Of dower took me to his bed and bosom; Advanced me to the titles I possess,

¹ In allusion probably (as Gifford pointed out) not to the absence of attendants, but to the single garment in which she was clad.

Not moved by counsel or removed by greatness; Which to requite, betwixt my soul and Heaven I vowed a vow to live a constant wife:
I have done so; nor was there in the world A man created could have broke that truth For all the glories of the earth but thou, But thou, Fernando! Do I love thee now?

Fern. Beyond imagination.

Bian. True, I do,

Beyond imagination: if no pledge Of love can instance what I speak is true But loss of my best joys, here, here, Fernando, Be satisfied and ruin me.

Fern. What d'ye mean?

Bian. To give my body up to thy embraces, A pleasure that I never wished to thrive in Before this fatal minute. Mark me now; If thou dost spoil me of this robe of shame, By my best comforts, here I vow again, To thee, to Heaven, to the world, to time, Ere yet the morning shall new-christen day, I'll kill myself!

Fern. How, madam, how!

Bian. I will:

Do what thou wilt, 'tis in thy choice: what say ye?

Fern. Pish! do you come to try me? tell me, first,
Will you but grant a kiss?

Bian. Yes, take it; that, Or what thy heart can wish: I am all thine.

[FERNANDO kisses her.

Kneels.

Fern. O, me!—Come, come; how many women, pray, Were ever heard or read of, granted love, And did as you protest you will?

Bian. Fernando,

Jest not at my calamity. I kneel:
By these dishevelled hairs, these wretched tears,
By all that's good, if what I speak my heart

Vows not eternally, then think, my lord, Was never man sued to me I denied,— Think me a common and most cunning whore; And let my sins be written on my grave, My name rest in reproof! [Rises.]—Do as you list.

Fern. I must believe ye,—yet I hope 1 anon, When you are parted from me, you will say I was a good, cold, easy-spirited man, Nay, laugh at my simplicity: say, will ye?

Bian. No, by the faith I owe my bridal vows! But ever hold thee much, much dearer far Than all my joys on earth, by this chaste kiss.

Kisses him.

Fern. You have prevailed; and Heaven forbid that I Should by a wanton appetite profane This sacred temple! 'tis enough for me You'll please to call me servant.

Bian. Nay, be thine:

Command my power, my bosom; and I'll write This love within the tables of my heart.

Fern. Enough: I'll master passion, and triumph In being conquered; adding to it this, In you my love as it begun shall end.

But day comes on; Bian. The latter I new-vow. What now we leave unfinished of content, Each hour shall perfect up: sweet, let us part.

Fern. This kiss,—best life, good rest! Kisses her. All mine to thee! Bian.

Remember this, and think I speak thy words; "When I am dead, rip up my heart, and read With constant eyes, what now my tongue defines, Fernando's name carved out in bloody lines." Once more, good rest, sweet!

Fern.

Your most faithful servant! [Exit BIANCA—Scene closes.

ACT THE THIRD.

SCENE I .- An Apartment in the Palace.

Enter NIBRASSA chafing, followed by JULIA weeping.

IB. Get from me, strumpet, infamous whore, leprosy of my blood! make thy moan to ballad-singers and rhymers; they'll jig-out thy wretchedness and abominations to new tunes: as for me, I renounce thee; thou'rt no daughter of mine; I disclaim the legitimation of thy birth, and curse the hour of thy nativity.

Jul. Pray, sir, vouchsafe me hearing.

Nib. With child! shame to my grave! O, whore, wretched beyond utterance or reformation, what wouldst say?

Jul. Sir, by the honour of my mother's hearse, He has protested marriage, pledged his faith; If vows have any force, I am his wife.

Nib. His faith! Why, thou fool, thou wickedly-credulous fool, canst thou imagine luxury is observant of religion? no, no; it is with a frequent lecher as usual to forswear as to swear; their piety is in making idolatry a worship; their hearts and their tongues are as different as thou, thou whore! and a virgin.

Jul. You are too violent; his truth will prove His constancy, and so excuse my fault.

Nib. Shameless woman! this belief will damn thee. How will thy lady marquess justly reprove me for preferring to her service a monster of so lewd and impudent a life! Look to't; if thy smooth devil leave thee to thy infamy, I will never pity thy mortal pangs, never lodge thee under my roof, never own thee for my child; mercy be my witness!

Enter Petruchio, leading Colona.

Pet. Hide not thy folly by unwise excuse, Thou art undone, Colona; no entreaties, No warning, no persuasion, could put off The habit of thy dotage on that man Of much deceit, Ferentes. Would thine eyes Had seen me in my grave, ere I had known The stain of this thine honour!

Col. Good my lord,

Reclaim your incredulity: my fault Proceeds from lawful composition Of wedlock; he hath sealed his oath to mine To be my husband.

Nib. Husband! hey-day! is't even so? nay, then, we have partners in affliction: if my jolly gallant's long clapper have struck on both sides, all is well.—Petruchio, thou art not wise enough to be a paritor: 1 come hither, man, come hither; speak softly; is thy daughter with child?

Pet. With child, Nibrassa!

Nib. Foh! do not trick me off; I overheard your gabbling. Hark in thine ear, so is mine too.

Pet. Alas, my lord, by whom?

Nib. Innocent! by whom? what an idle question is that! One cock hath trod both our hens: Ferentes, Ferentes; who else? How dost take it? methinks thou art wondrous patient: why, I am mad, stark mad.

Pet. How like you this, Colona? 'tis too true: Did not this man protest to be your husband?

¹ An inferior officer who summoned delinquents (including prostitutes) to a spiritual court.

Col. Ay me! to me he did.

Nib. What else, what else, Petruchio?—and, madam, my quondam daughter, I hope h'ave passed some huge words of matrimony to you too.

Jul. Alas! to me he did.

Nib. And how many more the great incubus of hell knows best.—Petruchio, give me your hand; mine own daughter in this arm,—and yours, Colona, in this:—there, there, sit ye down together. [Julia and Colona sit down.] Never rise, as you hope to inherit our blessings, till you have plotted some brave revenge; think upon it to purpose, and you shall want no seconds to further it; be secret one to another.—Come, Petruchio, let 'em alone: the wenches will demur on't, and for the process we'll give 'em courage.

Pet. You counsel wisely; I approve your plot.—Think on your shames, and who it was that wrought 'em.

Nib. Ay, ay, ay, leave them alone.—To work, wenches, to work! [Exeunt Nibrassa and Petruchio.

Col. We are quite ruined.

Jul. True, Colona,

Betrayed to infamy, deceived, and mocked, By an unconstant villain: what shall's do? I am with child.

Col. Heigh-ho! and so am I:

But what shall's do now?

Jul. This: with cunning words

First prove his love; he knows I am with child.

Col. And so he knows I am; I told him on't Last meeting in the lobby, and, in troth, The false deceiver laughed.

Jul. Now, by the stars, He did the like to me, and said 'twas well I was so happily sped.

Col. Those very words He used to me: it fretted me to the heart: I'll be revenged.

Peace! here's a noise, methinks. Jul. Let's rise; we'll take a time to talk of this.

[They rise, and walk aside.

Enter Ferentes and Morona.

Feren. Will ye hold? death of my delights, have ye lost all sense of shame? You're best roar about the court that I have been your woman's-barber and trimmed ye, kind Morona.

Mor. Defiance to thy kindness! thou'st robbed me of my good name; didst promise to love none but me, me, only me; sworest like an unconscionable villain, to marry me the twelfth day of the month two months since; didst make my bed thine own, mine house thine own, mine all and everything thine own. I will exclaim to the world on thee, and beg justice of the duke himself, villain! I will.

Feren. Yet again? nay, an if you be in that mood, shut up your fore-shop, I'll be your journeyman longer. Why, wise Madam Dryfist, could your mouldy brain be so addle to imagine I would marry a stale widow at six-and-forty? Marry gip! are there not varieties enough of thirteen? come, stop your clap-dish,1 or I'll purchase a carting for you. By this light, I have toiled more with this tough carrion hen than with ten quails scarce grown into their first feathers.

Mor. O, treason to all honesty or religion!-Speak, thou perjured, damnable, ungracious defiler of women, who shall father my child which thou hast begotten?

Feren. Why, thee, countrywoman; thou'st a larger purse to pay for the nursing. Nay, if you'll needs have the world know how you, reputed a grave, matron-like, motherly madam, kicked up your heels like a jennet whose mark is new come into her mouth, e'en do, do! the worst can be said of me is, that I was ill advised to dig for gold in a coal-pit. Are you answered?

Mor. Answered!

Jul. Let's fall amongst 'em. [Comes forward with COLONA]—Love, how is't, chick? ha?

Col. My dear Ferentes, my betrothèd lord!

Feren. [Aside] Excellent! O, for three Barbary stone-horses to stop three Flanders mares!—Why, how now, wenches! what means this?

Mor. Out upon me! here's more of his trulls.

Jul. Love, you must go with me.

Col. Good love, let's walk.

Feren. [Aside] I must rid my hands of 'em, or they'll ride on my shoulders.—By your leave, ladies; here's none but is of common counsel one with another; in short, there are three of ye with child, you tell me, by me. All of you I cannot satisfy, nor, indeed, handsomely any of ye. You all hope I should marry you; which, for that it is impossible to be done, I am content to have neither of ye: for your looking big on the matter, keep your own counsels, I'll not bewray ye! but for marriage,—Heaven bless ye, and me from ye! This is my resolution.

Col. How, not me!

Jul. Not me!

Mor. Not me!

Feren. Nor you, nor you, nor you: and to give you some satisfaction, I'll yield ye reasons.—You, Colona, had a pretty art in your dalliance; but your fault was, you were too suddenly won.—You, Madam Morona, could have pleased well enough some three or four-and-thirty years ago; but you are too old.—You, Julia, were young enough, but your fault is, you have a scurvy face.—Now, everyone knowing her proper defect, thank me that I ever vouchsafed you the honour of my bed once in your lives. If you want clouts, all I'll promise is to rip up an old shirt or two. So, wishing a speedy deliverance to all your burdens, I commend you to your patience. [Exit.

Mor. Excellent!

Tul.

Notable!

Col.

Unmatchèd villain!

Jul. Madam, though strangers, yet we understand Your wrongs do equal ours; which to revenge, Please but to join with us, and we'll redeem Our loss of honour by a brave exploit.

Mor. I embrace your motion, ladies, with gladness, and will strive by any action to rank with you in any danger.

Col. Come, gentlewomen, let's together, then.— Thrice happy maids that never trusted men! [Exeunt.

SCENE II.—The State-room in the Palace.

Enter the Duke, BIANCA supported by FERNANDO, FIOR-MONDA, PETRUCHIO, NIBRASSA, FERENTES, and D'Avolos.

Duke. Roseilli will not come, then! will not? well; His pride shall ruin him.—Our letters speak The duchess' uncle will be here to-morrow,— To-morrow, D'Avolos.

D'Av. To-morrow night, my lord, but not to make more than one day's abode here; for his Holiness has commanded him to be at Rome the tenth of this month, the conclave of cardinals not being resolved to sit till his coming.

Duke. Your uncle, sweetheart, at his next return Must be saluted cardinal.—Ferentes, Be it your charge to think on some device To entertain the present with delight.

Fern. My lord, in honour to the court of Pavy I'll join with you. Ferentes, not long since I saw in Brussels, at my being there, i.e. The present time.

The Duke of Brabant welcome the Archbishop
Of Mentz with rare conceit, even on a sudden,
Performed by knights and ladies of his court,
In nature of an antic; which methought—
For that I ne'er before saw women-antics—
Was for the newness strange, and much commended.

Bian. Now, good my Lord Fernando, further this In any wise; it cannot but content.

Fior. [Aside] If she entreat, 'tis ten to one the man Is won beforehand.

Duke. Friend, thou honour'st me:

But can it be so speedily performed?

Fern. I'll undertake it, if the ladies please,

To exercise in person only that:

And we must have a fool, or such an one As can with art well act him.

Fior. I shall fit ye;

I have a natural.2

Fern. Best of all, madam:

Then nothing wants.—You must make one, Ferentes. Feren. With my best service and dexterity,

My lord.

Pet. [Aside to Nibrassa] This falls out happily, Nibrassa.

Nib. [Aside to Petruchio] We could not wish it better:

Heaven is an unbribed justice.

Duke. We'll meet our uncle in a solemn grace Of zealous presence, as becomes the church: See all the choir be ready, D'Avolos.

D'Av. I have already made your highness' pleasure known to them.

Bian. Your lip, my lord!

Fern. Madam?

² An idiot.

Bian. Perhaps your teeth have bled: wipe't with my handkercher: give me, I'll do't myself.—[Aside to FER-NANDO] Speak, shall I steal a kiss? believe me, my lord, I long.

Fern. Not for the world.

Fior. [Aside] Apparent impudence!

D'Av. Beshrew my heart, but that's not so good.

Duke. Ha, what's that thou mislikest, D'Avolos?

D'Av. Nothing, my lord;—but I was hammering a conceit of my own, which cannot, I find, in so short a time thrive as a day's practice.

Fior. [Aside] Well put off, secretary.

Duke. We are too sad; methinks the life of mirth Should still be fed where we are: where's Mauruccio?

Feren. An't please your highness, he's of late grown so affectionately inward with my lady marquess's fool, that I presume he is confident there are few wise men worthy of his society, who are not as innocently harmless as that creature. It is almost impossible to separate them, and 'tis a question which of the two is the wiser man.

Duke. 'Would he were here! I have a kind of dulness

Hangs on me since my hunting, that I feel As 'twere a disposition to be sick; My head is ever aching.

D'Av. A shrewd ominous token; I like not that neither.

Duke. Again! what is't you like not?

D'Av. I beseech your highness excuse me; I am so busy with this frivolous project, and can bring it to no shape, that it almost confounds my capacity.

Bian. My lord, you were best to try a set at maw.1 I and your friend, to pass away the time, Will undertake your highness and your sister.

1 A game which bore apparently some resemblance to "reversi,"

Duke. The game's too tedious.

Fior. 'Tis a peevish play; Your knave will heave the queen out or your king; Besides, 'tis all on fortune.

Enter MAURUCCIO with Roseilli disguised as before, and Giacopo.

.Mau. Bless thee, most excellent duke! I here present thee as worthy and learned a gentleman as ever I—and yet I have lived threescore years—conversed with. Take it from me, I have tried him, and he is worthy to be privy-counsellor to the greatest Turk in Christendom; of a most apparent and deep understanding, slow of speech, but speaks to the purpose.—Come forward, sir, and appear before his highness in your own proper elements.

Ros. Will-tye-to da new toate sure la now.

Gia. A very senseless gentleman, and, please your highness, one that has a great deal of little wit, as they say.

Mau. O, sir, had you heard him, as I did, deliver whole histories in the Tangay tongue, you would swear there were not such a linguist breathed again; and did I but perfectly understand his language, I would be confident in less than two hours to distinguish the meaning of bird, beast, or fish naturally as I myself speak Italian, my lord. Well, he has rare qualities!

Duke. Now, prithee, question him, Mauruccio.

Mau. I will, my lord.—

Tell me, rare scholar, which, in thy opinion,

Doth cause the strongest breath, garlic or onion.

Gia. Answer him, brother-fool; do, do; speak thy mind, chuck, do.

Ros. Have bid seen all da fine knack, and de, e, naghtye tat-tle of da kna-ve, dad la have so.

Duke. We understand him not.

Mau. Admirable, I protest duke; mark, O, duke, mark!—What did I ask him, Giacopo?

Gia. What caused the strongest breath, garlic or onions, I take it, sir.

Mau. Right, right, by Helicon! and his answer is, that a knave has a stronger breath than any of 'em: wisdom—or I am an ass—in the highest; a direct figure; put it down, Giacopo.

Duke. How happy is that idiot whose ambition Is but to eat and sleep, and shun the rod! Men that have more of wit, and use it ill, Are fools in proof.

Bian. True, my lord, there's many

Who think themselves most wise that are most fools.

D'Av. Bitter girds, if all were known;—but—

Duke. But what? speak out; plague on your muttering, grumbling!

I hear you, sir; what is't?

D'Av. Nothing, I protest, to your highness pertinent to any moment.

Duke. Well, sir, remember.—Friend, you promised study.—

I am not well in temper.—Come, Bianca.—

Attend our friend, Ferentes.

[Exeunt all but Fernando, Roseilli, Ferentes and Mauruccio.

Fern. Ferentes, take Mauruccio in with you; He must be one in action.

Feren.

Come, my lord,

I shall entreat your help.

Fern.

I'll stay the fool,

And follow instantly.

Mau.

Yes, pray, my lord.

[Exeunt Ferentes and Mauruccio.

Firn. How thrive your hopes now, cousin?

Ros.

Are we safe?

Then let me cast myself beneath thy foot,

True, virtuous lord. Know, then, sir, her proud heart

1 i.e. Sarcasms.

Ford.

Is only fixed on you, in such extremes Of violence and passion, that I fear, Or she'll enjoy you, or she'll ruin you.

Fern. Me, coz? by all the joys I wish to taste, She is as far beneath my thought as I In soul above her malice.

Ros. I observed

Even now a kind of dangerous pretence¹
In an unjointed phrase from D'Avolos.
I know not his intent; but this I know,
He has a working brain, is minister
To all my lady's counsels; and, my lord,
Pray Heaven there have not anything befall'n
Within the knowledge of his subtle art
To do you mischief!

Fern. Pish! should he or hell Affront me in the passage of my fate, I'd crush them into atomies.

Ros. I do admit you could: meantime, my lord,
Be nearest to yourself; what I can learn,
You shall be soon informed of: here is all
We fools can catch the wise in,—to unknot,
By privilege of coxcombs,² what they plot. [Exeunt.

SCENE III.—Another Room in the Palace.

Enter DUKE and D'Avolos.

Duke. Thou art a traitor: do not think the gloss
Of smooth evasion, by your cunning jests
And coinage of your politician's brain,
Shall jig me off; I'll know't, I vow I will.
Did not I note your dark abrupted ends
Of words half-spoke? your "wells, if all were known"?
Your short "I like not that"? your girds and "buts."?

² Fools'-caps.

¹ Design.

Yes, sir, I did; such broken language argues More matter than your subtlety shall hide: Tell me, what is't? by honour's self I'll know.

D'Av. What would you know, my lord? I confess I owe my life and service to you, as to my prince; the one you have, the other you may take from me at your pleasure. Should I devise matter to feed your distrust, or suggest likelihoods without appearance? what would you have me say? I know nothing.

Duke. Thou liest, dissembler! on thy brow I read Distracted horrors figured in thy looks. On thy allegiance, D'Avolos, as e'er Thou hop'st to live in grace with us, unfold What by the parti-halting of thy speech Thy knowledge can discover. By the faith We bear to sacred justice, we protest, Be it or good or evil, thy reward Shall be our special thanks and love untermed: 1 Speak, on thy duty; we, thy prince, command.

D'Av. O, my disaster! my lord, I am so charmed by those powerful repetitions of love and duty, that I cannot conceal what I know of your dishonour.

Duke. Dishonour! then my soul is cleft with fear; I half presage my misery: say on,
Speak it at once, for I am great with grief.

D'Av. I trust your highness will pardon me; yet I will not deliver a syllable which shall be less innocent than truth itself.

Duke. By all our wish of joys, we pardon thee.

D'Av. Get from me, cowardly servility! my service is noble, and my loyalty an armour of brass: in short, my lord, and plain discovery, you are a cuckold.

Duke. Keep in the word,—a "cuckold!"

D'Av. Fernando is your rival, has stolen your duchess' heart, murdered friendship, horns your head, and laughs at your horns.

¹ Interminable.

Duke. My heart is split!

D'Av. Take courage, be a prince in resolution: I knew it would nettle you in the fire of your composition, and was loth to have given the first report of this more than ridiculous blemish to all patience or moderation: but, O, my lord, what would not a subject do to approve his loyalty to his sovereign? Yet, good sir, take it as quietly as you can: I must needs say 'tis a foul fault; but what man is he under the sun that is free from the career of his destiny? May be she will in time reclaim the errors of her youth; or 'twere a great happiness in you, if you could not believe it; that's the surest way, my lord, in my poor counsel.

Duke. The icy current of my frozen blood
Is kindled up in agonies as hot
As flames of burning sulphur. O, my fate!
A cuckold! had my dukedom's whole inheritance
Been rent, mine honours levelled in the dust,
So she, that wicked woman, might have slept
Chaste in my bosom, 't had been all a sport.
And he, that villain, viper to my heart,
That he should be the man! death above utterance!
Take heed you prove this true.

D'Av.

My lord,—

Duke.

If not,

I'll tear thee joint by joint.—Phew! methinks It should not be:—Bianca! why, I took her From lower than a bondage:—hell of hells!—See that you make it good.

D'Av. As for that, 'would it were as good as I would make it! I can, if you will temper your distractions, but bring you where you shall see it; no more.

Duke. See it!

D'Av. Ay, see it, if that be proof sufficient. I, for my part, will slack no service that may testify my simplicity.

Duke. Enough.

Enter FERNANDO.

What news, Fernando?

Fer.

Is now upon arrival; all your servants Attend your presence.

Duke.

We will give him welcome

As shall befit our love and his respect.

Come, mine own best Fernando, my dear friend.

Exit with FERNANDO.

Sir, the abbot.

D'Av. Excellent! now for a horned moon. But I hear the preparation for the entertainment of this great abbot. Let him come and go, that matters nothing to this; whiles he rides abroad in hope to purchase a purple hat, our duke shall as earnestly heat the pericranion of his noddle with a yellow hood at home. hear 'em coming.

Enter Servants with torches; then the Duke, Loud music. followed by Fernando, Bianca, Fiormonda, Pe-TRUCHIO, and NIBRASSA, at one side; two Friars, the Abbot and Attendants at the other. The Duke ana Abbot meet and salute; BIANCA and the rest salute, and are saluted; they rank themselves, and pass over the stage; the Choir singing.

On to your victuals; some of ye, I know, feed upon Exit. wormwood.

SCENE IV.—Another Apartment in the Palace.

Enter Petruchio and Nibrassa with napkins, as from supper.

Pet. The duke's on rising: are you ready? ho! [Within.] All ready.

Nib. Then, Petruchio, arm thyself with courage and resolution; and do not shrink from being stayed on thy own virtue.

Pet. I am resolved.—Fresh lights !—I hear 'em coming.

Enter Attendants with lights, before the Duke, Abbot, BIANCA, FIORMONDA, FERNANDO, and D'AVOLOS.

Duke. Right reverend uncle, though our minds be scanted

In giving welcome as our hearts would wish, Yet we will strive to show how much we joy Your presence with a courtly show of mirth. Please you to sit.

Abbot. Great duke, your worthy honours To me shall still have place in my best thanks: Since you in me so much respect the church, Thus much I'll promise,—at my next return His holiness shall grant you an indulgence Both large and general.

Duke. Our humble duty!—
Seat you, my lords.—Now let the masquers enter.

Enter, in an antic fashion, Ferentes, Roseilli, and Mauruccio at several doors; they dance a short time. Suddenly enter to them Colona, Julia, and Morona in odd shapes, and dance: the men gaze at them, and are invited by the women to dance. They dance together sundry changes; at last Ferentes is closed in,—Mauruccio and Roseilli being shook off, stand at different ends of the stage gazing. The women join hands and dance round Ferentes with divers complimental offers of courtship; at length they suddenly fall upon him and stab him; he falls, and they run out at several doors. The music ceases.

Feren. Uncase me; I am slain in jest. A pox upon your outlandish feminine antics! pull off my visor; I shall bleed to death ere I have time to feel where I am hurt.—Duke, I am slain: off with my visor; for heaven's sake, off with my visor!

Duke. Slain!—Take his visor off [They unmask Ferentes]:—we are betrayed:

Seize on them! two are yonder: hold Ferentes:

Follow the rest: apparent treachery!

Abbot. Holy Saint Bennet, what a sight is this!

Re-enter Julia, Colona, and Morona unmasked, each with a child in her arms.

Jul. Be not amazed, great princes, but vouchsafe Your audience: we are they have done this deed. Look here, the pledges of this false man's lust, Betrayed in our simplicities: he swore, And pawned his truth, to marry each of us; Abused us all; unable to revenge Our public shames but by his public fall, Which thus we have contrived: nor do we blush To call the glory of this murder ours; We did it, and we'll justify the deed; For when in sad complaints we claimed his vows, His answer was reproach:—Villain, is't true?

Col. I was "too quickly won," you slave! Mor. I was "too old," you dog!

Jul. I,—and I never shall forget the wrong,—I was "not fair enough;" not fair enough
For thee, thou monster!—let me cut his gall—Not fair enough! O, scorn! not fair enough!

[Stabs him.

Feren. O, O, O!—

Duke. Forbear, you monstrous women! do not add Murder to lust: your lives shall pay this forfeit.

Feren. Pox upon all cod-piece extravagancy! I am peppered—O, O, O!—Duke, forgive me!—Had I rid any tame beasts but Barbary wild colts, I had not been thus jerked out of the saddle. My forfeit was in my blood; and my life hath answered it. Vengeance on all wild whores, I say!—O, 'tis true—farewell, generation of hackneys!—O! [Dies.

Duke. He is dead.

To prison with those monstrous strumpets!

Pel. Stay;

I'll answer for my daughter.

Nib. And I for mine.—

O, well done, girls!

Fern. I for you gentlewoman, sir.

Mau. Good my lord, I am an innocent in the business.

Duke. To prison with him! Bear the body hence.

Abbot. Here's fatal sad presages: but 'tis just

He dies by murder that hath lived in lust. [Excunt.

ACT THE FOURTH.

SCENE I .- An Apartment in the Palace.

Enter Duke, FIORMONDA, and D'Avolos.

IOR. Art thou Caraffa? is there in thy veins

One drop of blood that issued from the loins

Of Pavy's ancient dukes? or dost thou sit

On great Lorenzo's seat, our glorious father,
And canst not blush to be so far beneath
The spirit of heroic ancestors?
Canst thou engross a slavish shame, which men
Far, far below the region of thy state
Not more abhor than study to revenge?
Thou an Italian! I could burst with rage
To think I have a brother so befooled
In giving patience to a harlot's lust.

D'Av. One, my lord, that doth so palpably, so apparently make her adultenes a trophy, whiles the poting-stick 2 to her unsatiate and more than goatish abomination jeers at and flouts your sleepish, and more than sleepish, security.

Fior. What is she but the sallow-coloured brat () f some unlanded bankrupt, taught to catch The easy fancies of young prodigal bloods

1 Possess

² Or poking stick, a slender rod of bone or steel, for setting the plaits of ruffs, cuffs, &c., after starching.

In springes of her stew-instructed, art?—
Here's your most virtuous duchess! your rare piece!

D'Av. More base in the infiniteness of her sensuality than corruption can infect:—to clip and inveigle your friend too! O, unsufferable!—a friend! how of all men are you most unfortunate!—to pour out your soul into the bosom of such a creature as holds it religion to make your own trust a key to open the passage to your own wife's womb, to be drunk in the privacies of your bed!—think upon that, sir.

Duke. Be gentle in your tortures, e'en for pity; For pity's cause I beg it.

Fior. Be a prince!
Th'adst better, duke, thou hadst, been born a peasant.
Now boys will sing thy scandal in the streets,
Tune ballads to thy infamy, get money
By making pageants of thee, and invent
Some strangely-shaped man-beast, that may for horns
Resemble thee, and call it Pavy's Duke.

Duke. Endless immortal plague!

D'Av. There's the mischief, sir: in the meantime you shall be sure to have a bastard—of whom you did not so much as beget a little toe, a left ear, or half the further side of an upper lip—inherit both your throne and name: this would kill the soul of very patience itself.

Duke. Forbear; the ashy paleness of my cheek Is scarleted in ruddy flakes of wrath; And like some bearded meteor shall suck up. With swiftest terror, all those dusky mists That overcloud compassion in our breast. You've roused a sleeping lion, whom no art, No fawning smoothness shall reclaim, but blood. And sister thou, thou, Roderico, thou, From whom I take the surfeit of my bane, Henceforth no more so eagerly pursue To whet my dulness: you shall see Caraffa Equal his birth, and matchless in revenge.

Fior. Why, now I hear you speak in majesty. D'Av. And it becomes my lord most princely.

Duke. Does it?—Come hither, sister. Thou art near In nature, and as near to me in love: I love thee, yes, by you bright firmament, I love thee dearly. But observe me well: If any private grudge or female spleen, Malice or envy, or such woman's frailty, Have spurred thee on to set my soul on fire Without apparent certainty,—I vow, And vow again, by all our princely blood, Hadst thou a double soul, or were the lives Of fathers, mothers, children, or the hearts Of all our tribe in thine, I would unrip That womb of bloody mischief with these nails Where such a cursed plot as this was hatched.— But, D'Avolos, for thee—no more; to work A yet more strong impression in my brain You must produce an instance to mine eye Both present and apparent—nay, you shall—or—

Fior. Or what? you will be mad? be rather wise; Think on Ferentes first, and think by whom The harmless youth was slaughtered: had he lived, He would have told you tales: Fernando feared it; And to prevent him,—under show, forsooth, Of rare device,—most trimly cut him off. Have you yet eyes, duke?

Duke. Shrewdly urged,—'tis piercing.

Fior. For looking on a sight shall split your soul, You shall not care: I'll undertake myself To do't some two days hence; for need, to-night, But that you are in court.

D'Av. Right. Would you desire, my lord, to see them exchange kisses, sucking one another's lips, nay, begetting an heir to the dukedom, or practising more than the very act of adultery itself? Give but a little way by a feigned absence, and you shall find 'em—I blush to speak doing what: I am mad to think on't; you are most shamefully, most sinfully, most scornfully cornuted.

Duke. D'ye play upon me? as I am your prince,
There's some shall roar for this! Why, what was I,
Both to be thought or made so vile a thing?
Stay, madam marquess,—ho, Roderico, you, sir,—
Bear witness that if ever I neglect
One day, one hour, one minute, to wear out
With toil of plot or practice of conceit
My busy skull, till I have found a death
More horrid than the bull of Phalaris,
Or all the fabling poets' dreaming whips;
If ever I take rest, or force a smile
Which is not borrowed from a royal vengeance,
Before I know which way to satisfy
Fury and wrong,—nay, kneel down [They kneel],—let me die

More wretched than despair, reproach, contempt,
Laughter, and poverty itself can make me!
Let's rise on all sides friends [They rise]:—now all's agreed:

If the moon serve, some that are safe shall bleed:1

Enter BIANCA, FERNANDO, and MORONA.

Bian. My lord the duke,—

Duke. Bianca! ha, how is't?

How is't, Bianca?—What, Fernando!—come,

Shall's shake hands, sirs?—'faith, this is kindly done.

Here's three as one: welcome, dear wite, sweet friend!

D'Av. [Aside to FIORMONDA] I do not like this now; it shows scurvily to me.

Bian. My lord, we have a suit; your friend and I—Duke. [Aside] She puts my friend before, most kindly still.

¹ Certain states of the moon were considered especially favourable for the operation of bleeding.

Bian. Must join-

Duke.

What, "must"?

Bian.

My lord!—

Duke.

Must join, you say-

Bian. That you will please to set Mauruccio At liberty; this gentlewoman here Hath, by agreement made betwixt them two, Obtained him for her husband: good my lord, Let me entreat; I dare engage mine honour He's innocent in any wilful fault.

Duke. Your honour, madam! now beshrew you for't, T' engage your honour on so slight a ground: Honour's a precious jewel, I can tell you; Nay, 'tis, Bianca; go to!—D'Avolos, Bring us Mauruccio hither.

D'Av. I shall, my lord.

Exit.

Mor.

I humbly thank your grace.

Fern. And, royal sir, since Julia and Colona, Chief actors in Ferentes' tragic end, Were, through their ladies' mediation, Freed by your gracious pardon; I, in pity, Tendered this widow's friendless misery; For whose reprieve I shall, in humblest duty, Be ever thankful.

Re-enter D'Avolos with Mauruccio in rags, and Giacopo weeping.

Mau. Come you, my learned counsel, do not roar; If I must hang, why, then, lament therefore: You may rejoice, and both, no doubt, be great To serve your prince, when I am turned worms'-meat. I fear my lands and all I have is begged; 1 Else, woe is me, why should I be so ragged?

D'Av. Come on, sir; the duke stays for you.

Mau. O, how my stomach doth begin to puke, When I do hear that only word, the duke!

¹ i.e. As a condemned person.

Duke. You, sir, look on that woman: are you pleased, If we remit your body from the gaol,

To take her for your wife?

Mau. On that condition, prince, with all my heart.

Mor. Yes, I warrant your grace he is content.

Duke. Why, foolish man, hast thou so soon forgot The public shame of her abused womb, Her being mother to a bastard's birth? Or canst thou but imagine she will be True to thy bed who to herself was false?

Gia. [To MAURUCCIO] Phew, sir, do not stand upon that; that's a matter of nothing, you know.

Mau. Nay, an't shall please your good grace, an it come to that, I care not; as good men as I have lain in foul sheets, I am sure; the linen has not been much the worse for the wearing a little: I will have her with all my heart.

Duke. And shalt.—Fernando, thou shalt have the grace

To join their hands; put 'em together, friend.

Bian. Yes, do, my lord; bring you the bridegroom hither;

I'll give the bride myself.

D'Av. [Aside] Here's argument to jealousy as good as drink to the dropsy; she will share any disgrace with him: I could not wish it better.

Duke. Even so: well, do it.

Fern.

Here, Mauruccio;

Long live a happy couple!

[FERNANDO and BIANCA join their hands.

Duke.

'Tis enough;

Now know our pleasure henceforth. 'Tis our will, If ever thou, Mauruccio, or thy wife, Be seen within a dozen miles o' the court, We will recall our mercy; no entreat Shall warrant thee a minute of thy life: We'll have no servile slavery of lust

Shall breathe near us; dispatch, and get ye hence.—Bianca, come with me.—[Aside.] O, my cleft soul!

[Exeunt Duke and BIANCA.

Mau. How's that? must I come no more near the court?

Gia. O, pitiful! not near the court, sir!

D'Av. Not by a dozen miles, indeed, sir. Your only course, I can advise you, is to pass to Naples, and set up a house of carnality: there are very fair and frequent suburbs, and you need not fear the contagion of any pestilent disease, for the worst is very proper to the place.

Fern. 'Tis a strange sentence.

Fior. 'Tis, and sudden too,

And not without some mystery.

D'Av. Will you go, sir?

Mau. Not near the court!

Mor. What matter is it, sweetheart? fear nothing, love; you shall have new change of apparel, good diet, wholesome attendance;—and we will live like pigeons, my lord.

Mau. Wilt thou forsake me, Giacopo?

Gia. I forsake ye! no, not as long as I have a whole ear on my head, come what will come.

Fior. Mauruccio, you did once proffer true love To me, but since you are more thriftier sped, For old affection's sake here take this gold; Spend it for my sake.

Fern. Madam, you do nobly,—

And that's for me, Mauruccio. [They give him money.

D'Av. Will ye go, sir? •

Mau. Yes, I will go;—and I humbly thank your lord-ship and ladyship.—Pavy, sweet Pavy, farewell!—Come, wife,—come, Giacopo:

Now is the time that we away must lag, And march in pomp with baggage and with bag. O poor Mauruccio! what hast thou misdone,

To end thy life when life was new begun?

Adieu to all; for lords and ladies see My woeful plight and squires of low degree! D'Av. Away, away, sirs!

[Exeunt all but FIORMONDA and FERNANDO.

Fior. My Lord Fernando,—

Fern.

Madam?

Fior.

Do you note

My brother's odd distractions? You were wont To bosom in his counsels: I am sure You know the ground of it.

Fern.

Not I, in troth.

Fior. Is't possible? What would you say, my lord If he, out of some melancholy spleen, Edged-on by some thank-picking parasite, Should now prove jealous? I mistrust it shrewdly.

Fern. What, madam! jealous?

Fior. Yes; for but observe,

A prince whose eye is chooser to his heart Is seldom steady in the lists of love, Unless the party he affects do match His rank in equal portion or in friends: I never yet, out of report, or else By warranted description, have observed The nature of fantastic jealousy, If not in him; yet, on my conscience now, He has no cause.

Fern. Cause, madam! by this light, I'll pledge my soul against a useless rush.

Fior. I never thought her less; yet, trust me, sir, No merit can be greater than your praise: Whereat I strangely wonder, how a man Vowed, as you told me, to a single life, Should so much deify the saints from whom You have disclaimed devotion.

Fern. Madam, 'tis true; '

From them I have, but from their virtues never.

Fior. You are too wise, Fernando. To be plain,

You are in love; nay, shrink not, man, you are; Bianca is your aim: why do you blush? She is, I know she is.

Fern.

My aim!

Fior.

Yes, yours;

I hope I talk no news. Fernando, know Thou runn'st to thy confusion, if in time Thou dost not wisely shun that Circe's charm. Unkindest man! I have too long concealed My hidden flames, when still in silent signs I courted thee for love, without respect To youth or state; and yet thou art unkind. Fernando, leave that sorceress, if not For love of me, for pity of thyself.

Fern. [Walks aside]. Injurious woman, I defy thy lust. 'Tis not your subtle sifting that shall creep Into the secrets of a heart unsoiled.— You are my prince's sister, else your malice Had railed itself to death: but as for me,

Be record all my fate, I do detest

Exit.

Your fury or affection:—judge the rest. Fior. What, gone! well, go thy ways: I see the more I humble my firm love, the more he shuns Both it and me. So plain! then 'tis too late To hope; change, peevish passion, to contempt!

Whatever rages in my blood I feel, Fool, he shall know I was not born to kneel.

Exit.

SCENE II.—Another Room in the Palace.

Enter D'Avolos and Julia.

D'Av. Julia, mine own, speak softly. What, hast thou learned out any thing of this pale widgeon? speak soft; what does she say?

Jul. Foh, more than all; there's not an hour shall pass Ford.

But I shall have intelligence, she swears. Whole nights—you know my mind; I hope you'll give The gown you promised me.

D'Av. Honest Julia, peace; thou'rt a woman worth a kingdom. Let me never be believed now but I think it will be my destiny to be thy husband at last: what though thou have a child,—or perhaps two?

Jul. Never but one, I swear.

D'Av. Well, one; is that such a matter? I like thee the better for't! it shows thou hast a good tenantable and fertile womb, worth twenty of your barren, dry, bloodless devourers of youth.—But come, I will talk with thee more privately; the duke has a journey in hand, and will not be long absent: see, he has come already—let's pass away easily.

[Exeunt.]

Enter Duke and BIANCA.

Duke. Troubled? yes, I have cause.—O, Bianca! Here was my fate engraven in thy brow, This smooth, fair, polished table; in thy cheeks Nature summed up thy dower: 'twas not wealth, The miser's god, or royalty of blood, Advanced thee to my bed; but love, and hope Of virtue that might equal those sweet looks: If, then, thou shouldst betray my trust, thy faith, To the pollution of a base desire, Thou wert a wretched woman.

Bian. Speaks your love

Or fear, my lord?

Duke. Both, both. Bianca, know,
The nightly languish of my dull unrest
Hath stamped a strong opinion; for, methought,—
Mark what I say,—as I in glorious pomp
Was sitting on my throne, whiles I had hemmed
My best-beloved Bianca in mine arms,
She reached my cap of state, and cast it down
Beneath her foot, and spurned it in the dust;

Whiles I—O, 'twas a dream too full of fate!—
Was stooping down to reach it, on my head
Fernando, like a traitor to his vows,
Clapt, in disgrace, a coronet of horns.
But, by the honour of anointed kings,
Were both of you hid in a rock of fire,
Guarded by ministers of flaming hell,
I have a sword—'tis here—should make my way
Through fire, through darkness, death, and hell, and all,

To hew your lust-engendered flesh to shreds, Pound you to mortar, cut your throats, and mince Your flesh to mites: I will,—start not,—I will.

Bian. Mercy protect me, will ye murder me?

Duke. Yes.—O, I cry thee mercy!—How the rage
Of my own dreamed-of wrongs made me forget
All sense of sufferance!—Blame me not, Bianca;
One such another dream would quite distract
Reason and self-humanity: yet tell me,
Was't not an ominous vision?

Bian: 'Twas, my lord,

Yet but a vision: for did such a guilt Hang on mine honour, 'twere no blame in you, If you did stab me to the heart.

Duke. The heart!

Nay, strumpet, to the soul; and tear it off From life, to damn it in immortal death.

Bian. Alas! what do you mean, sir?

Dukc. I am mad.—

Forgive me, good Bianca; still methinks
I dream and dream anew: now, prithee, chide me.
Sickness and these divisions so distract
My senses, that I take things possible
As if they were; which to remove, I mean
To speed me straight to Lucca, where, perhaps,
Absence and bathing in those healthful springs
May soon recover me; meantime, dear sweet,

Pity my troubled heart; griefs are extreme: Yet, sweet, when I am gone, think on my dream.— Who waits without, ho!

Enter Petruchio, Nibrassa, Fiormonda, D'Avolos, Roseilli disguised as before, and Fernando.

Is provision ready,

To pass to Lucca?

Pet. It attends your highness,

Duke. Friend, hold; take here from me this jewel, this:

[Gives BIANCA to FERNANDO.

Be she your care till my return from Lucca,

. Honest Fernando.—Wife, respect my friend.—

Let's go:—but hear ye, wife, think on my dream.

[Exeunt all but Roseilli and Petruchio.

Pet. Cousin, one word with you: doth not this cloud

Acquaint you with strange novelties? The duke Is lately much distempered: what he means By journeying now to Lucca, is to me A riddle; can you clear my doubt;

Ros. O, sir,

My fears exceed my knowledge, yet I note
No less than you infer; all is not well;
Would 'twere! whosoe'er thrive, I shall be sure
Never to rise to my unhoped desires.
But, cousin, I shall tell you more anon:
Meantime, pray send my Lord Fernando to me;

I covet much to speak with him.

Pet.

And see,

He comes himself; I'll leave you both together. [Exit.

Re-enter FERNANDO.

Fern. The duke is horsed for Lucca, How now, coz,

How prosper you in love?

Ros.

As still I hoped.'—

My lord, you are undone.

Fern.

Undone! in what?

Ros. Lost; and I fear your life is bought and sold; I'll tell you how. Late in my lady's chamber As I by chance lay slumbering on the mats, In comes the lady marquess, and with her Julia and D'Avolos; where sitting down, Not doubting me, "Madam," quoth D'Avolos, "We have discovered now the nest of shame." In short, my lord,—for you already know As much as they reported,—there was told The circumstance of all your private love And meeting with the duchess; when, at last, False D'Avolos concluded with an oath, "We'll make," quoth he, "his heart-strings crack for this."

Fern. Speaking of me?

Of you; "Ay," quoth the marquess, Ros.

"Were not the duke a baby, he would seek Swift vengeance; for he knew it long ago."

Fern. Let him know it; yet I vow She is as loyal in her plighted faith As is the sun in Heaven: but put case She were not, and the duke did know she were not; This sword lifted up, and guided by this arm, Shall guard her from an armed troop of fiends And all the earth beside.

Ros.

You are too safe

In your destruction.

Fern.

Damn him!—he shall feel—

But peace! who comes?

Enter COLONA.

Col.

My lord, the duchess craves

A word with you.

¹ Expected.

Fern. Where is she?

Col. In her chamber.

Ros. Here, have a plum for ie'ee-

Col. Come, fool, I'll give thee plums enow; come, fool.

Fern. Let slaves in mind be servile to their fears;

Our heart is high instarred in brighter spheres.

[Excunt FERNANDO and COLONA.

Ros. I see him lost already.

If all prevail not, we shall know too late

No toil can shun the violence of fate.

ACT THE FIFTH.

SCENE I. - The Palace. The Duchess's Bedchamber.

BIANCA discovered in her night-attire, leaning on a cushion at a table, holding Fernando by the hand. Enter above Fiormonda.

IOR. [Aside] Now fly, Revenge, and wound the lower earth,

That I, insphered above, may cross the race

Of love despised, and triumph o'er their graves

Who scorn the low-bent thraldom of my heart!

Bian. Why shouldst thou not be mine? why should The iron laws of ceremony, bar [the laws,

Mutual embraces? what's a vow? a vow?

Can there be sin in unity? could I

As well dispense with conscience as renounce

The outside of my titles, the poor style

Of duchess, I had rather change my life

With any waiting-woman in the land

To purchase one night's rest with thee, Fernando,

Than be Caraffa's spouse a thousand years.

Fior. [Aside] Treason to wedlock! this would make you sweat.

Fern. Lady of all 1 as before,

¹ This is the largest lacuna in Ford's works. Several lines appear to have fallen out.

. . what I am, . . .

To survive you, or I will see you first

Or widowed or buried: if the last,

By all the comfort I can wish to taste,

By your fair eyes, that sepulchre that holds

Your coffin shall incoffin me alive;

I sign it with this seal.

[Kisses her.

Fior. [Aside]

Ignoble strumpet!

Bian. You shall not swear; take off that oath again, Or thus I will enforce it.

[Kisses him.]

· Fern.

Use that force,

And make me perjured; for whiles your lips Are made the book, it is a sport to swear, And glory to forswear.

Fior. [Aside] Here's fast and loose! Which, for a ducat, now the game's on foot?

Whilst they are kissing, the Duke and D'Avolos, with their swords drawn, appear at the door, followed by Petruchio, Nibrassa, and a Guard.

Col. [Within] Help, help! madam, you are betrayed, madam; help, help!

D'Av. [Aside to Duke] Is there confidence in credit, now, sir? belief in your own eyes? do you see? do you see, sir? can you behold it without lightning?

Col. [Within] Help, madam, help!

Fern. What noise is that? I heard one cry.

Duke [Comes forward]

Ha, did you?

Know you who I am?

Fern. Yes; thou'rt Pavy's duke, Dressed like a hangman: see, I am unarmed, Yet do not fear thee; though the coward doubt Of what I could have done hath made thee steal The advantage of this time, yet, duke, I dare Thy worst, for murder sits upon thy cheeks: To't, man!

Duke. I am too angry in my rage

To scourge thee unprovided.—Take him hence;

Away with him! [The Guard seize FERNANDO.

Fern.

Unhand me!

D'Av.

You must go, sir.

Fern. Duke, do not shame thy manhood to lay hands On that most innocent lady.

Duke.

Yet again!—

Confine him to his chamber.

[Exeunt D'Avolos and the Guard with FERNANDO.

Leave us all;

None stay, not one; shut up the doors.

[Exeunt Petruchio and Nibrassa.

Fior. Now show thyself my brother, brave Caraffa.

Duke. Woman, stand forth before me;—wretched What canst thou hope for? [whore, Bian. Death; I wish no less.

You told me you had dreamt; and, gentle duke, Unless you be mistook, you're now awaked.

Duke. Strumpet, I am; and in my hand hold up The edge that must uncut thy twist of life: Dost thou not shake?

Bian. For what? to see a weak, Faint, trembling arm advance a leaden blade? Alas, good man! put up, put up; thine eyes Are likelier much to weep than arms to strike: What would you do now, pray?

Duke. What! shameless harlot!

Rip up the cradle of thy cursed womb,

In which the mixture of that traitor's lust

Imposthumes for a birth of bastardy.

Yet come, and if thou think'st thou canst deserve

One mite of mercy, ere the boundless spleen

Of just-consuming wrath o'erswell my reason,

Tell me, bad woman, tell me what could move

Thy heart to crave variety of youth.

Bian. I'll tell ye, if you needs would be resolved; I held Fernando much the properer man.

Duke. Shameless, intolerable whore!

Bian. What ails you?

Can you imagine, sir, the name of duke
Could make a crooked leg, a scambling 1 foot,
A tolerable face, a wearish 2 hand,
A bloodless lip, or such an untrimmed beard
As yours, fit for a lady's pleasure? no:
I wonder you could think 'twere possible,
When I had once but looked on your Fernando,
I ever could love you again; fie, fie!
Now, by my life, I thought that long ago
Y' had known it, and been glad you had a friend
Your wife did think so well of.

Duke. O my stars!

Here's impudence above all history.
Why, thou detested reprobate in virtue,
Dar'st thou, without a blush, before mine eyes
Speak such immodest language?

Bian. Dare! yes, 'faith,

You see I dare: I know what you would say now; You would fain tell me how exceeding much I am beholding to you, that vouchsafed Me, from a simple gentlewoman's place, The honour of your bed: 'tis true, you did; But why? 'twas but because you thought I had A spark of beauty more than you had seen. To answer this, my reason is the like; The self-same appetite which led you on To marry me led me to love your friend: O, he's a gallant man! if ever yet Mine eyes beheld a miracle composed Of flesh and blood, Fernando has my voice. I must confess, my lord, that for a prince Handsome enough you are, and—and no more; But to compare yourself with him! trust me, You are too much in fault. Shall I advise you?

¹ Sprawling.

² Withered.

Duke.

Hark in your ear; thank Heaven he was so slow As not to wrong your sheets; for, as I live, The fault was his, not mine.

Fior. Take this, take all.

Duke. Excellent, excellent! the pangs of death Are music to this.—

Forgive me, my good genius; I had thought
I matched a woman, but I find she is
A devil, worser than the worst in hell.—
Nay, nay, since we are in, e'en come, say on;
I mark you to a syllable: you say
The fault was his, not yours; why, virtuous mistress,
Can you imagine you have so much art
Which may persuade me you and your close markman
Did not a little traffic in my right?

Bian. Look, what I said, 'tis true; for, know it now,—
I must confess I missed no means, no time,
To win him to my bosom; but so much,
So holily, with such religion,
He kept the laws of friendship, that my suit
Was held but, in comparison, a jest;
Nor did I ofter urge the violence
Of my affection, but as oft he urged
The sacred vows of faith 'twixt friend and friend:
Yet be assured, my lord, if ever language
Of cunning servile flatteries, entreaties,
Or what in me is, could procure his love,
I would not blush to speak it.

As thou art, miserable creature, would Sink the whole sex of women: yet confess What witchcraft used the wretch to charm the heart

Of the once spotless temple of thy mind?

For without witchcraft it could ne'er be done.

Bian. Phew!—an you be in these tunes, sir, I'll leave; You know the best and worst and all.

Such another

1 i.e. Leave off, say no more.

Prepare to die!

Duke. Nay, then, Thou tempt'st me to thy ruin. Come, black angel, Fair devil, in thy prayers reckon up The sum in gross of all thy veined 1 follies; There, amongst others, weep in tears of blood For one above the rest, adultery! Adultery, Bianca! such a guilt As, were the sluices of thine eyes let up, Tears cannot wash it off: 'tis not the tide Of trivial wantonness from youth to youth, But thy abusing of thy lawful bed, Thy husband's bed; his in whose breast thou sleep'st, His that did prize thee more than all the trash Which hoarding worldlings make an idol of. When thou shalt find the catalogue enrolled Of thy misdeeds, there shall be writ in text Thy bastarding the issues of a prince. Now turn thine eyes into thy hovering soul, And do not hope for life; would angels sing A requiem at my hearse but to dispense With my revenge on thee, 'twere all in vain:

Bian. [Opens her bosom] I do; and to the point Of thy sharp sword with open breast I'll run Half way thus naked; do not shrink, Caraffa; This daunts not me: but in the latter act Of thy revenge, 'tis all the suit I ask At my last gasp, to spare thy noble friend; For life to me without him were a death.

Duke. Not this; I'll none of this; 'tis not so fit.—

Why should I kill her? she may live and change,
Or -- [Throws down his sword.

Fior. Dost thou halt? faint coward, dost thou wish To blemish all thy glorious ancestors? Is this thy courage?

1 i.e. In the blood.

Dies.

Duke.

Ha! say you so too?—

Give me thy hand, Bianca.

Bian.

Here.

Duke.

Farewell;

Thus go in everlasting sleep to dwell!

[Draws his dagger and stabs her.

Here's blood for lust, and sacrifice for wrong.

Bian. 'Tis bravely done; thou hast struck home at once:

Live to repent too late. Commend my love To thy true friend, my love to him that owes 1 it; My tragedy to thee; my heart to—to—Fernando. O—O!

Duke. Sister, she's dead.

Fior. Then, whiles thy rage is warm Pursue the causer of her trespass.

Duke.

Good:

I'll slack no time whiles I am hot in blood.

[Takes up his sword and exit.

Fior. Here's royal vengeance! this becomes the state Of his disgrace and my unbounded hate. [Exit above.

SCENE II.—An Apartment in the Palace.

Enter FERNANDO, NIBRASSA, and PETRUCHIO.

Pet. May we give credit to your words, my lord? Speak, on your honour.

Fern.

Let me die accursed,

If ever, through the progress of my life,

I did as much as reap the benefit

Of any favour from her save a kiss:

A better woman never blessed the earth.

Nib. Beshrew my heart, young lord, but I believe thee: alas, kind lady, 'tis a lordship to a dozen of points 2 but the jealous madman will in his fury offer her some violence.

¹ Owns.

² Tagged laces.

Pet. If it be thus, 'twere fit you rather kept A guard about you for your own defence Than to be guarded for security Of his revenge; he is extremely moved.

Nib. Passion of my body, my lord, if he come in his odd fits to you, in the case you are, he might cut your throat ere you could provide a weapon of defence: nay, rather than it shall be so, hold, take my sword in your hand; 'tis none of the sprucest, but 'tis a tough fox ' will not fail his master, come what will come. Take it; I'll answer't, I: in the mean time Petruchio and I will back to the duchess' lodging.

[Gives Fernando his sword.

Pet. Well thought on;—and, despite of all his rage, Rescue the virtuous lady.

Nib. Look to yourself, my lord! the duke comes.

Enter the Duke, a sword in one hand, and a bloody dagger in the other.

Duke. Stand, and behold thy executioner,
Thou giorious traitor! I will keep no form
Of ceremonious law to try thy guilt:
Look here, 'tis written on my poniard's point,
The bloody evidence of thy untruth,
Wherein thy conscience and the wrathful rod
Of Heaven's scourge for lust at once give up
The verdict of thy crying villainies.
I see thou'rt armed: prepare, I crave no odds
Greater than is the justice of my cause;
Fight, or I'll kill thee.

Fern. Duke, I fear thee not:
But first I charge thee, as thou art a prince,
Tell me how hast thou used thy duchess?

Duke. How!

To add affliction to thy trembling ghost, Look on my dagger's crimson dye, and judge,

¹ Sword.

Fern. Not dead?

Duke. Not dead! yes, by my honour's truth: why, fool,

Dost think I'll hug my injuries? no, traitor! I'll mix your souls together in your deaths, As you did both your bodies in her life.— Have at thee!

Fern.

Stay; I yield my weapon up.

He drops his sword.

Here, here's my bosom: as thou art a duke, Dost honour goodness, if the chaste Bianca Be murdered, murder me.

Duke.

Faint-hearted coward,

Art thou so poor in spirit! Rise and fight; Or, by the glories of my house and name, I'll kill thee basely.

Do but hear me first: Fern. Unfortunate Caraffa, thou hast butchered An innocent, a wife as free from lust As any terms of art can deify.

Duke. Pish, this is stale dissimulation; I'll hear no more.

If ever I unshrined Fern. The altar of her purity, or tasted More of her love than what without control Or blame a brother from a sister might, Rack me to atomies. I must confess I have too much abused thee; did exceed In lawless courtship; 'tis too true, I did: But, by the honour which I owe to goodness, For any actual folly I am free.

Duke. 'Tis false: as much in death for thee she spake. Fern. By yonder starry roof, 'tis true. O duke! Couldst thou rear up another world like this, Another like to that, and more, or more, Herein thou art most wretched; all the wealth Of all those worlds could not redeem the loss

Of such a spotless wife. Glorious Bianca, Reign in the triumph of thy martyrdom; Earth was unworthy of thee!

Nib. and Pet. Now, on our lives, we both believe him.

Duke. Fernando, dar'st thou swear upon my sword To justify thy words?

Fern. I dare; look here. [Kisses the sword. 'Tis not the fear of death doth prompt my tongue, For I would wish to die; and thou shalt know, Poor miserable duke, since she is dead, I'll hold all life a hell.

Duke. Bianca chaste!

Fern.

As virtue's self is good.

Duke. Chaste, chaste, and killed by me! to her I offer up this remnant of my—

[Offers to stab himself, and is stayed by FERNANDO. Fern. Hold!

Be gentler to thyself.

Pet.

Alas, my lord,

Is this a wise man's carriage?

Duke.

Whither now

Shall I run from the day, where never man,
Nor eye, nor eye of Heaven may see a dog
So hateful as I am? Bianca chaste!
Had not the fury of some hellish rage
Blinded all reason's sight, I must have seen
Her clearness in her confidence to die.
Your leave—

[Kneels, holds up his hands, and, after speaking to himself a little, rises.

'Tis done: come, friend, now for her love, Her love that praised thee in the pangs of death, I'll hold thee dear.—Lords, do not care for me, I am too wise to die yet.—O, Bianca!

Enter D'Avolos.

D'Av. The Lord Abbot of Monaco, sir, is, in his return from Rome, lodged last night late in the city very privately; and hearing the report of your journey, only intends to visit your duchess to-morrow.

Duke. Slave, torture me no more!—note him, my lords;

If you would choose a devil in the shape
Of man, an arch-arch-devil, there stands one.—
We'll meet our uncle.—Order straight, Petruchio,
Our duchess may be coffined; 'tis our will
She forthwith be interred, with all the speed
And privacy you may, i' the college-church
Amongst Caraffa's ancient monuments:
Some three days hence we'll keep her funeral.—
Damned villain! bloody villain!—O, Bianca!—

No counsel from our cruel wills can win us; But ills once done, we bear our guilt within us.

[Exeunt all but D'Avolos.

D'Av. Good b'wi'ye! "Arch-arch-devil!" why, I am paid. Here's bounty for good service! beshrew my heart, it is a right princely reward. Now must I say my prayers, that I have lived to so ripe an age to have my head stricken off. I cannot tell; 't may be my Lady Fiormonda will stand on my behalf to the duke: that's but a single hope; a disgraced courtier oftener finds enemies to sink him when he is falling than friends to relieve him. I must resolve to stand to the hazard of all brunts now. Come what may, I will not die like a coward; and the world shall know it.

[Exit.

SCENE III.—Another Apartment in the Palace.

Enter FIORMONDA, and ROSEILLI discovering himself.

Ros. Wonder not, madam; here behold the man Whom your disdain hath metamorphosed. Thus long have I been clouded in this shape,

 \mathbf{B}

Led on by love; and in that love, despair:
If not the sight of our distracted court,
Nor pity of my bondage, can reclaim
The greatness of your scorn, yet let me know
My latest doom from you.

Fior. Strange miracle!

Roseilli, I must honour thee: thy truth,
Like a transparent mirror, represents
My reason with my errors. Noble lord,
That better dost deserve a better fate,
Forgive me: if my heart can entertain
Another thought of love, it shall be thine.

Ros. Blessèd, for ever blessèd be the words! In death you have revived me.

Enter D'Avolos.

D'Av. [Aside] Whom have we here? Roseilli, the supposed fool? 'tis he; nay, then, help me a brazen face!—My honourable lord!—

Ros. Bear off, bloodthirsty man! come not near me. D'Av. Madam, I trust the service—

Fig. Fellow learn to new-live: the way to thrift

Fior. Fellow, learn to new-live: the way to thrift

For thee in grace is a repentant shrift.

Page III have the life been graces will be the end.

Ros. Ill has thy life been, worse will be thy end; Men fleshed in blood know seldom to amend,

Enter Servant.

Ser. His highness commends his love to you, and expects your presence; he is ready to pass to the church, only staying for my lord abbot to associate him.—Withal, his pleasure is, that you, D'Avolos, forbear to rank in this solemnity in the place of secretary; else to be there as a private man.—Pleaseth you to go?

[Excunt all but D'Avolos.

D'Av. As a private man! what remedy? This way they must come; and here I will stand, to fall amongst 'em in the rear.

A solemn strain of soft music. The Scene opens, and discovers the Church, with a tomb in the background.

Enter Attendants with torches, after them two Friars; then the Duke in mourning manner; after him the Abbot, Fiormonda, Colona, Julia, Roseilli, Petruchio, Nibrassa, and a Guard.—D'Avolos follows. When the procession approaches the tomb they all kneel. The Duke goes to the tomb, and lays his hand on it. The music ceases.

Duke. Peace and sweet rest sleep here! Let not the touch

Of this my impious hand profane the shrine Of fairest purity, which hovers yet About those blessed bones inhearsed within. If in the bosom of this sacred tomb, Bianca, thy disturbed ghost doth range, Behold, I offer up the sacrifice Of bleeding tears, shed from a faithful spring, Pouring oblations of a mourning heart To thee, offended spirit! I confess I am Caraffa, he, that wretched man, That butcher, who, in my enraged spleen, Slaughtered the life of innocence and beauty. Now come I to pay tribute to those wounds Which I digged up, and reconcile the wrongs My fury wrought and my contrition mourns. So chaste, so dear a wife was never man But I enjoyed; yet in the bloom and pride Of all her years untimely took her life.— Enough: set ope the tomb, that I may take My last farewell, and bury griefs with her.

[The tomb is opened, out of which rises Fernando in his winding-sheet, his face only uncovered; as the Duke is going in he puts him back.

Fern. Forbear! what art thou that dost rudely press Into the confines of forsaken graves?

Has death no privilege? Com'st thou, Caraffa, To practise yet a rape upon the dead? Inhuman tyrant!—
Whats'ever thou intendest, know this place Is pointed out for my inheritance;
Here lies the monument of all my hopes:
Had eager lust intrunked my conquered soul, I had not buried living joys in death.
Go, revel in thy palace, and be proud To boast thy famous murders; let thy smooth, Low-fawning parasites renown thy act:
Thou com'st not here.

Duke. Fernando, man of darkness,
Never till now, before these dreadful sights,
Did I abhor thy friendship: thou hast robbed
My resolution of a glorious name.
Come out, or, by the thunder of my rage,
Thou diest a death more fearful than the scourge
Of death can whip thee with.

Why, that's the aim I shoot at; 'tis not threats—Maugre thy power, or the spite of hell—Shall rend that honour: let life-hugging slaves, Whose hands imbrued in butcheries like thine Shake terror to their souls, be loth to die! See, I am clothed in robes that fit the grave: I pity thy defiance.

Duke.

Guard, lay hands,

And drag him out.

Fern.

Yes, let 'em; here's my shield;

Here's health to victory!

[As the Guard go to seize him, he drinks-off a phial of poison.

Now do thy worst.—

Farewell, duke! once I have outstripped thy plots; Not all the cunning antidotes of art Can warrant me twelve minutes of my life: It works, it works already, bravely! bravely! Now, now I feel it tear each several joint. O royal poison! trusty friend! split, split Both heart and gall asunder, excellent bane! Roseilli, love my memory.—Well searched out, Swift, nimble venom! torture every vein.— I come, Bianca—cruel torment, feast, Feast on, do—Duke, farewell.—Thus I—hot flames!— Conclude my love,—and seal it in my bosom! O! Dies.

Abbot. Most desperate end! Duke. None stir;

Who steps a foot steps to his utter ruin.— And art thou gone, Fernando? art thou gone? Thou wert a friend unmatched; rest in thy fame.— Sister, when I have finished my last days, Lodge me, my wife, and this unequalled friend, All in one monument.—Now to my vows. Never henceforth let any passionate 1 tongue Mention Bianca's and Caraffa's name, But let each letter in that tragic sound Beget a sigh, and every sigh a tear; Children unborn, and widows whose lean cheeks Are furrowed up by age, shall weep whole nights, Repeating but the story of our fates; Whiles in the period, closing up their tale, They must conclude how for Bianca's love Caraffa, in revenge of wrongs to her, Thus on her altar sacrificed his life. [Stabs himself.

Abbot. O, hold the duke's hand!

Save my brother, save him! Fior.

Duke. Do, do; I was too willing to strike home To be prevented. Fools, why, could you dream I would outlive my outrage?—Sprightful flood, Run out in rivers! O, that these thick streams Could gather head, and make a standing pool.

That jealous husbands here might bathe in blood!
So! I grow sweetly empty; all the pipes
Of life unvessel life.—Now heavens, wipe out
The writing of my sin!—Bianca, thus

I creep to thee—to thee—to thee, Bi—an—ca. [Dies.

Ros. He's dead already, madam.

D'Av. [Aside] Above hope! here's labour saved; I could bless the destinies.

Abbot. 'Would I had never seen it!

Fior. Since 'tis thus,

My Lord Roseilli, in the true requital Of your continued love, I here possess You of the dukedom, and with it of me, In presence of this holy abbot.

Abbot. Lady, then,

From my hand take your husband; long enjoy

[Joins their hands.

Each to each other's comfort and content!

All. Long live Roseilli!

Ros. First, thanks to Heaven; next, lady, to your love; Lastly, my lords, to all: and that the entrance Into this principality may give Fair hopes of being worthy of our place, Our first work shall be justice.—D'Avolos, Stand forth.

D'Av. My gracious lord!

Ros. No, graceless villain!

I am no lord of thine.—Guard, take him hence, Convey him to the prison's top; in chains Hang him alive; whosoe'er lends a bit Of bread to feed him dies.—Speak not against it, I will be deaf to mercy.—Bear him hence!

D'Av. Mercy, new duke; here's my comfort, I make but one in the number of the tragedy of princes.

[He is led off.

Ros. Madam, a second charge is to perform Your brother's testament; we'll rear a tomb

That ever here befell a sadder day.

Exeunt.

To those unhappy lovers, which shall tell Their fatal loves to all posterity.— Thus, then, for you; henceforth I here dismiss The mutual comforts of our marriage-bed: Learn to new-live, my vows unmoved shall stand; And since your life hath been so much uneven, Bethink in time to make your peace with Heaven. Fior. O, me! is this your love? Ros. 'Tis your desert; Which no persuasion shall remove. 'Tis fit; Purge frailty with repentance. I embrace it: Fior. Happy too late, since lust hath made me foul, Henceforth I'll dress my bride-bed in my soul. Ros. Please you to walk, lord abbot? Abbot. Yes, set on. No age hath heard, nor chronicle can say,

PERKIN WARBECK.

ERKIN WARBECK was acted at the Phœnix and published in 1634 as "a chronicle history." Ford founded it on Bacon's Life of Henry VII.

The play was reprinted in 1714, a period at which there were insurrectionary movements in Scotland. In the memorable year of 1745, when the young Pretender appeared, Ford's play was revived (at the time that two other plays appeared on the same subject, by Macklin and Elderton), at Goodman's Fields Theatre, but so sympathetic a picture of a pretender could scarcely have appealed to the public of that period.

Schiller left behind him the sketch of a drama called Warbeck.

To his worthy Friend, Master John Ford, upon his Perkin Warbeck.

Let men who are writ poets lay a claim To the Phæbean hill, I have no name Nor art in verse: true, I have heard some tell Of Aganippe, but ne'er knew the well; Therefore have no ambition with the times To be in print, for making of ill rhymes; But love of thee, and justice to thy pen, Hath drawn me to this bar with other men, To justify, though against double laws, Waving the subtle business of his cause, The glorious Perkin, and thy poet's art, Equal with his in playing the king's part.

RA. EURE, baronis primogenitus.1

To my Friend and Kinsman, Master John Ford, the Author.

Dramatic poets, as the times go now, Can hardly write what others will allow; The cynic snarls, the critic howls and barks, And ravens croak to drown the voice of larks: Scorn those stage-harpies! This I'll boldly say, Many may imitate, few match thy play.

² This is the cousin to whom Ford dedicated Love's Sacrifice.

To the Rightly Honourable WILLIAM CAVENDISH,

EARL OF NEWCASTLE, VISCOUNT MANSFIELD, LORD BOLSOVER AND OGLE.¹

My Lord,

UT of the darkness of a former age,—enlightened by a late both learned and an honourable pen,2—I have endeavoured to personate a great attempt, and in it a greater danger. In other labours you may read actions of antiquity discoursed; in this abridgment find the actors themselves discoursing, in some kind practised as well what to speak as speaking why to do. Your lordship is a most competent judge in expressions of such credit; commissioned by your known tability in examining, and enabled by your knowledge in determining, the monuments of time. Eminent titles may, indeed, inform who their owners are, not often what. To yours the addition of that information in both cannot in any application be observed flattery, the authority being established by truth. I can only acknowledge the errors in writing mine own; the worthiness of the subject written being a perfection in the story and of it. The custom of your lordship's entertainments-even to strangers-is rather an example than a fashion: in which consideration I dare not profess a curiosity; but am only studious that your lordship will please, amongst such as best honour your goodness, to admit into your noble construction

JOHN FORD.

3 2.e. That of Lord Bacon.

William Cavendish (nephew to the first Earl of Devonshire), was born in the year 1592, and was early in favour with James 1. He continued in favour with Charles I., and engaged on the Royalist side during the civil war. He was created Duke of Newcastle in 1665, and died in 1676, at the advanced age of 84.

STUDIES have of this nature been of late So out of fashion, so unfollowed, that It is become more justice to revive The antic follies of the times than strive To countenance wise industry: no want Of art doth render wit or lame or scant Or slothful in the purchase of fresh bays; But want of truth in them who give the praise To their self-love, presuming to out-do The writer, or—for need—the actors too. But such this author's silence best befits. Who bids them be in love with their own wits. From him to clearer judgments we can say He shows a history couched in a play; A history of noble mention, known, Famous, and true; most noble, 'cause our own; Not forged from Italy, from France, from Spain, But chronicled at home; as rich in strain Of brave attempts as ever fertile rage In action could beget to grace the stage. We cannot limit scenes, for the whole land Itself appeared too narrow to withstand Competitors for kingdoms; nor is here Unnecessary mirth forced to endear A multitude: on these two rests the fate Of worthy expectation,—truth and state.

SCENE—Partly in ENGLAND, partly in SCOTLAND

PERKIN WARBECK.

ACT THE FIRST.

SCENE I. - Westminster. The royal Presence-chamber.

Enter King Henry, supported to the throne by the Bishop of Durham and Sir William Stanley; Earls of Oxford and Surrey, and Lord Dawbeney. A Guard.

ING HEN. Still to be haunted, still to be pursued,

Still to be frightened with false apparitions

Of pageant majesty and new-coined greatness,

As if we were a mockery king in state,
Only ordained to lavish sweat and blood,
In scorn and laughter, to the ghosts of York,
Is all below our merits: yet, my lords,
My friends and counsellors, yet we sit fast
In our own royal birthright; the rent face

"At this time the king began again to be haunted with sprites by the magic and curious arts of the Lady Margaret, who raised up the ghost of Richard, Duke of York, second son to King Edward the Fourth, to walk and vex the king," &c.—Bacon's Henry VII. And bleeding wounds of England's slaughtered people Have been by us as by the best physician, At last both throughly cured and set in safety; And yet, for all this glorious work of peace, Ourselves is scarce secure.

Conjures fresh spirits with the spells of York.
For ninety years ten English kings and princes,
Threescore great dukes and earls, a thousand lords
And valiant knights, two hundred fifty thousand
Of English subjects have in civil wars
Been sacrificed to an uncivil thirst
Of discord and ambition: this hot vengeance
Of the just powers above to utter ruin
And desolation had rained on, but that
Mercy did gently sheathe the sword of justice,
In lending to this blood-shrunk commonwealth
A new soul, new birth, in your sacred person.

Daw. Edward the Fourth, after a doubtful fortune, Yielded to nature, leaving to his sons, Edward and Richard, the inheritance Of a most bloody purchase: these young princes, Richard the tyrant, their unnatural uncle, Forced to a violent grave:—so just is Heaven, Him hath your majesty by your own arm, Divinely strengthened, pulled from his boar's sty,¹ And struck the black usurper to a carcass. Nor doth the house of York decay in honours, Though Lancaster doth repossess his right; For Edward's daughter is King Henry's queen,— A blessèd union, and a lasting blessing For this poor panting island, if some shreds, Some useless remnant of the house of York Grudge not at this content.

Oxf. Margaret of Burgundy Blows fresh coals of division.

Sur.

Painted fires,

Without or heat to scorch or light to cherish.

Daw. York's headless trunk, her father; Edward's fate,

Her brother, king; the smothering of her nephews By tyrant Gloster, brother to her nature; Nor Gloster's own confusion,—all decrees Sacred in heaven,—can move this woman-monster, But that she still, from the unbottomed mine Of devilish policies, doth vent the ore Of troubles and sedition.

Oxf. In her age—

Great sir, observe the wonder—she grows fruitful,
Who in her strength of youth was always barren:
Nor are her births as other mothers' are,
At nine or ten months' end; she has been with child
Eight, or seven years at least; whose twins being born,—
A prodigy in nature,—even the youngest
Is fifteen years of age at his first entrance,
As soon as known i' the world; tall striplings, strong
And able to give battle unto kings,
Idols of Yorkish malice.

Daw.

And but idols;

A steely hammer crushes 'em to pieces.

K. Hen. Lambert, the eldest, lords, is in our service, Preferred by an officious care of duty

From the scullery to a falconer; 2 strange example!

Which shows the difference between noble natures

And the base-born: but for the upstart duke,

- "It is the strangest thing in the world," said Henry's ambassador to the archduke, "that the Lady Margaret should now, when she is old, at the time when other women give-over child-bearing, bring forth two such monsters, being not the births of nine or ten months, but of many years. And whereas other natural mothers I ring forth children weak and not able to help themselves, she bringeth forth tall striplings, able soon after their coming into the world to bid battle to mighty kings."
- ? Lambert Simnel, taken prisoner at the battle of Newark, had been made a turnspit in the king's kitchen, and was afterwards promoted to the office of under-falconer.

Ford.

The new-revived York, Edward's second son, Murdered long since i' the Tower,—he lives again, And vows to be your king.

Stan.

The throne is filled, sir.

K. Hen. True, Stanley; and the lawful heir sits on it: A guard of angels and the holy prayers
Of loyal subjects are a sure defence
Against all force and council of intrusion.—
But now, my lords, put case, some of our nobles,
Our great ones, should give countenance and courage
To trim Duke Perkin; you will all confess
Our bounties have unthriftily been scattered
Amongst unthankful men.

Daw.

Unthankful beasts,

Dogs, villains, traitors!

K. Hen. Dawbeney, let the guilty Keep silence; I accuse none, though I know Foreign attempts against a state and kingdom Are seldom without some great friends at home.

Stan. Sir, if no other abler reasons else Of duty or allegiance could divert A headstrong resolution, yet the dangers So lately passed by men of blood and fortunes In Lambert Simnel's party must command More than a fear, a terror to conspiracy. The high-born Lincoln, son to De la Pole, The Earl of Kildare,—the Lord Geraldine,— Francis Lord Lovell, and the German baron Bold Martin Swart, with Broughton and the rest,— Most spectacles of ruin, some of mercy,-Are precedents sufficient to forewarn The present times, or any that live in them, What folly, nay, what madness, 'twere to lift A finger up in all defence but yours, Which can be but imposturous in a title.

K. Hen. Stanley, we know thou lov'st us, and thy hearf Is figured on thy tongue; nor think we less

Of any's here.—How closely we have hunted This cub, since he unlodged, from hole to hole, Your knowledge is our chronicle: first Ireland, The common stage of novelty, presented This gewgaw to oppose us; there the Geraldines And Butlers once again stood in support Of this colossic statue: Charles of France Thence called him into his protection, Dissembled him the lawful heir of England; Yet this was all but French dissimulation, Aiming at peace with us; which being granted On honourable terms on our part, suddenly This smoke of straw was packed from France again, T' infect some grosser air: and now we learn-Maugre the malice of the bastard Nevill, Sir Taylor, and a hundred English rebels— They're all retired to Flanders, to the dam That nursed this eager whelp, Margaret of Burgundy. But we will hunt him there too; we will hunt him, Hunt him to death, even in the beldam's closet, Though the archduke were his buckler! She has styled him Sur. "The fair white rose of England." Daw. Jolly gentleman! More fit to be a swabber to the Flemish

Enter URSWICK with a paper.

After a drunken surfeit.

Urs. Gracious sovereign,

Please you peruse this paper. [The King reads.

Dur. The king's countenance

Gathers a sprightly blood.

Daw. Good news; believe it.

K. Hen. Urswick, thine ear. Thou'st lodged him?

Urs. Strongly safe, sir.

¹ Christopher Urswick was at this time almoner to the king. He possessed several high offices in the Church.

K. Hen. Enough:—is Barley come too?

Urs. No, my lord.

K. Hen. No matter—phew! he's but a running weed, At pleasure to be plucked-up by the roots:
But more of this anon.—I have bethought me, My lords, for reasons which you shall partake, It is our pleasure to remove our court From Westminster to the Tower: we will lodge This very night there; give, Lord Chamberlain, A present order for 't.

Stan. [Aside] The Tower!—I shall, sir.

K. Hen. Come, my true, best, fast friends: these clouds will vanish,

The sun will shine at full; the heavens are clearing.

[Flourish. Exeunt.

SCENE II.—Edinburgh. An Apartment in the Earl of HUNTLEY'S House.

Enter Earl of HUNTLEY and Lord DALYELL.

Hunt. You trifle time, sir.

Dal.

O, my noble lord,

You construe my griefs to so hard a sense, That where the text is argument of pity, Matter of earnest love, your gloss corrupts it With too much ill-placed mirth.

Hunt. Much mirth! Lord Dalyell; 1
Not so, I vow. Observe me, sprightly gallant.
I know thou art a noble lad, a handsome,
Descended from an honourable ancestry,

Forward and active, dost resolve to wrestle And ruffle in the world by noble actions

For a brave mention to posterity:

¹ There were two persons of the name of Dalzell, William and Robert, grandsons of Sir John Dalzell.

I scorn not thy affection to my daughter,
Not I, by good Saint Andrew; but this bugbear,
This whoreson tale of honour,—honour, Dalyell!—
So hourly chats and tattles in mine ear
The piece of royalty that is stitched-up
In my Kate's blood,¹ that 'tis as dangerous
For thee, young lord, to perch so near an eaglet
As foolish for my gravity to admit it:
I have spoke all at once.

Dal.

Sir, with this truth
You mix such wormwood, that you leave no hope
For my disordered palate e'er to relish
A wholesome taste again: alas, I know, sir,
What an unequal distance lies between
Great Huntley's daughter's birth and Dalyell's fortunes;
She's the king's kinswoman, placed near the crown,
A princess of the blood, and I a subject.

Hunt. Right; but a noble subject; put in that too.

Dal. I could add more; and in the rightest line

Derive my pedigree from Adam Mure,

A Scottish knight; whose daughter was the mother

To him who first begot the race of Jameses,

That sway the sceptre to this very day.

But kindreds are not ours when once the date

Of many years have swallowed up the memory

Of their originals; so pasture-fields

Neighbouring too near the ocean are swooped-up,

And known no more; for stood I in my first

And native greatness, if my princely mistress

Vouchsafed me not her servant, 'twere as good

I were reduced to clownery, to nothing,

As to a throne of wonder.

Hunt. [Aside] Now, by Saint Andrew,
A spark of mettle! he has a brave fire in him:
I would he had my daughter, so I knew't not.
But 't must not be so, must not.—Well, young lord,

1 The Earl of Huntley married Annabella, daughter of James I.

In the full spring of youth and fresh in beauty. The king that sits upon the throne is young, And yet unmarried, forward in attempts On any least occasion to endanger His person: wherefore, Kate, as I am confident Thou dar'st not wrong thy birth and education By yielding to a common servile rage Of female wantonness, so I am confident Thou wilt proportion all thy thoughts to side 1 Thy equals, if not equal thy superiors. My Lord of Dalyell, young in years, is old In honours, but nor eminent in titles Nor in estate, that may support or add to The expectation of thy fortunes. Thy will and reason by a strength of judgment; For, in a word, I give thee freedom; take it. If equal fates have not ordained to pitch Thy hopes above my height, let not thy passion Lead thee to shrink mine honour in oblivion: Thou art thine own; I have done.

Dal. O, you're all oracle,

The living stock and root of truth and wisdom!

Kath. My worthiest lord and father, the indulgence
Of your sweet composition thus commands
The lowest of obedience; you have granted
A liberty so large, that I want skill
To choose without direction of example:
From which I daily learn, by how much more
You take off from the roughness of a father,
By so much more I am engaged to tender
The duty of a daughter. For respects
Of birth, degrees of title, and advancement,
I nor admire nor slight them; all my studies
Shall ever aim at this perfection only,
To live and die so, that you may not blush

In any course of mine to own me yours.

1 i.e. Keep pace with.

How hopeless my desires are to enjoy Your fair opinion, and much more your love,— Are only matter of despair, unless Your goodness give large warrant to my boldness, My feeble-winged ambition.

Hunt. [Aside]

This is scurvy.

Kath. My lord, I interrupt you not.

Hunt. [Aside]

Indeed!

Now, on my life, she'll court him.—Nay, nay, on, sir.

Dal. Oft have I tuned the lesson of my sorrows
To sweeten discord and enrich your pity;
But all in vain: here had my comforts sunk,
And never risen again to tell a story
Of the despairing lover, had not now,
Even now, the earl your father—

Hunt. [Aside]

He means me, sure.

Dal. After some fit disputes of your condition, Your highness and my lowness, given a license Which did not more embolden than encourage My faulting tongue.

Hunt. How, how? how's that? embolden! Encourage! I encourage ye! d'ye hear, sir?—
A subtle trick, a quaint one:—will you hear, man?
What did I say to you? come, come, to the point.

Kath. It shall not need, my lord.

Hunt.

Then hear me, Kate.—

Keep you on that hand of her, I on this.—
Thou stand'st between a father and a suitor,
Both striving for an interest in thy heart:
He courts thee for affection, I for duty;
He as a servant pleads, but by the privilege
Of nature though I might command, my care
Shall only counsel what it shall not force.
Thou canst but make one choice; the ties of marriage
Are tenures not at will, but during life.
Consider whose thou art, and who; a princess,
A princess of the royal blood of Scotland,

In the full spring of youth and fresh in beauty. The king that sits upon the throne is young, And yet unmarried, forward in attempts On any least occasion to endanger His person: wherefore, Kate, as I am confident Thou dar'st not wrong thy birth and education By yielding to a common servile rage Of female wantonness, so I am confident Thou wilt proportion all thy thoughts to side 1 Thy equals, if not equal thy superiors. My Lord of Dalyell, young in years, is old In honours, but nor eminent in titles Nor in estate, that may support or add to The expectation of thy fortunes. Thy will and reason by a strength of judgment; For, in a word, I give thee freedom; take it. If equal fates have not ordained to pitch Thy hopes above my height, let not thy passion Lead thee to shrink mine honour in oblivion: Thou art thine own; I have done.

Dal. O, you're all oracle,

The living stock and root of truth and wisdom!

Kath. My worthiest lord and father, the indulgence
Of your sweet composition thus commands
The lowest of obedience; you have granted
A liberty so large, that I want skill
To choose without direction of example:
From which I daily learn, by how much more
You take off from the roughness of a father,
By so much more I am engaged to tender
The duty of a daughter. For respects
Of birth, degrees of title, and advancement,
I nor admire nor slight them; all my studies
Shall ever aim at this perfection only,
To live and die so, that you may not blush
In any course of mine to own me yours.

1 i.e. Keep pace with.

Hunt. Kate, Kate, thou grow'st upon my heart like Creating every other hour a jubilee. peace,

Kath. To you, my lord of Dalyell, I address Some few remaining words: the general fame That speaks your merit, even in vulgar tongues Proclaims it clear; but in the best, a precedent.

Hunt. Good wench, good girl, i' faith!

For my part, trust me, Kath.

I value mine own worth at higher rate 'Cause you are pleased to prize it: if the stream Of your protested service—as you term it— Run in a constancy more than a compliment, It shall be my delight that worthy love Leads you to worthy actions, and these guide ye Richly to wed an honourable name: So every virtuous praise in after-ages Shall be your heir, and I in your brave mention Be chronicled the mother of that issue, That glorious issue.

O, that I were young again! Hunt. Sh'd make me court proud danger, and suck spirit From reputation.

To the present motion Kath. Here's all that I dare answer: when a ripeness Of more experience, and some use of time, Resolves to treat the freedom of my youth Upon exchange of troths, I shall desire No surer credit of a match with virtue Than such as lives in you: mean time my hopes are Preserved secure in having you a friend.

Dal. You are a blessèd lady, and instruct Ambition not to soar a farther flight Than in the perfumed air of your soft voice.— My noble Lord of Huntley, you have lent A full extent of bounty to this parley; And for it shall command your humblest servant.

Hunt. Enough: we are still friends, and will continue

A hearty love.—O, Kate, thou art mine own!—No more:—my Lord of Crawford.

Enter Earl of CRAWFORD.

Craw.

From the king

I come, my Lord of Huntley, who in council Requires your present aid.

Hunt.

Some weighty business?

Craw. A secretary from a Duke of York,
The second son to the late English Edward,
Concealed, I know not where, these fourteen years,
Craves audience from our master; and 'tis said
The duke himself is following to the court.

Hunt. Duke upon duke; 'tis well, 'tis well; here's bustling

For majesty.—My lord, I will along with ye.

Craw. My service, noble lady!

Kath.

Please ye walk, sir?

Dal. [Aside] Times have their changes; sorrow makes men wise;

The sun itself must set as well as rise; Then, why not I?—Fair madam, I wait on ye.

[Excunt.

SCENE III.—London. An Apartment in the Tower.

Enter the Bishop of Durham, Sir Robert Clifford, and Urswick. Lights.

Dur. You find, Sir Robert Clifford, how securely King Henry, our great master, doth commit His person to your loyalty; you taste His bounty and his mercy even in this, That at a time of night so late, a place So private as his closet, he is pleased T' admit you to his favour. Do not falter In your discovery; but as you covet

A liberal grace, and pardon for your follies, So labour to deserve 't by laying open All plots, all persons that contrive against it.

Urs. Remember not the witchcraft or the magic, The charms and incantations, which the sorceress Of Burgundy hath cast upon your reason: Sir Robert, be your own friend now, discharge Your conscience freely; all of such as love you Stand sureties for your honesty and truth. Take heed you do not dally with the king; He's wise as he is gentle.

Clif.

I am miserable,

If Henry be not merciful.

Urs.

The king comes.

Enter King HENRY.

K. Hen. Clifford!

Clif. [Kneels] Let my weak knees root on the earth, If I appear as leperous in my treacheries Before your royal eyes, as to mine own I seem a monster by my breach of truth.

K. Hen. Clifford, stand up; for instance of thy safety, I offer thee my hand.

Clif.

A sovereign balm

For my bruised soul, I kiss it with a greediness.

Kisses the King's hand, and rises.

Sir, you're a just master, but I—

K. Hen.

Tell me,

Is every circumstance thou hast set down With thine own hand within this paper true? Is it a sure intelligence of all The progress of our enemies' intents Without corruption?

Clif.

True, as I wish Heaven,

Or my infected honour white again.

K. Hen. We know all, Clifford, fully, since this meteor, This airy apparition first discradled

From Tournay into Portugal, and thence Advanced his fiery blaze for adoration
To the superstitious Irish; since the beard
Of this wild comet, conjured into France,
Sparkled in antic flames in Charles his court;
But shrunk again from thence, and, hid in darkness,
Stole into Flanders flourishing the rag
Of painted power on the shore of Kent,
Whence he was beaten back with shame and scorn,
Contempt, and slaughter of some naked outlaws:
But tell me what new course now shapes Duke Perkin?

Clif. For Ireland, mighty Henry; so instructed By Stephen Frion,² sometimes secretary In the French tongue unto your sacred excellence, But Perkin's tutor now.

K. Hen. A subtle villain,
That Frion, Frion,—You, my Lord of Durham,
Knew well the man.

Dur. French both in heart and actions.

K. Hen. Some Irish heads work in this mine of treason;

Speak 'em.

Clif. Not any of the best; your fortune Hath dulled their spleens. Never had counterfeit Such a confused rabble of lost bankrupts
For counsellors: first Heron, a broken mercer,
Then John a-Water, sometimes Mayor of Cork,
Skelton a tailor, and a scrivener
Called Astley: and whate'er these list to treat of,
Perkin must hearken to; but Frion, cunning
Above these dull capacities, still prompts him
To fly to Scotland to young James the Fourth.

² An active agent in the hands of the Duchess of Burgundy.

¹ Perkin did not land but sent some of his followers on shore at Sandwich; they were defeated by the Kentish men. The prisoners, mostly foreigners, were executed, "some of them at London and Wapping, and the rest at divers places upon the seacoast of Kent, Sussex, and Norfolk, for sea-marks or lighthouses to teach Perkin's people to avoid the coast."—Bacon.

And sue for aid to him: this is the latest Of all their resolutions.

K. Hen. Still more Frion!

Pestilent adder, he will hiss-out poison
As dangerous as infectious: we must match him.

Clifford, thou hast spoke home; we give thee life:
But, Clifford, there are people of our own

Remain behind untold; who are they, Clifford?

Name those, and we are friends, and will to rest;

'Tis thy last task.

Clif. O, sir, here I must break

A most unlawful oath to keep a just one.

K. Hen. Well, well, be brief, be brief.

Clif. The first in rank

Shall be John Ratcliffe, Lord Fitzwater, then Sir Simon Mountford and Sir Thomas Thwaites, With William Dawbeney, Chessoner, Astwood, Worseley the Dean of Paul's, two other friars, And Robert Ratcliffe.¹

K. Hen. Churchmen are turned devils.

These are the principal?

Clif. One more remains

Unnamed, whom I could willingly forget.

K. Hen. Ha, Clifford! one more?

Clif. Great sir, do not hear him;

For when Sir William Stanley, your lord chamberlain,

Shall come into the list, as he is chief,

I shall lose credit with ye; yet this lord

Last named is first against you.

K. Hen. Urswick, the light!—

View well my face, sirs; is there blood left in it?

Dur. You alter strangely, sir.

K. Hen. Alter, lord bishop!

Why, Clifford stabbed me, or I dreamed he stabbed me.—

Sirrah, it is a custom with the guilty
To think they set their own stains oft by laying
Aspersions on some nobler than themselves;
Lies wait on treasons, as I find it here.
Thy life again is forfeit; I recall
My word of mercy, for I know thou dar'st
Repeat the name no more.

Clif. I dare, and once more,

Upon my knowledge, name Sir William Stanley Both in his counsel and his purse the chief Assistant to the feigned Duke of York.

Dur. Most strange!

Urs. Most wicked!

K. Hen. Yet again, once more.

Clif. Sir William Stanley is your secret enemy,

And, if time fit, will openly profess it.

K. Hen. Sir William Stanley! Who? Sir William Stanley!

My chamberlain, my counsellor, the love,
The pleasure of my court, my bosom-friend,
The charge and the controlment of my person,
The keys and secrets of my treasury,
The all of all I am! I am unhappy.

Misery of confidence,—let me turn traitor To mine own person, yield my sceptre up

To Edward's sister and her bastard duke!

Dur. You lose your constant temper.

K. Hen. Sir William Stanley!

O, do not blame me; he, 'twas only he, Who, having rescued me in Bosworth-field

From Richard's bloody sword, snatched from his head

The kingly crown, and placed it first on mine.

He never failed me: what have I deserved

To lose this good man's heart, or he his own?

Urs. The night doth waste; this passion ill becomes ye;

Provide against your danger.

K. Hen.

Let it be so.

Urswick, command straight Stanley to his chamber;—
'Tis well we are i' the Tower; set a guard on him.—
Clifford, to bed; you must lodge here to-night;
We'll talk with you to-morrow,—My sad soul
Divines strange troubles.

Daw. [Within] Ho! the king, the king! I must have entrance.

K. Hen. Dawbeney's voice; admit him. What new combustions huddle next, to keep Our eyes from rest?

Enter Lord DAWBENEY.

The news?

Daw. Ten thousand Cornish, Grudging to pay your subsidies, have gathered A head; led by a blacksmith and a lawyer, They make for London, and to them is joined Lord Audley: as they march, their number daily Increases; they are—

K. Hen. Rascals!—talk no more;
Such are not worthy of my thoughts to-night.
To bed; and if I cannot sleep, I'll wake.—
When counsels fail, and there's in man no trust,
Even then an arm from Heaven fights for the just.

[Excunt.

ACT THE SECOND.

SCENE I .- Edinburgh. The Presence-chamber in the Palace.

Enter above the Countess of CRAWFORD, Lady KATHE-RINE, JANE DOUGLAS, and other Ladies.

a solemn preparation

For entertainment of this English

prince;

The king intends gross more than

The king intends grace more than ordinary:

'Twere pity now if he should prove a counterfeit.

Kath. Bless the young man, our nation would be laughed at

For honest souls through Christendom! My father Hath a weak stomach to the business, madam, But that the king must not be crossed.

Countess of C. He brings

A goodly troop, they say, of gallants with him;
But very modest people, for they strive not
To fame their names too much; their godfathers
May be beholding to them, but their fathers
Scarce owe them thanks: they are disguised princes,
Brought up, it seems, to honest trades; no matter,
They will break forth in season.

Jane. Or break out;

For most of 'em are broken by report.— [A flourish. The king!

Kath. Let us observe 'em and be silent,

Enter King James, Earls of Huntley and Crawford, Lord Dalyell, and other Noblemen.

K. Ja. The right of kings, my lords, extends not only To the safe conservation of their own, But also to the aid of such allies As change of time and state hath oftentimes Hurled down from careful crowns to undergo An exercise of sufferance in both fortunes: So English Richard, surnamed Cœur-de-Lion, So Robert Bruce, our royal ancestor, Forced by the trial of the wrongs they felt, Both sought and found supplies from foreign kings, To repossess their own. Then grudge not, lords, A much distressed prince: King Charles of France And Maximilian of Bohemia both Have ratified his credit by their letters; Shall we, then, be distrustful? No; compassion Is one rich jewel that shines in our crown, And we will have it shine there.

Hunt. D

Do your will, sir.

K. Ja. The young duke is at hand: Dalyell, from us
First greet him, and conduct him on; then Crawford
Shall meet him next; and Huntley, last of all,
Present him to our arms. [Exit Lord Dalyell.]—
Sound sprightly music,
Whilst majesty encounters majesty. [Hautboys.

Re-enter Lord Dalyell with Perkin Warbeck, followed at a distance by Frion, Heron, Skelton, Astley, and John A-Water. The Earl of Crawford advances, and salutes Perkin at the door, and afterwards the Earl of Huntley, who presents him to the King: they embrace; the Noblemen slightly salute his Followers.

War. Most high, most mighty king! that now there stands

¹ In Bacon this speech begins thus: "High and mighty king! your grace, and these your nobles here present, may be pleased Ford.

Before your eyes, in presence of your peers, A subject of the rarest kind of pity That hath in any age touched noble hearts, The vulgar story of a prince's ruin Hath made it too apparent: Europe knows, And all the western world, what persecution Hath raged in malice against us, sole heir To the great throne of old Plantagenets. How from our nursery we have been hurried Unto the sanctuary, from the sanctuary Forced to the prison, from the prison haled By cruel hands to the tormentor's fury, Is registered already in the volume Of all men's tongues; whose true relation draws Compassion, melted into weeping eyes And bleeding souls: but our misfortunes since Have ranged a larger progress through strange lands, Protected in our innocence by Heaven. Edward the Fifth, our brother, in his tragedy Quenched their hot thirst of blood, whose hire to murder Paid them their wages of despair and horror; The softness of my childhood smiled upon The roughness of their task, and robbed them farther Of hearts to dare, or hands to execute. Great king, they spared my life, the butchers spared it; Returned the tyrant, my unnatural uncle, A truth of my dispatch: I was conveyed With secrecy and speed to Tournay; fostered By obscure means, taught to unlearn myself: But as I grew in years, I grew in sense Of fear and of disdain; fear of the tyrant Whose power swayed the throne then: when disdain Of living so unknown, in such a servile benignly to bow your ears to hear the tragedy of a young man.... tossed from misery to misery.... You see here before you the spectacle of a Plantagenet, who hath been carried from the nursery to the sanctuary, from the sanctuary to the direful prison, from the prison to the hand of the cruel tormentor," &c.

And abject lowness, prompted me to thoughts
Of recollecting who I was, I shook off
My bondage, and made haste to let my aunt
Of Burgundy acknowledge me her kinsman,
Heir to the crown of England, snatched by Henry
From Richard's head; a thing scarce known i' the world.

K. Ja. My lord, it stands not with your counsel now To fly upon invectives: if you can Make this apparent what you have discoursed In every circumstance, we will not study An answer, but are ready in your cause.

War. You are a wise and just king, by the powers. Above reserved, beyond all other aids, To plant me in mine own inheritance, To marry these two kingdoms in a love Never to be divorced while time is time. As for the manner, first of my escape, Of my conveyance next, of my life since, The means and persons who were instruments, Great sir, 'tis fit I over-pass in silence; Reserving the relation to the secrecy Of your own princely ear, since it concerns Some great ones living yet, and others dead, Whose issue might be questioned. For your bounty, Royal magnificence to him that seeks it, We vow hereafter to demean ourself As if we were your own and natural brother, Omitting no occasion in our person T' express a gratitude beyond example.

K. Ja. He must be more than subject who can utter The language of a king, and such is thine. Take this for answer: be what'er thou art, Thou never shalt repent that thou hast put Thy cause and person into my protection. Cousin of York, thus once more we embrace thee; Welcome to James of Scotland! for thy safety, Know, such as love thee not shall never wrong thee.

ang mengangan diangkan diangk Panggangan diangkan Come, we will taste a while our court-delights,
Dream hence affliction past, and then proceed
To high attempts of honour. On, lead on!—
Both thou and thine are ours, and we will guard ye:—
Lead on!

[Exeunt all but the Ladies above.]

Countess of C. I have not seen a gentleman

Of a more brave aspect or goodlier carriage;

His fortunes move not him.—Madam, you're passionate.¹

Kath. Beshrew me, but his words have touched me home,

As if his cause concerned me: I should pity him, If he should prove another than he seems.

Re-enter Earl of CRAWFORD.

Craw. Ladies, the king commands your presence in-For entertainment of the duke. [stantly

Kath. The duke

Must, then, be entertained, the king obeyed; It is our duty.

Countess of C. We will all wait on him.

[Exeunt.

SCENE II.-London. The Tower.

A flourish. Enter King Henry, the Earls of Oxford, and Surrey, and the Bishop of Durham.

K. Hen. Have ye condemned my chamberlain?

Dur. His treasons.

Condemned him, sir; which were as clear and manifest As foul and dangerous: besides, the guilt Of his conspiracy pressed him so nearly, That it drew from him free confession Without an importunity.

K. Hen. O, lord bishop,
This argued shame and sorrow for his folly,

¹ Distressed,

And must not stand in evidence against
Our mercy and the softness of our nature:
The rigour and extremity of law
Is sometimes too-too bitter; but we carry
A chancery of pity in our bosom.
I hope we may reprieve him from the sentence
Of death; I hope we may.

And so persuade your subjects that the title Of York is better, nay, more just and lawful, Than yours of Lancaster! so Stanley holds: Which if it be not treason in the highest, Then we are traitors all, perjured and false, Who have took oath to Henry and the justice Of Henry's title; Oxford, Surrey, Dawbeney, With all your other peers of state and church, Forsworn, and Stanley true alone to Heaven And England's lawful heir!

Oxf. By Vere's old honours,

I'll cut his throat dares speak it.

Sur.
T' engage a soul in.

'Tis a quarrel

K. Hen. What a coil is here
To keep my gratitude sincere and perfect!
Stanley was once my friend, and came in time
To save my life; yet, to say truth, my lords,
The man stayed long enough t' endanger it:—¹
But I could see no more into his heart
Than what his outward actions did present;
And for 'em have rewarded him so fully,
As that there wanted nothing in our gift
To gratify his merit, as I thought,
Unless I should divide my crown with him,

[&]quot;As a little leaven of new distaste doth commonly sour the whole lump of former merits, the king's wit began now to suggest unto his passion that Stanley at Bosworth-field, though he came time enough to save his life, yet he stayed long enough to endanger it."—Bacon.

And give him half; though now I well perceive 'Twould scarce have served his turn without the whole. But I am charitable, lords; let justice Proceed in execution, whiles I mourn The loss of one whom I esteemed a friend.

Dur. Sir, he is coming this way.

K. Hen. If he speak to me,

I could deny him nothing; to prevent it,
I must withdraw. Pray, lords, commend my favours
To his last peace, which I with him will pray for:
That done, it doth concern us to consult
Of other following troubles.

[Exit.

Oxf. I am glad

He's gone: upon my life, he would have pardoned The traitor, had he seen him.

Sur. 'Tis a king

Composed of gentleness.

Dur. Rare and unheard of:

But every man is nearest to himself; And that the king observes; 'tis fit he should.

Enter Sir William Stanley, Executioner, Confessor, Urswick, and Lord Dawbeney.

Stan. May I not speak with Clifford ere I shake This piece of frailty off?

Daw. You shall; he's sent for.

Stan. I must not see the king?

Dur. From him, Sir William,

These lords and I am sent; he bade us say That he commends his mercy to your thoughts; Wishing the laws of England could remit The forfeit of your life as willingly As he would in the sweetness of his nature Forget your trespass: but howe'er your body Fall into dust, he vows, the king himself Doth vow, to keep a requiem for your soul, As for a friend close treasured in his bosom.

Oxf. Without remembrance of your errors past, I come to take my leave, and wish you Heaven.

Sur. And I; good angels guard ye! Stan.

O, the king,

Next to my soul, shall be the nearest subject Of my last prayers. My grave Lord of Durham, My Lords of Oxford, Surrey, Dawbeney, all, Accept from a poor dying man a farewell. I was as you are once,—great, and stood hopeful Of many flourishing years; but fate and time Have wheeled about, to turn me into nothing.

Daw. Sir Robert Clifford comes,—the man, Sir William, You so desire to speak with.

Dur.

Mark their meeting.

Enter Sir Robert Clifford.

Clif. Sir William Stanley, I am glad your conscience Before your end hath emptied every burthen Which charged it, as that you can clearly witness How far I have proceeded in a duty That both concerned my truth and the state's safety.

Stan. Mercy, how dear is life to such as hug it! Come hither; by this token think on me!

[Makes a cross on CLIFFORD's face with his finger. Clif. This token! What! I am abused?

Stan. You are not.

I wet upon your cheeks a holy sign,—
The cross, the Christian's badge, the traitor's infamy:
Wear, Clifford, to thy grave this painted emblem;
Water shall never wash it off; all eyes
That gaze upon thy face shall read there written
A state-informer's character; more ugly
Stamped on a noble name than on a base.
The heavens forgive thee!—Pray, my lords, no change
Of words; this man and I have used too many.

Clif. Shall I be disgraced Without reply?

Dur. Give losers leave to talk; His loss is irrecoverable.

Stan. Once more,

To all a long farewell! The best of greatness
Preserve the king! My next suit is, my lords,
To be remembered to my noble brother,
Derby, my much-grieved brother: O, persuade him
That I shall stand no blemish to his house
In chronicles writ in another age.
My heart doth bleed for him and for his sighs:
Tell him, he must not think the style of Derby,
Nor being husband to King Henry's mother,
The league with peers, the smiles of fortune, can
Secure his peace above the state of man.
I take my leave, to travel to my dust:
Subjects deserve their deaths whose kings are just.—
Come, confessor.—On with thy axe, friend, on!

[He is led off to execution.

Clif. Was I called hither by a traitor's breath To be upbraided? Lords, the king shall know it.

Re-enter King HENRY with a white staff.

K. Hen. The king doth know it, sir; the king hath heard

What he or you could say. We have given credit To every point of Clifford's information, The only evidence 'gainst Stanley's head: He dies for't; are you pleased?

Clif. I pleased, my lord!

K. Hen. No echoes: for your service, we dismiss Your more attendance on the court, take ease, And live at home; but, as you love your life, Stir not from London without leave from us.

We'll think on your reward: away!

Clif. I go, sir. [Exit.

K. Hen. Die all our griefs with Stanley! Take this staff Of office, Dawbeney; henceforth be our chamberlain.

Daw. I am your humble servant.

K. Hen. We are followed

By enemies at home, that will not cease To seek their own confusion: 'tis most true The Cornish under Audley are marched on As far as Winchester;—but let them come, Our forces are in readiness; we'll catch 'em In their own toils.

Daw. Your army, being mustered, Consists in all, of horse and foot, at least In number six-and-twenty thousand; men Daring and able, resolute to fight, And loyal in their truths.

K. Hen. We know it, Dawbeney:

For them we order thus; Oxford in chief, Assisted by bold Essex and the Earl Of Suffolk, shall lead on the first battalia; Be that your charge.

Oxf. I humbly thank your majesty.

K. Hen. The next division we assign to Dawbeney: These must be men of action, for on those The fortune of our fortunes must rely. The last and main ourself commands in person; As ready to restore the fight at all times As to consummate an assured victory.

Daw. The king is still oraculous.

K. Hen. But, Surrey,

We have employment of more toil for thee:
For our intelligence comes swiftly to us,
That James of Scotland late hath entertained
Perkin the counterfeit with more than common
Grace and respect, nay, courts him with rare favours.
The Scot is young and forward; we must look for
A sudden storm to England from the north;
Which to withstand, Durham shall post to Norham,
To fortify the castle and secure
The frontiers against an invasion there.

Surrey shall follow soon, with such an army
As may relieve the bishop, and encounter
On all occasions the death-daring Scots.
You know your charges all; 'tis now a time
To execute, not talk: Heaven is our guard still.
War must breed peace; such is the fate of kings.

[Exeunt.

SCENE III.—Edinburgh. An Apartment in the Palace.

Enter Earl of CRAWFORD and Lord DALYELL.

Craw. 'Tis more than strange; my reason cannot answer

Such argument of fine imposture, couched
In witchcraft of persuasion, that it fashions
Impossibilities, as if appearance
Could cozen truth itself: this dukeling mushroom
Hath doubtless charmed the king.

Dal. He courts the ladies,

As if his strength of language chained attention By power of prerogative.

Craw. It madded

My very soul to hear our master's motion:
What surety both of amity and honour
Must of necessity ensue upon
A match betwixt some noble of our nation
And this brave prince, forsooth!

Dal. 'Twill prove too fatal;

Wise Huntley fears the threatening. Bless the lady From such a ruin!

Craw. How the counsel privy
Of this young Phaëthon do screw their faces
Into a gravity their trades, good people,
Were never guilty of! the meanest of 'em
Dreams of at least an office in the state.

Dal. Sure, not the hangman's; 'tis bespoke already For service to their rogueships—Silence!

Enter King James and Earl of Huntley.

K. Ja. Do not

Argue against our will; we have descended Somewhat—as we may term it—too familiarly From justice of our birthright, to examine The force of your allegiance,—sir, we have,—But find it short of duty.

Hunt. Break my heart,
Do, do, king! Have my services, my loyalty,—
Heaven knows untainted ever,—drawn upon me
Contempt now in mine age, when I but wanted
A minute of a peace not to be troubled,
My last, my long one? Let me be a dotard,
A bedlam, a poor sot, or what you please
To have me, so you will not stain your blood,
Your own blood, royal sir, though mixed with mine,
By marriage of this girl¹ to a straggler:
Take, take my head, sir; whilst my tongue can wag,
It cannot name him other.

Kings are counterfeits
In your repute, grave oracle, not presently
Set on their thrones with sceptres in their fists.
But use your own detraction; 'tis our pleasure
To give our cousin York for wife our kinswoman,
The Lady Katherine: instinct of sovereignty
Designs the honour, though her peevish father
Usurps our resolution.

Hunt. O, 'tis well,
Exceeding well! I never was ambitious
Of using congees to my daughter-queen—

1 "To put it out of doubt that he took him (Perkin) to be a great prince, and not a representation only, he (King James) gave consent that this duke should take to wife the Lady Katherine Gordon, daughter to the Earl of Huntley, being a near kinswoman to the king himself, and a young virgin of excellent beauty and virtue."—Bacon.

A queen! perhaps a quean!—Forgive me, Dalyell, Thou honourable gentleman;—none here Dare speak one work of comfort?

Dal.

Cruel misery!

Craw. The lady, gracious prince, may-be hath settled Affection on some former choice.

Dal.

Enforcement

Would prove but tyranny.

Hunt.

I thank ye heartily.

Let any yeoman of our nation challenge An interest in the girl, then the king May add a jointure of ascent in titles, Worthy a free consent; now he pulls down What old desert hath builded.

K. Ja.

Cease persuasions.

I violate no pawns of faith, intrude not
On private loves: that I have played the orator
For kingly York to virtuous Kate, her grant
Can justify, referring her contents
To our provision. The Welsh Harry henceforth
Shall therefore know, and tremble to acknowledge,
That not the painted idol of his policy
Shall fright the lawful owner from a kingdom.
We are resolved.

Hunt. Some of thy subjects' hearts, King James, will bleed for this.

K. Ja. Then shall their bloods Be nobly spent. No more disputes; he is not Our friend who contradicts us.

Hunt. Farewell, daughter! My care by one is lessened, thank the king for't: I and my griefs will dance now.

Enter Perkin Warbeck, leading, and complimenting with,
Lady Katherine; Countess of Crawford, Jane
Douglas, Frion, John A-Water, Astley, Heron, and Skelton.

Look, lords, look;

Here's hand in hand already!

K. Ja. Peace, old frenzy!—

How like a king he looks! Lords, but observe The confidence of his aspect; dross cannot Cleave to so pure a metal—royal youth!

Plantagenet undoubted!

Hunt. [Aside]

Ho, brave!—Youth,

But no Plantagenet, by'r lady, yet,

By red rose or by white.

War.

An union this way

Settles possession in a monarchy

Established rightly, as is my inheritance:

Acknowledge me but sovereign of this kingdom,

Your heart, fair princess, and the hand of providence Shall crown you queen of me and my best fortunes.

Kath. Where my obedience is, my lord, a duty Love owes true service.

War.

Shall I?—

K. Ja.

Cousin, yes,

Enjoy her; from my hand accept your bride;

[He joins their hands.

And may they live at enmity with comfort Who grieve at such an equal pledge of troths!—You are the prince's wife now.

Kath.

By your gift, sir.

War. Thus I take seizure of mine own.

Kath.

I miss yet

A father's blessing. Let me find it;—humbly Upon my knees I seek it.

Hunt.

I am Huntley,

Old Alexander Gordon, a plain subject,

Nor more nor less; and, lady, if you wish for

A blessing, you must bend your knees to Heaven;

For Heaven did give me you. Alas, alas,

What would you have me say? May all the happiness

My prayers ever sued to fall upon you

Preserve you in your virtues!—Prithee, Dalyell, Come with me; for I feel thy griefs as full As mine; let's steal away, and cry together.

Dal. My hopes are in their ruins.

[Exeunt Earl of Huntley and Lord Dalyell.

K. Ja. Good, kind Huntley

Is overjoyed: a fit solemnity
Shall perfect these delights.—Crawford, attend
Our order for the preparation.

[Exeunt all but Frion, Heron, Skelton, John A-Water, and Astley.

Fri. Now, worthy gentlemen, have I not followed My undertakings with success? Here's entrance Into a certainty above a hope.

Her. Hopes are but hopes; I was ever confident, when I traded but in remnants, that my stars had reserved me to the title of a viscount at least: honour is honour, though cut out of any stuffs.¹

Skel. My brother Heron hath right wisely delivered his opinion; for he that threads his needle with the sharp eyes of industry shall in time go through-stitch with the new suit of preferment.

Ast. Spoken to the purpose, my fine-witted brother Skelton; for as no indenture but has its counterpane, no noverint but his condition or defeasance; so no right but may have claim, no claim but may have possession, any act of parliament to the contrary notwithstanding.

Fri. You are all read in mysteries of state, And quick of apprehension, deep in judgment, Active in resolution; and 'tis pity Such counsel should lie buried in obscurity. But why, in such a time and cause of triumph, Stands the judicious Mayor of Cork so silent? Believe it, sir, as English Richard prospers, You must not miss employment of high nature.

¹ Heron, or Herne, as Bacon calls him, was a mercer; Skelton was a tailor; and Astley a scrivener: they were all men of broken fortunes.—Gifford.

J. a-Wat. If men may be credited in their mortality, which I dare not peremptorily aver but they may or not be, presumptions by this marriage are then, in sooth, of fruitful expectation. Or else I must not justify other men's belief, more than other should rely on mine.

Fri. Pith of experience! those that have borne office Weigh every word before it can drop from them. But, noble counsellors, since now the present Requires in point of honour,—pray, mistake not,—Some service to our lord, 'tis fit the Scots Should not engross all glory to themselves At this so grand and eminent solemnity.

Skel. The Scots! the motion is defied: I had rather, for my part, without trial of my country, suffer persecution under the pressing-iron of reproach; or let my skin be punched full of eyelet-holes with the bodkin of derision.

Ast. I will sooner lose both my ears on the pillory of forgery.

Her. Let me first live a bankrupt, and die in the lousy Hole¹ of hunger, without compounding for sixpence in the pound.

J. a-Wat. If men fail not in their expectations, there may be spirits also that digest no rude affronts, Master Secretary Frion, or I am cozened; which is possible, I grant.

Fri. Resolved like men of knowledge: at this feast, then,

In honour of the bride, the Scots, I know,
Will in some show, some masque, or some device,
Prefer their duties: now it were uncomely
That we be found less forward for our prince
Than they are for their lady; and by how much
We outshine them in persons of account,
By so much more will our endeavours meet with
A livelier applause. Great emperors

¹ That part of the Counter prison in which the poorer prisoners were confined.

Have for their recreations undertook
Such kind of pastimes: as for the conceit,
Refer it to my study; the performance
You all shall share a thanks in: 'twill be grateful.

Her. The motion is allowed: I have stole to a dancing school when I was a prentice.

Ast. There have been Irish hubbubs, when I have made one too.

Skel. For fashioning of shapes and cutting a cross-caper, turn me off to my trade again.

J. a-Wat. Surely there is, if I be not deceived, a kind of gravity in merriment; as there is, or perhaps ought to be, respect of persons in the quality of carriage, which is as it is construed, either so or so,

Fri. Still you come home to me; upon occasion
I find you relish courtship with discretion;
And such are fit for statesmen of your merits.
Pray ye wait the prince, and in his ear acquaint him
With this design; I'll follow and direct ye.

[Excunt all but FRION.

O, the toil

Of humouring this abject scum of mankind, Muddy-brained peasants! princes feel a misery Beyond impartial sufferance, whose extremes Must yield to such abettors:—yet¹ our tide Runs smoothly, without adverse winds: run on!

Flow to a full sea! time alone debates Quarrels forewritten in the book of fates.

[Exit.

1 i.e As yet.

ACT THE THIRD.

SCENE I .- Westminster. The Palace.

Enter King Henry, with his gorget on, his sword, plume of feathers, and truncheon, followed by Urswick.

HEN. How runs the time of day?

Urs. Past ten, my lord.

K. Hen. A bloody hour will it prove to some,

Whose disobedience, like the sons o' the earth,

Throws a defiance 'gainst the face of heaven. Oxford, with Essex and stout De la Pole, Have quieted the Londoners, I hope, And set them safe from fear.

Urs. They are all silent.

K. Hen. From their own battlements they may behold Saint George's-fields o'erspread with armèd men; Amongst whom our own royal standard threatens Confusion to opposers: we must learn To practise war again in time of peace, Or lay our crown before our subjects' feet; Ha, Urswick, must we not?

Urs. The powers who seated King Henry on his lawful throne will ever Rise up in his defence.

K. Hen. Rage shall not fright
The bosom of our confidence: in Kent
Ford.

Our Cornish rebels, cozened of their hopes, Met brave resistance by that country's earl, George Abergeny, Cobham, Poynings, Guilford, And other loyal hearts; now, if Blackheath Must be reserved the fatal tomb to swallow Such stiff-necked abjects as with weary marches Have travelled from their homes, their wives, and children, To pay, instead of subsidies, their lives, We may continue sovereign. Yet, Urswick, We'll not abate one penny what in parliament Hath freely been contributed; we must not; Money gives soul to action. Our competitor, The Flemish counterfeit, with James of Scotland, Will prove what courage need and want can nourish, Without the food of fit supplies:—but, Urswick, I have a charm in secret that shall loose The witchcraft wherewith young King James is bound, And free it at my pleasure without bloodshed.

Urs. Your majesty's a wise king, sent from heaven, Protector of the just.

K. Hen. Let dinner cheerfully

Be served in; this day of the week is ours,

Our day of providence; for Saturday

Yet never failed in all my undertakings

To yield me rest at night. [A flourish.]—What means this warning?

Good fate, speak peace to Henry!

Enter Lord DAWBENEY, Earl of Oxford, and Attendants.

Daw.

Live the king,

Triumphant in the ruin of his enemies!

Oxf. The head of strong rebellion is cut off,
The body hewed in pieces.

K. Hen. Dawbeney, Oxford,
Minions to noblest fortunes, how yet stands
The comfort of your wishes?

Daw. Briefly thus:

The Cornish under Audley, disappointed Of flattered expectation, from the Kentish— Your majesty's right-trusty liegemen—flew, Feathered by rage and heartened by presumption, To take the field even at your palace-gates; And face you in your chamber-royal: arrogance Improved their ignorance; for they, supposing, Misled by rumour, that the day of battle Should fall on Monday, rather braved your forces Than doubted any onset; yet this morning, When in the dawning I, by your direction, Strove to get Deptford-strand bridge, there I found Such a resistance as might show what strength Could make: here arrows hailed in showers upon us A full yard long at least; but we prevailed. My Lord of Oxford, with his fellow peers Environing the hill, fell fiercely on them On the one side, I on the other, till, great sir,— Pardon the oversight,—eager of doing Some memorable act, I was engaged Almost a prisoner, but was freed as soon As sensible of danger: now the fight Began in heat, which quenched in the blood of Two thousand rebels, and as many more Reserved to try your mercy, have returned A victory with safety.

K. Hen. Have we lost An equal number with them?

Oxf. In the total Scarcely tour hundred. Audley, Flammock, Joseph, The ringleaders of this commotion, Railed in ropes, fit ornaments for traitors, Wait your determinations.

As the R is very indistinct, I should have been inclined, perhaps, to make "Haled" out of it, had I not found the expression in Bacon; "they were brought to London all railed in ropes, like a team of horses in a cart."—Gifford.

K. Hen.

We must pay

Our thanks where they are only due: O, lords,
Here is no victory, nor shall our people
Conceive that we can triumph in their falls.
Alas, poor souls! let such as are escaped
Steal to the country back without pursuit:
There's not a drop of blood spilt but hath drawn
As much of mine: their swords could have wrought

As much of mine; their swords could have wrought wonders

On their king's part, who faintly were unsheathed Against their prince, but wounded their own breasts. Lords, we are debtors to your care; our payment Shall be both sure and fitting your deserts.

Daw. Sir, will you please to see those rebels, heads Of this wild monster-multitude?

K. Hen.

Dear friend,

My faithful Dawbeney, no; on them our justice Must frown in terror; I will not vouchsafe An eye of pity to them. Let false Audley Be drawn upon an hurdle from the Newgate To Tower-hill in his own coat of arms Painted on paper, with the arms reversed, Defaced and torn; there let him lose his head.¹ The lawyer and the blacksmith shall be hanged, Quartered; their quarters into Cornwall sent Examples to the rest, whom we are pleased To pardon and dismiss from further quest.—My Lord of Oxford, see it done.

Oxf.

I shall, sir.

K. Hen. Urswick!

Urs.

My lord?

K. Hen. To Dinham, our high-treasurer, Say, we command commissions be new granted

For the collection of our subsidies

1 "The Lord Audley was led from Newgate to Tower-hill, in a paper coat painted with his own arms, the arms reversed, the coat torn, and at Tower-hill beheaded."—Bacon.

Through all the west, and that speedily.— Lords, we acknowledge our engagements due For your most constant services.

Daw. Your soldiers

Have manfully and faithfully acquitted Their several duties.

K. Hen. For it we will throw
A largess free amongst them, which shall hearten
And cherish-up their loyalties. More yet
Remains of like employment; not a man
Can be dismissed, till enemies abroad,
More dangerous than these at home, have felt
The puissance of our arms. O, happy kings
Whose thrones are raised in their subjects' hearts!

[Exeunt.

SCENE II.—Edinburgh. The Palace.

Enter Earl of Huntley and Lord Dalyell.

Hunt. Now, sir, a modest word with you, sad gentleman:

Is not this fine, I trow, to see the gambols,
To hear the jigs, observe the frisks, be enchanted
With the rare discord of bells, pipes, and tabors,
Hotch-potch of Scotch and Irish twingle-twangles,
Like to so many quiristers of Bedlam
Trolling a catch! The feasts, the manly stomachs,
The healths in usquebaugh and bonny-clabber,
The ale in dishes never fetched from China,
The hundred-thousand knacks not to be spoken of,—
And all this for King Oberon and Queen Mab,—
Should put a soul into ye. Look ye, good man,
How youthful I am grown: but, by your leave,
This new queen-bride must henceforth be no more

A common name for curds-and-whey, or sour buttermilk; a favourite drink both with the Scotch and Irish.

My daughter; no, by'r lady, 'tis unfit: And yet you see how I do bear this change, Methinks courageously: then shake off care In such a time of jollity.

Dal. Alas, sir,
How can you cast a mist upon your griefs?
Which, howsoe'er you shadow, but present
To any judging eye the perfect substance,

Of which mine are but counterfeits.

Hunt. Foh, Dalyell!

Thou interrupt'st the part I bear in music
To this rare bridal-feast; let us be merry,
Whilst flattering calms secure us against storms:
Tempests, when they begin to roar, put out
The light of peace, and cloud the sun's bright eye
In darkness of despair; yet we are safe.

Dal. I wish you could as easily forget The justice of your sorrows as my hopes Can yield to destiny.

Thou dost not know the flexible condition

Of my apt nature: I can laugh, laugh heartily,

When the gout cramps my joints; let but the stone

Stop in my bladder, I am straight a-singing;

The quartan-fever, shrinking every limb,

Sets me a-capering straight; do but betray me,

And bind me a friend ever: what! I trust

The losing of a daughter, though I doted

On every hair that grew to trim her head,

Admits not any pain like one of these.

Come, thou'rt deceived in me: give me a blow,

A sound blow on the face, I'll thank thee for't;

I love my wrongs: still thou'rt deceived in me.

Dal. Deceived! O, noble Huntley, my few years Have learnt experience of too ripe an age To forfeit fit credulity: forgive My rudeness, I am bold.

Hunt.

Forgive me first

A madness of ambition; by example
Teach me humility, for patience scorns
Lectures, which schoolmen use to read to boys
Uncapable of injuries: though old,
I could grow tough in fury, and disclaim
Allegiance to my king; could fall at odds
With all my fellow-peers that durst not stand
Defendants 'gainst the rape done on mine honour:
But kings are earthly gods, there is no meddling
With their anointed bodies; for their actions
They only are accountable to heaven.
Yet in the puzzle of my troubled brain
One antidote's reserved against the poison
Of my distractions; 'tis in thee t' apply it.

Dal. Name it; O, name it quickly, sir!

Hunt. A pardon

For my most foolish slighting thy deserts; I have culled out this time to beg it: prithee, Be gentle; had I been so, thou hadst owned A happy bride, but now a castaway, And never child of mine more.

Dal.

Say not so, sir;

It is not fault in her.

Hunt.

The world would prate

How she was handsome; young I know she was,

Tender, and sweet in her obedience;

But lost now: what a bankrupt am I made

Of a full stock of blessings! Must I hope

A mercy from thy heart?

Dal.

A love, a service,

A friendship to posterity.

Hunt.

Good angels

Reward thy charity! I have no more

But prayers left me now.

Dal.

I'll lend you mirth, sir,

If you will be in consort.

Hunt.

Thank you truly:

I must; yes, yes, I must;—here's yet some ease,

A partner in afflictiom: look not angry.

Dal. Good, noble sir!

[Flourish.

Hunt.

O, hark! we may be quiet,

The King and all the others come; a meeting Of gaudy sights: this day's the last of revels; To-morrow sounds of war; then new exchange; Fiddles must turn to swords.—Unhappy marriage!

A flourish. Enter King James, Perkin Warbeck leading Lady Katherine, Earl of Crawford and his Countess; Jane Douglas, and other Ladiés. Earl of Huntley and Lord Dalyell fall in among them.

K. Ja. Cousin of York, you and your princely bride Have liberally enjoyed such soft delights As a new-married couple could forethink; Nor has our bounty shortened expectation: But after all those pleasures of repose, Of amorous safety, we must rouse the ease Of dalliance with achievements of more glory Than sloth and sleep can furnish: yet, for farewell, Gladly we entertain a truce with time, To grace the joint endeavours of our servants.

War. My royal cousin, in your princely favour The extent of bounty hath been so unlimited, As only an acknowledgment in words Would breed suspicion in our state and quality. When we shall, in the fulness of our fate,— Whose minister, necessity, will perfect,— Sit on our own throne; then our arms, laid open To gratitude, in sacred memory Of these large benefits, shall twine them close, Even to our thoughts and heart, without distinction. Then James and Richard, being in effect One person, shall unite and rule one people, Divisible in titles only.

K. Ja.

Seat ye.—

Are the presenters ready?

Craw.

All are entering.

Hunt. Dainty sport toward, Dalyell! sit; come, sit, Sit and be quiet; here are kingly bug's-words!1

Enter at one door Four Scotch Antics, accordingly habited; at another, WARBECK'S followers, disguised as Four Wild Irish in trowses,2 long-haired, and accordingly habited. Music. A dance by the Masquers.

K. Ja. To all a general thanks!

War.

In the next room

Take your own shapes again; you shall receive

Particular acknowledgment.

Exeunt the Masquers.

K. Ja.

Enough

Of merriments.—Crawford, how far's our army Upon the march?

Craw.

At Hedon-hall, great king;

Twelve thousand, well-prepared.

K. Ja.

Crawford, to-night

Post thither. We in person, with the prince,

By four o'clock to-morrow after dinner

Will be wi' ye; speed away!

I fly, my lord.

| Exit.

K. Ja. Our business grows to head now: where's your secretary,

That he attends ye not to serve?

War.

`Craw.

With Marchmont,

Your herald.

K. Ja. Good: the proclamation's ready; By that it will appear how the English stand Affected to your title.—Huntley, comfort Your daughter in her husband's absence; fight With prayers at home for us, who for your honours Must toil in fight abroad.

Hunt. Prayers are the weapons
Which men so near their graves as I do use;
I've little else to do.

K. Ja. To rest, young beauties!—
We must be early stirring; quickly part:
A kingdom's rescue craves both speed and art.—
Cousins, good-night.

[A flourish.

War. Rest to our cousin-king.

Kath. Your blessing, sir.

Hunt. Fair blessings on your highness! sure, you need 'em.

[Exeunt all but WARBECK, Lady KATHERINE, and JANE.

War. Jane, set the lights down, and from us return To those in the next room this little purse; Say we'll deserve their loves.

Jane. It shall be done, sir. [Exit. War. Now, dearest, ere sweet sleep shall seal those eyes,

Love's precious tapers, give me leave to use A parting ceremony; for to-morrow It would be sacrilege t' intrude upon The temple of thy peace: swift as the morning Must I break from the down of thy embraces, To put on steel, and trace the paths which lead Through various hazards to a careful throne.

Kath. My lord, I'd fain go wi' ye; there's small fortune In staying here behind.

War. The churlish brow
Of war, fair dearest, is a sight of horror
For ladies' entertainment: if thou hear'st
A truth of my sad ending by the hand
Of some unnatural subject, thou withal
Shalt hear how I died worthy of my right,
By falling like a king; and in the close,
Which my last breath shall sound, thy name, thou fairest,
Shall sing a requiem to my soul, unwilling

Only of greater glory, 'cause divided From such a Heaven on earth as life with thee. But these are chimes for funerals: my business Attends on fortune of a sprightlier triumph; For love and majesty are reconciled, And vow to crown thee empress of the west.

Kath. You have a noble language, sir; your right In me is without question, and however Events of time may shorten my deserts In others' pity, yet it shall not stagger Or constancy or duty in a wife. You must be king of me; and my poor heart Is all I can call mine.

War. But we will live, Live, beauteous virtue, by the lively test Of our own blood, to let the counterfeit Be known the world's contempt.

Kath. Pray, do not use

That word; it carries fate in't. The first suit I ever made, I trust your love will grant.

War. Without denial, dearest.

Kath. That hereafter,

If you return with safety, no adventure May sever us in tasting any fortune:

I ne'er can stay behind again.

War. You're lady

Of your desires, and shall command your will; Yet 'tis too hard to promise.

Kath. What our destinies Have ruled-out in their books we must not search,

But kneel to.

War. Then to fear when hope is

War. Then to fear when hope is fruitless,
Were to be desperately miserable;
Which poverty our greatness dares not dream of,
And much more scorns to stoop to: some few minutes
Remain yet; let's be thrifty in our hopes. [Exeunt.

SCENE III.—The Palace at Westminster.

Enter King HENRY, HIALAS, and URSWICK.

K. Hen. Your name is Pedro Hialas, a Spaniard? Hial. Sir, a Castilian born.

K. Hen.

King Ferdinand,

With wise Queen Isabel his royal consort, Write ye a man of worthy trust and candour. Princes are dear to heaven who meet with subjects Sincere in their employments; such I find Your commendation, sir. Let me deliver How joyful I repute the amity With your most fortunate master, who almost Comes near a miracle in his success Against the Moors, who had devoured his country, Entire now to his sceptre. We, for our part, Will imitate his providence, in hope Of partage in the use on't: we repute The privacy of his advisement to us By you, intended an ambassador To Scotland, for a peace between our kingdoms, A policy of love, which well becomes His wisdom and our care.

Hial.

Your majesty

Doth understand him rightly.

K. Hen.

Else

Your knowledge can instruct me; wherein, sir, To fall on ceremony would seem useless, Which shall not need; for I will be as studious Of your concealment in our conference As any council shall advise.

1 "Amongst these troubles came into England from Spain Peter Hialas, some call him Elias (surely he was the forerunner of the good hap that we enjoy at this day; for his ambassage set the truce between England and Scotland; the truce drew on the peace; the peace the marriage; and the marriage the union of the kingdoms); a man of great wisdom, and, as those times were, not unlearned." Bacon.

Hial. Then, sir,

My chief request is, that on notice given At my dispatch in Scotland, you will send Some learned man of power and experience To join entreaty with me.

K. Hen. I shall do it,
Being that way well provided by a servant

Which may attend ye ever.

Hial. If King James,

By any indirection, should perceive

My coming near your court, I doubt the issue Of my employment.

K. Hen. Be not your own herald:

I learn sometimes without a teacher.

Hial. Good days

Guard all your princely thoughts!

K. Hen. Urswick, no further

Than the next open gallery attend him.—

A hearty love go with you!

Hial. Your vowed beadsman.1

Exeunt URSWICK and HIALAS.

K. Hen. King Ferdinand is not so much a fox, But that a cunning huntsman may in time Fall on the scent: in honourable actions Safe imitation best deserves a praise.

Re-enter URSWICK.

What, the Castilian's passed away?

Urs. He is,

And undiscovered; the two hundred marks Your majesty conveyed, he gently pursed With a right modest gravity.

K. Hen. What was't

He muttered in the earnest of his wisdom? He spoke not to be heard; 'twas about—

¹ Servant; literally one bound to pray for his benefactor.

Urs. Warbeck:

How if King Henry were but sure of subjects, Such a wild runagate might soon be caged, No great ado withstanding.

K. Hen.

Nay, nay; something

About my son Prince Arthur's match.

Urs. Right, right, sir:

He hummed it out, how that King Ferdinand Swore that the marriage 'twixt the Lady Katherine His daughter and the Prince of Wales your son Should never be consummated as long As any Earl of Warwick lived in England, Except by new creation.

K. Hen.

I remember

'Twas so, indeed: the king his master swore it?

Urs. Directly, as he said.

K. Hen.

An Earl of Warwick!—

Provide a messenger for letters instantly

To Bishop Fox. Our news from Scotland creeps;

It comes so slow, we must have airy spirits;

Our time requires dispatch.—[Aside] The Earl of Warwick!

Let him be son to Clarence, younger brother
To Edward! Edward's daughter is, I think,
Mother to our Prince Arthur.—Get a messenger.

Exeunt.

SCENE IV.—Before the Castle of Norham.

Enter King James, Perkin Warbeck, Earl of Crawford, Lord Dalyell, Heron, Astley, John A-Water, Skelton, and Soldiers.

K. Ja. We trifle time against these castle-walls;
The English prelate will not yield: once more
Give him a summons.

[A parley is sounded.

Enter on the walls the Bishop of Durham, armed, a truncheon in his hand, with Soldiers.

War. See, the jolly clerk Appears, trimmed like a ruffian!

K. Ja. Bishop, yet
Set ope the ports, and to your lawful sovereign,
Richard of York, surrender up this castle,
And he will take thee to his grace; else Tweed
Shall overflow his banks with English blood,
And wash the sand that cements those hard stones
From their foundation.

Warlike King of Scotland, Dur. Vouchsafe a few words from a man enforced To lay his book aside, and clap on arms Unsuitable to my age or my profession. Courageous prince, consider on what grounds You rend the face of peace, and break a league With a confederate king that courts your amity, For whom too? for a vagabond, a straggler, Not noted in the world by birth or name, An obscure peasant, by the rage of hell Loosed from his chains to set great kings at strife. What nobleman, what common man of note, What ordinary subject hath come in, Since first you footed on our territories, To only feign a welcome? Children laugh at Your proclamations, and the wiser pity So great a potentate's abuse by one Who juggles merely with the fawns and youth Of an instructed compliment: such spoils, Such slaughters as the rapine of your soldiers Already have committed, is enough To show your zeal in a conceited justice. Yet, great king, wake not yet my master's vengeance But shake that viper off which gnaws your entrails. I and my fellow-subjects are resolved,

If you persist, to stand your utmost fury, Till our last blood drop from us.

War.

O, sir, lend

No ear to this traducer of my honour!—
What shall I call thee, thou gray-bearded scandal,
That kick'st against the sovereignty to which
Thou ow'st allegiance?—Treason is bold-faced
And eloquent in mischief: sacred king,
Be deaf to his known malice.

Dur.

Rather yield

Unto those holy motions which inspire
The sacred heart of an anointed body.
It is the surest policy in princes
To govern well their own than seek encroachment
Upon another's right.

Craw.

The king is serious,

Deep in his meditations.

Dal.

Lift them up

To Heaven, his better genius!

War.

Can you study

While such a devil raves? O, sir!

K. Ja.

Well, bishop,

You'll not be drawn to mercy?

Dur.

Construe me

In like case by a subject of your own:

My resolution's fixed: King James, be counselled, A greater fate waits on thee.

[Exeunt Bishop of DURHAM and Soldiers from the walls.

K. Ja.

Forage through

The country; spare no prey of life or goods.

War. O, sir, then give me leave to yield to nature;

I am most miserable: had I been

Born what this clergyman would by defame

Baffle belief with, I had never sought

The truth of mine inheritance with rapes

Of women or of infants murdered, virgins

Deflowered, old men butchered, dwellings fired, My land depopulated, and my people Afflicted with a kingdom's devastation: Show more remorse, great king, or I shall never Endure to see such havoc with dry eyes; Spare, spare, my dear, dear England!

K. Ja. You fool your piety Ridiculously careful of an interest

Ridiculously careful of an interest
Another man possesseth. Where's your faction?
Shrewdly the bishop guessed of your adherents,
When not a petty burgess of some town,
No, not a villager hath yet appeared
In your assistance: that should make ye whine,
And not your country's sufferance, as you term it.

Dal. The king is angry.

Crew. Effeminately dolent.

And the passionate duke

War. The experience In former trials, sir, both of mine own Or other princes cast out of their thrones,

Have so acquainted me how misery
Is destitute of friends or of relief,

That I can easily submit to taste

Lowest reproof without contempt or words.

K. Ja. An humble-minded man!

Enter FRION.

Now, what intelligence

Speaks Master Secretary Frion?

Fri. Henry

Of England hath in open field o'erthrown The armies who opposed him in the right Of this young prince.

K. Ja. His subsidies, you mean:—

More, if you have it?

Fri. Howard, Earl of Surrey,

Backed by twelve earls and barons of the north,

An hundred knights and gentlemen of name, And twenty thousand soldiers, is at hand To raise your siege. Brooke, with a goodly navy, Is admiral at sea; and Dawbeney follows With an unbroken army for a second.

War. 'Tis false! they come to side with us.

K. Ja. Retreat; We shall not find them stones and walls to cope with.—

We shall not find them stones and walls to cope Yet, Duke of York, for such thou sayst thou art, I'll try thy fortune to the height: to Surrey, By Marchmont, I will send a brave defiance For single combat; once a king will venture His person to an earl, with condition Of spilling lesser blood: Surrey is bold, And James resolved.

War. O, rather, gracious sir, Create me to this glory, since my cause Doth interest this fair quarrel; valued least, I am his equal.

K. Ja. I will be the man.—

March softly off: where victory can reap

A harvest crowned with triumph, toil is cheap. [Exeunt.

ACT THE FOURTH.

SCENE I.—The English Camp near Ayton, on the Borders.

Enter Earl of Surrey, Bishop of Durham, Soldiers, with drums and colours.

UR. Are all our braving enemies shrunk back,

Hid in the fogs of their distempered climate,

Not daring to behold our colours wave In spite of this infected air? Can they Look on the strength of Cundrestine defaced?

The glory of Hedon-hall devasted? that
Of Edington cast dows? the pile of Fulden
O'erthrown? and this the strongest of their forts,
Old Ayton-castle, yielded and demolished?
And yet not peep abroad? The Scots are bold,
Hardy in battle; but it seems the cause
They undertake, considered, appears
Unjointed in the frame on't.

Dur. Noble Surrey,
Our royal master's wisdom is at all times
His fortune's harbinger; for when he draws
His sword to threaten war, his providence
Settles on peace, the crowning of an empire.

A trumpet within.

Sur. Rank all in order: 'tis a herald's sound; Some message from King James: keep a fixed station.

Enter MARCHMONT and another in Heralds' coats.

March. From Scotland's awful majesty we come Unto the English general.

Sur.

To me?

Say on.

March. Thus, then; the waste and prodigal
Effusion of so much guiltless blood
As in two potent armies of necessity
Must glut the earth's dry womb, his sweet compassion

Hath studied to prevent; for which to thee,
Great Earl of Surrey, in a single fight
He offers his own royal person; fairly
Proposing these conditions only, that
If victory conclude our master's right,
The earl shall deliver for his ransom
The town of Berwick to him, with the fishgarths;
If Surrey shall prevail, the king will pay
A thousand pounds down present for his freedom,
And silence further arms: so speaks King James.

Sur. So speaks King James! so like a king he speaks. Heralds, the English general returns A sensible devotion from his heart, His very soul, to this unfellowed grace: For let the king know, gentle heralds, truly, How his descent from his great throne, to honour A stranger subject with so high a title As his compeer in arms, hath conquered more Than any sword could do; for which—my loyalty Respected—I will serve his virtues ever In all humility: but Berwick, say, Is none of mine to part with; in affairs Of princes subjects cannot traffic rights Inherent to the crown. My life is mine,

That I dare freely hazard; and—with pardon To some unbribed vainglory—if his majesty Shall taste a change of fate, his liberty Shall meet no articles. If I fall, falling So bravely, I refer me to his pleasure Without condition; and for this dear favour, Say, if not countermanded, I will cease Hostility, unless provoked.

March.

This answer

We shall relate unpartially.

Dur.

With favour,

Pray have a little patience.—[Aside to Surrey] Sir, you find

By these gay flourishes how wearied travail Inclines a willing rest; here's but a prologue, However confidently uttered, meant For some ensuing acts of peace: consider The time of year, unseasonableness of weather, Charge, barrenness of profit; and occasion Presents itself for honourable treaty, Which we may make good use of. I will back, As sent from you, in point of noble gratitude Unto King James, with these his heralds: you Shall shortly hear from me, my lord, for order Of breathing or proceeding; and King Henry, Doubt not, will thank the service.

Sur. [Aside to DURHAM] To your wisdom, Lord Bishop, I refer it.

Dur. [Aside to Surrey] Be it so, then. Sur. Heralds, accept this chain and these few crowns. March. Our duty, noble general.

Dur. In part

Of retribution for such princely love, My lord the general is pleased to show The king your master his sincerest zeal, By further treaty, by no common man: I will myself return with you.

Sur.

Y' oblige

My faithfullest affections t'ye, Lord Bishop.

March. All happiness attend your lordship!

[Exit with Herald.

Sur.

Come, friends

And fellow-soldiers; we, I doubt, shall meet
No enemies but woods and hills to fight with;
Then 'twere as good to feed and sleep at home:
We may be free from danger, not secure.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II.—The Scottish Camp.

Enter PERKIN WARBECK and FRION.

War. Frion, O, Frion, all my hopes of glory Are at a stand! the Scottish king grows dull, Frosty, and wayward, since this Spanish agent Hath mixed discourses with him; they are private, I am not called to council now:—confusion On all his crafty shrugs! I feel the fabric Of my designs are tottering.

Fri.

Henry's policies

Stir with too many engines.

War.

Let his mines,

Shaped in the bowels of the earth, blow up
Works raised for my defence, yet can they never
Toss into air the freedom of my birth,
Or disavow my blood Plantagenet's:
I am my father's son still. But, O, Frion,
When I bring into count with my disasters
My wife's compartnership, my Kate's, my life's,
Then, then my frailty feels an earthquake. Mischief
Damn Henry's plots! I will be England's king,
Or let my aunt of Burgundy report
My fall in the attempt deserved our ancestors!

Fri. You grow too wild in passion: if you will Appear a prince indeed, confine your will To moderation.

War. What a saucy rudeness

Prompts this distrust! If? If I will appear!

Appear a prince! death throttle such deceits

Even in their birth of utterance! cursèd cozenage

Of trust! Ye make me mad: 'twere best, it seems,

That I should turn impostor to myself,

Be mine own counterfeit, belie the truth

Of my dear mother's womb, the sacred bed

Of a prince murdered and a living baffled!

Fri. Nay, if you have no ears to hear, I have

No breath to spend in vain.

War. Sir, sir, take heed! Gold and the promise of promotion rarely Fail in temptation.

Fri.

Why to me this?

War.

Nothing.

Speak what you will; we are not sunk so low
But your advice may piece again the heart
Which many cares have broken: you were wont
In all extremities to talk of comfort;
Have ye none left now? I'll not interrupt ye.
Good, bear with my distractions! If King James
Deny us dwelling here, next whither must I?
I prithee, be not angry.

Fri.

Sir, I told ye

Of letters come from Ireland; how the Cornish Stomach their last defeat, and humbly sue That with such forces as you could partake You would in person land in Cornwall, where Thousands will entertain your title gladly.

War. Let me embrace thee, hug thee; thou'st revived

My comforts; if my cousin-king will fail, Our cause will never. Enter John A-Water, Heron, Astley, and Skelton. Welcome, my tried friends!

You keep your brains awake in our defence.— Frion, advise with them of these affairs, In which be wondrous secret; I will listen

What else concerns us here: be quick and wary. [Exit.

Ast. Ah, sweet young prince!—Secretary, my fellow-counsellors and I have consulted, and jump all in one opinion directly; an if these Scotch garboils¹ do not fadge to our minds, we will pell-mell run amongst the Cornish choughs presently and in a trice.

Skel. 'Tis but going to sea and leaping ashore, cut ten or twelve thousand unnecessary throats, fire seven or eight towns, take half a dozen cities, get into the market-place, crown him Richard the Fourth, and the business is finished.

J. a-Wat. I grant ye, quoth I, so far forth as men may do, no more than men may do; for it is good to consider when consideration may be to the purpose, otherwise—still you shall pardon me—little said is soon amended.

Fri. Then you conclude the Cornish action surest?

Her. We do so, and doubt not but to thrive abundantly. Ho, my masters, had we known of the commotion when we set sail out of Ireland, the land had been ours ere this time.

Skel. Pish, pish! 'tis but forbearing being an earl or a duke a month or two longer. I say, and say it again, if the work go not on apace, let me never see new fashion more. I warrant ye, I warrant ye; we will have it so, and so it shall be.

Ast. This is but a cold phlegmatic country, not stirring enough for men of spirit. Give me the heart of England for my money!

Skel. A man may batten there in a week only, with hot loaves and butter, and a lusty cup of muscadine and sugar at breakfast, though he make never a meal all the month after.

Ja-Wat. Surely, when I bore office I found by experience that to be much troublesome was to be much wise and busy: I have observed how filching and bragging has been the best service in these last wars; and therefore conclude peremptorily on the design in England. If things and things may fall out, as who can tell what or how—but the end will show it.

Fri. Resolved like men of judgment! Here to linger More time is but to lose it: cheer the prince And haste him on to this; on this depends Fame in success, or glory in our ends. [Exeunt.

SCENE III.—Another part of the same.

Enter King James, the Bishop of Durham, and Hialas.

Hial, France, Spain, and Germany combine a league Of amity with England: nothing wants
For settling peace through Christendom, but love Between the British monarchs, James and Henry.

Dur. The English merchants, sir, have been received With general procession into Antwerp; The emperor confirms the combination.

Hial. The king of Spain resolves a marriage For Katherine his daughter with Prince Arthur.

Dur. France courts this early contract.

mietros in England 2

What can hinder

A quietness in England?—

Dur. But your suffrage

To such a silly creature, mighty sir, As is but in effect an apparition,

A shadow, a mere trifle?

Hial. To this union

The good of both the church and commonwealth Invite ye.

Dur. To this unity, a mystery
Of providence points out a greater blessing
For both these nations than our human reason
Can search into. King Henry hath a daughter,
The Princess Margaret; I need not urge
What honour, what felicity can follow
On such affinity 'twixt two Christian kings
Inleagued by ties of blood; but sure I am,
If you, sir, ratify the peace proposed,
I dare both motion and effect this marriage
For weal of both the kingdoms.

K. Ja.

Dar'st thou, lord bishop?

Dur. Put it to trial, royal James, by sending Some noble personage to the English court By way of embassy.

Hial. Part of the business Shall suit my mediation.

Well; what Heaven K. /a. Hath pointed out to be, must be: you two Are ministers, I hope, of blessed fate. But herein only I will stand acquitted, No blood of innocents shall buy my peace: For Warbeck, as you nick him, came to me, Commended by the states of Christendom, A prince, though in distress; his fair demeanour, Lovely behaviour, unappalled spirit, Spoke him not base in blood, however clouded. The brute beasts have both rocks and caves to fly to, And men the altars of the church; to us He came for refuge: kings come near in nature Unto the gods in being touched with pity. Yet, noble friends, his mixture with our blood, Even with our own, shall no way interrupt A general peace; only I will dismiss him From my protection, throughout my dominions, In safety; but not ever to return. Hial. You are a just king,

Dur.

Wise, and herein happy.

K. Ja. Nor will we dally in affairs of weight: Huntley, lord bishop, shall with you to England Ambassador from us: we will throw down Our weapons; peace on all sides! Now repair Unto our council; we will soon be with you.

Hial. Delay shall question no dispatch; Heaven crown it. [Exeunt Bishop of DURHAM and HIALAS.

K. Ja. A league with Ferdinand! a marriage With English Margaret! a free release From restitution for the late affronts! Cessation from hostility! and all For Warbeck, not delivered, but dismissed! We could not wish it better.—Dalyell!

Enter Lord DALYELL.

Dal. Here sir.

K. Ja. Are Huntley and his daughter sent for?

Dal. Sent for

And come, my lord.

K. Ja. Say to the English prince, We want his company.

Dal. He is at hand, sir.

Enter Perkin Warbeck, Lady Katherine, Jane, Frion, Heron, Skelton, John a-Water, and Astley.

K. Ja. Cousin, our bounty, favours, gentleness, Our benefits, the hazard of our person, Our people's lives, our land, hath evidenced How much we have engaged on your behalf: How trivial and how dangerous our hopes Appear, how fruitless our attempts in war, How, windy, rather smoky, your assurance Of party shows, we might in vain repeat: But now obedience to the mother church, A father's care upon his country's weal, The dignity of state, direct our wisdom

To seal an oath of peace through Christendom;
To which we're sworn already: it is you
Must only seek new fortunes in the world,
And find an harbour elsewhere. As I promised
On your arrival, you have met no usage
Deserves repentance in your being here;
But yet I must live master of mine own:
However, what is necessary for you
At your departure, I am well content
You be accommodated with, provided
Delay prove not my enemy.

It shall not War. Most glorious prince. The fame of my designs Soars higher than report of ease and sloth Can aim at: I acknowledge all your favours Boundless and singular; am only wretched In words as well as means to thank the grace Two empires firmly That flowed so liberally. You're lord of,—Scotland and Duke Richard's heart: My claim to mine inheritance shall sooner Fail than my life to serve you, best of kings; And, witness Edward's blood in me! I am More loth to part with such a great example Of virtue than all other mere respects. But, sir, my last suit is, you will not force From me what you have given,—this chaste lady, Resolved on all extremes.

Kath. I am your wife; No human power can or shall divorce My faith from duty.

War. Such another treasure The earth is bankrupt of.

K. Ja. I gave her, cousin,

And must avow the gift; will add withal

A furniture becoming her high birth

And unsuspected constancy; provide

For your attendance: we will part good friends.

[Exit with Lord Dalyell

War. The Tudor hath been cunning in his plots: His Fox of Durham would not fail at last. But what? our cause and courage are our own: Be men, my friends, and let our cousin-king See how we follow fate as willingly As malice follows us. Ye're all resolved For the west parts of England?

All. Cornwall!

Fri. The inhabitants expect you daily.

War. Cheerfully Draw all our ships out of the harbour, friends;

Our time of stay doth seem too long, we must Prevent intelligence; about it suddenly.

All. A prince, a prince!

[Exeunt Heron, Skelton, Astley, and John A-Water.

War. Dearest, admit not into thy pure thoughts
The least of scruples, which may charge their softness
With burden of distrust. Should I prove wanting
To noblest courage now, here were the trial:
But I am perfect, sweet; I fear no change,
More than thy being partner in my sufferance.

Kath. My fortunes, sir, have armed me to encounter What chance soe'er they meet with.—Jane, 'tis fit Thou stay behind, for whither wilt thou wander?

Jane. Never till death will I forsake my mistress, Nor then in wishing to die with ye gladly.

Kath. Alas, good soul!

Fri. Sir, to your aunt of Burgundy

I will relate your present undertakings:

From her expect on all occasions welcome.

You cannot find me idle in your services.

War. Go, Frion, go: wise men know how to soothe Adversity, not serve it: thou hast waited Too long on expectation; never yet Was any nation read of so besotted In reason as t' adore the setting sun.

Fly to the archduke's court; say to the duchess, Her nephew, with fair Katherine his wife, Are on their expectation to begin The raising of an empire: if they fail, Yet the report will never. Farewell, Frion!

Exit FRION.

This man, Kate, has been true, though now of late I fear too much familiar with the Fox.

Re-enter Lord DALYELL with the Earl of HUNTLEY.

Hunt. I come to take my leave: you need not doubt

My interest in this sometime child of mine;
She's all yours now, good sir.—O, poor lost creature,
Heaven guard thee with much patience! if thou canst
Forget thy title to old Huntley's family,
As much of peace will settle in thy mind
As thou canst wish to taste but in thy grave.
Accept my tears yet, prithee; they are tokens
Of charity as true as of affection.

Kath. This is the cruell'st farewell!

Hunt. Love, young gentleman,

This model of my griefs; she calls you husband;

Then be not jealous of a parting kiss,—

It is a father's, not a lover's offering;

Take it, my last [Kisses her].—I am too much a child. Exchange of passion is to little use,

So I should grow too foolish: goodness guide thee!

[Exit.

Kath. Most miserable daughter!—Have you aught To add, sir, to our sorrows?

Dal. I resolve,

Fair lady, with your leave, to wait on all Your fortunes in my person, if your lord Vouchsafe me entertainment.

War. We will be bosom-friends, most noble Dalyell;

For I accept this tender of your love
Beyond ability of thanks to speak it.—
Clear thy drowned eyes, my fairest: time and industry
Will show us better days, or end the worst. [Exeunt.

SCENE IV.—The Palace at Westminster.

Enter Earl of Oxford and Lord Dawbeney.

Oxf. No news from Scotland yet, my lord?

Daw. Not any

But what King Henry knows himself: I thought Our armies should have marched that way; his mind, It seems, is altered.

Oxf. Victory attends His standard everywhere.

Daw. Wise princes, Oxford, Fight not alone with forces. Providence

Directs and tutors strength; else elephants And barbèd horses might as well prevail

As the most subtle stratagems of war.

Oxf. The Scottish king showed more than common bravery

In proffer of a combat hand to hand With Surrey.

Daw. And but showed it: northern bloods Are gallant being fired; but the cold climate, Without good store of fuel, quickly freezeth The glowing flames.

Oxf. Surrey, upon my life, Would not have shrunk an hair's-breadth.

Daw. May he forfeit The honour of an English name and nature,

Who would not have embraced it with a greediness As violent as hunger runs to food!

'Twas an addition any worthy spirit

Would covet, next to immortality, Above all joys of life: we all missed shares In that great opportunity.

Enter King Henry, in close conversation with Urswick.

Oxf.

The king!

See, he comes smiling.

Daw. O, the game runs smooth On his side, then, believe it: cards well shuffled And dealt with cunning bring some gamester thrift, But others must rise losers.

K. Hen.

The train takes?

Urs. Most prosperously.

K. Hen.

I knew it should not miss.

He fondly angles who will hurl his bait
Into the water 'cause the fish at first
Plays round about the line and dares not bite.—
Lords, we may reign your king yet: Dawbeney, Oxford,
Urswick, must Perkin wear the crown?

Daw.

A slave!

Oxf. A vagabond!

Urs.

A glow-worm!

K. Hen.

Now, if Frion,

His practised politician, wear a brain Of proof, King Perkin will in progress ride Through all his large dominions; let us meet him, And tender homage: ha, sirs! liegemen ought To pay their fealty.

Daw. Would the rascal were, With all his rabble, within twenty miles Of London!

K. Hen. Farther off is near enough
To lodge him in his home: I'll wager odds,
Surrey and all his men are either idle
Or hasting back; they have not work, I doubt,
To keep them busy.

Daw.

'Tis a strange conceit, sir.

K. Hen. Such voluntary favours as our people In duty aid us with, we never scattered On cobweb parasites, or lavished out In riot or a needless hospitality: No undeserving favourite doth boast His issues from our treasury; our charge Flows through all Europe, proving us but steward Of every contribution which provides Against the creeping canker of disturbance. Is it not rare; then, in this toil of state Wherein we are embarked, with breach of sleep, Cares, and the noise of trouble, that our mercy Returns nor thanks nor comfort? Still the West Murmur and threaten innovation, Whisper our government tyrannical, Deny us what is ours, nay, spurn their lives, Of which they are but owners by our gift: It must not be.

Oxf.

It must not, should not.

Enter Messenger with a packet.

K. Hen.

So then—

To whom?

Mess. This packet to your sacred majesty.

K. Hen. Sirrah, attend without. [Exit Messenger.

Oxf. News from the North, upon my life.

Daw. Wise Henry

Divines aforehand of events; with him Attempts and executions are one act.

K. Hen. Urswick, thine ear: Frion is caught; the man

Of cunning is outreached; we must be safe. Should reverend Morton, our archbishop, move To a translation higher yet, I tell thee My Durham owns a brain deserves that see; He's nimble in his industry, and mounting—Thou hear'st me?

Ford.

Urs. And conceive your highness fitly.

K. Hen. Dawbeney and Oxford, since our army stands Entire, it were a weakness to admit
The rust of laziness to eat amongst them:
Set forward toward Salisbury; the plains
Are most commodious for their exercise.
Ourself will take a muster of them there;
And or disband them with reward, or else
Dispose as best concerns us.

Daw.

Salisbury!

Sir, all is peace at Salisbury.

K. Hen.

Dear friend,

The charge must be our own; we would a little Partake the pleasure with our subjects' ease.— Shall I entreat your loves?

Oxf.

Command our lives.

K. Hen. Ye're men know how to do, not to forethink. My bishop is a jewel tried and perfect; A jewel, lords. The post who brought these letters Must speed another to the Mayor of Exeter; Urswick, dismiss him not.

Urs. He waits your pleasure.

K. Hen. Perkin a king? a king!

Urs. My gracious lord,—

K. Hen. Thoughts busied in the sphere of royalty Fix not on creeping worms without their stings, Mere excrements of earth. The use of time Is thriving safety, and a wise prevention Of ills expected. We're resolved for Salisbury.

Exeunt.

SCENE V .- The Coast of Cornwall.

A general shout within. Enter Perkin Warbeck, Lord Dalyell, Lady Katherine, and Jane.

War. After so many storms as wind and seas

Have threatened to our weather-beaten ships,
At last, sweet fairest, we are safe arrived
On our dear mother earth, ingrateful only
To heaven and us in yielding sustenance
To sly usurpers of our throne and right.
These general acclamations are an omen
Of happy process to their welcome lord:
They flock in troops, and from all parts with wings
Of duty fly to lay their hearts before us.—
Unequalled pattern of a matchless wife,
How fares my dearest yet?

Kath. Confirmed in health, By which I may the better undergo
The roughest face of change; but I shall learn
Patience to hope, since silence courts affliction,
For comforts, to this truly noble gentleman,—
Rare unexampled pattern of a friend!—
And my beloved Jane, the willing follower
Of all misfortunes.

Dal. Lady, I return
But barren crops of early protestations,
Frost-bitten in the spring of fruitless hopes.

Jane. I wait but as the shadow to the body;
For madam, without you let me be nothing.

War. None talk of sadness; we are on the way Which leads to victory: keep cowards thoughts With desperate sullenness! The lion faints not Locked in a grate, but loose disdains all force Which bars his prey,—and we are lion-hearted,—Or else no king of beasts. [Another general shout within.]

—Hark, how they shout, Triu mphant in our cause! bold confidence Marches on bravely, cannot quake at danger.

Enter SKELTON.

Skel. Save King Richard the Fourth! save thee, king of hearts! The Cornish blades are men of mettle; have proclaimed, through Bodmin and the whole county, my sweet prince Monarch of England: four thousand tall yeomen, with bow and sword, already vow to live and die at the foot of King Richard.

Enter ASTLEY.

Ast. The mayor, our fellow-counsellor, is servant for an emperor. Exeter is appointed for the rendezvous, and nothing wants to victory but courage and resolution. Sigillatum et datum decimo Septembris, anno regni regis primo, et cætera; confirmatum est. All's cock-sure.

War. To Exeter! to Exeter, march on!

Commend us to our people: we in person

Will lend them double spirits; tell them so.

Skel. and Ast. King Richard, King Richard!

[Exeunt Skelton and Astley.

War. A thousand blessings guard our lawful arms! A thousand horrors pierce our enemies' souls! Pale fear unedge their weapons' sharpest points! And when they draw their arrows to the head, Numbness shall strike their sinews! Such advantage Hath Majesty in its pursuit of justice, That on the proppers-up of Truth's old throne It both enlightens counsel and gives heart To execution; whiles the throats of traitors Lie bare before our mercy. O, divinity Of royal birth! how it strikes dumb the tongues Whose prodigality of breath is bribed By trains to greatness! Princes are but men Distinguished in the fineness of their frailty, Yet not so gross in beauty of the mind; For there's a fire more sacred purifies

The dross of mixture. Herein stand the odds,

Subjects are men on earth, kings men and gods.

ACT THE FIFTH.

SCENE I .- St. Michael's Mount, Cornwall.

Enter Lady Katherine and Jane in riding-suits, with one Servant.

ADY KATH. It is decreed; and we must yield to fate,

Whose angry justice, though it threaten ruin,

Contempt, and poverty, is all but trial Of a weak woman's constancy in suffering.

Here, in a stranger's and an enemy's land,
Forsaken and unfurnished of all hopes
But such as wait on misery, I range,
To meet affliction wheresoe'er I tread.
My train and pomp of servants is reduced
To one kind gentlewoman and this groom.—
Sweet Jane, now whither must we?

Jane. To your ships,

Dear lady, and turn home.

Fly thou to Scotland; thou hast friends will weep For joy to bid thee welcome; but, O, Jane, My Jane! my friends are desperate of comfort, As I must be of them: the common charity, Good people's alms and prayers of the gentle, Is the revenue must support my state. As for my native country, since it once Saw me a princess in the height of greatness

My birth allowed me, here I make a vow Scotland shall never see me being fall'n Or lessened in my fortunes. Never, Jane, Never to Scotland more will I return. Could I be England's queen,—a glory, Jane, I never fawned on,—yet the king who gave me Hath sent me with my husband from his presence, Delivered us suspected to his nation, Rendered us spectacles to time and pity; And is it fit I should return to such As only listen after our descent From happiness enjoyed to misery Expected, though uncertain? Never, never! Alas, why dost thou weep? and that poor creature Wipe his wet cheeks too? let me feel alone Extremities, who know to give them harbour; Nor thou nor he has cause: you may live safely. Jane. There is no safety whiles your dangers, madam, Are every way apparent.

Serv.

Pardon, lady,

I cannot choose but show my honest heart; You were ever my good lady.

Kath.

O, dear souls,

Your shares in grief are too-too much!

Enter Lord DALYELL.

Dal.

I bring,

Fair princess, news of further sadness yet Than your sweet youth hath been acquainted with.

Kath. Not more, my lord, than I can welcome: speak it;

The worst, the worst I look for.

Dal.

All the Cornish

At Exeter were by the citizens

Repulsed, encountered by the Earl of Devonshire

And other worthy gentlemen of the country.

Your husband marched to Taunton, and was there

Affronted 1 by King Henry's chamberlain;
The king himself in person with his army
Advancing nearer, to renew the fight
On all occasions: but the night before
The battles were to join, your husband privately,
Accompanied with some few horse, departed
From out the camp, and posted none knows whither.

Kath. Fled without battle given?

Del. Fled, but followed

By Dawbeney; all his parties left to taste King Henry's mercy,—for to that they yielded,— Victorious without bloodshed.

Kath. O, my sorrows!

If both our lives had proved the sacrifice To Henry's tyranny, we had fall'n like princes,

And robbed him of the glory of his pride.

Dal. Impute it not to faintness or to weakness Of noble courage, lady, but to foresight; For by some secret friend he had intelligence Of being bought and sold by his base followers. Worse yet remains untold.

Kath.

No, no, it cannot.

Dal. I fear you are betrayed: the Earl of Oxford Runs hot in your pursuit.2

Kath. He shall not need;

We'll run as hot in resolution gladly To make the earl our jailor.

Jane.

Madam, madam,

They come, they come!

Enter Earl of Oxford with his Followers.

Dal. Keep back! or he who dares Rudely to violate the law of honour

¹ Confronted.

² "There were also sent with all speed some horse to St. Michael's Mount in Cornwall, where the Lady Katherine Gordon was left by her husband, whom in all fortunes she entirely loved, adding the virtues of a wife to the virtues of her sex."—Bacon,

Runs on my sword.

Kath. Most noble sir, forbear.—
What reason draws you hither, gentlemen?
Whom seek ye?

Oxf. All stand off!—With favour, lady, From Henry, England's king, I would present Unto the beauteous princess, Katherine Gordon, The tender of a gracious entertainment.

* Kath. We are that princess, whom your master-king Pursues with reaching arms to draw into His power: let him use his tyranny, We shall not be his subject.

Oxf. My commission
Extends no further, excellentest lady,
Than to a service; 'tis King Henry's pleasure
That you, and all that have relation t'ye,
Be guarded as becomes your birth and greatness;
For, rest assured, sweet princess, that not aught
Of what you do call yours shall find disturbance,
Or any welcome other than what suits
Your high condition.

Kath. By what title, sir, May I acknowledge you?

Oxf. Your servant, lady, Descended from the line of Oxford's earls, Inherits what his ancestors before him Were owners of.

Kath. Your king is herein royal,
That by a peer so ancient in desert
As well as blood commands us to his presence.

Oxf. Invites ye, princess not commands.

Your own phrase as you list: to your protection
Both I and mine submit.

Oxf. There's in your number A nobleman whom fame hath bravely spoken. To him the king my master bade me say

How willingly he courts his friendship; far From an enforcement, more than what in terms Of courtesy so great a prince may hope for.

Dal. My name is Dalyell.

Oxf. 'Tis a name hath won

Both thanks and wonder from report, my lord:

The court of England emulates your merit,

And covets to embrace you.

Dal.

I must wait on

The princess in her fortunes.

Oxf.

Will you please,

Great lady, to set forward?

Kath.

Being driven

By fate, it were in vain to strive with Heaven.

Exeunt.

SCENE II.—Salisbury.

Enter King Henry, Earl of Surrey, Urswick, and a guard of Soldiers.

Escaped! so let him; he is hedged too fast
Within the circuit of our English pale
To steal out of our ports, or leap the walls
Which guard our land; the seas are rough and wider
Than his weak arms can tug with. Surrey, henceforth
Your king may reign in quiet; turmoils past,
Like some unquiet dream, have rather busied
Our fancy than affrighted rest of state.
But, Surrey, why, in articling a peace
With James of Scotland, was not restitution
Of losses which our subjects did sustain
By the Scotch inroads questioned?

Sur.

Both demanded

Sur.

Both demanded And urged, my lord; to which the king replied, In modest merriment, but smiling earnest,

How that our master Henry was much abler To bear the detriments than he repay them.

K. Hen. The young man, I believe, spake honest truth; He studies to be wise betimes.—Has, Urswick, Sir Rice ap Thomas, and Lord Brook our steward, Returned the Western gentlemen full thanks From us for their tried loyalties?

Urs. They have;

Which, as if health and life had reigned amongst 'em, With open hearts they joyfully received.

K. Hen. Young Buckingham is a fair-natured prince, Lovely in hopes, and worthy of his father; Attended by an hundred knights and squires Of special name he tendered humble service, Which we must ne'er forget: and Devonshire's wounds, Though slight, shall find sound cure in our respect.

Enter Lord Dawbeney with a Guard, leading in Perkin Warbeck, Heron, John A-Water, Astley, and Skelton, chained.

Daw. Life to the king, and safety fix his throne! I here present you, royal sir, a shadow Of majesty, but in effect a substance Of pity; a young man, in nothing grown. To ripeness but the ambition of your mercy,—Perkin, the Christian world's strange wonder.

K. Hen. Dawbeney,

We observe no wonder: I behold, 'tis true, An ornament of nature, fine and polished, A handsome youth indeed, but not admire him. How came he to thy hands?

Daw. From sanctuary

At Bewley, near Southampton; registered, With these few followers, for persons privileged.

K. Hen. I must not thank you, sir; you were to blame T' infringe the liberty of houses sacred:

Dare we be irreligious?

Daw.

Gracious lord,

They voluntarily resigned themselves Without compulsion.

K. Hen. So? 'twas very well;
'Twas very, very well.—Turn now thine eyes,
Young man, upon thyself and thy past actions;
What revels in combustion through our kingdom
A frenzy of aspiring youth hath danced,
Till, wanting breath, thy feet of pride have slipt
To break thy neck!

War. But not my heart; my heart Will mount till every drop of blood be frozen By death's perpetual winter: if the sun Of majesty be darkened, let the sun Of life be hid from me in an eclipse Lasting and universal. Sir, remember There was a shooting-in of light when Richmond, Not aiming at a crown, retired, and gladly, For comfort to the Duke of Bretaine's court. Richard, who swayed the sceptre, was reputed A tyrant then; yet then a dawning glimmered To some few wandering remnants, promising day When first they ventured on a frightful shore At Milford Haven;—

Daw. Whither speeds his boldness? Check his rude tongue, great sir.

K. Hen.

O, let him range:

The player's on the stage still, 'tis his part; He does but act.—What followed?

War.

Bosworth Field;

Where, at an instant, to the world's amazement,
A morn to Richmond, and a night to Richard,
Appeared at once: the tale is soon applied;
Fate, which crowned these attempts when least assured,
Might have befriended others like resolved.

K. Hen. A pretty gallant! Thus your aunt of Burgundy,

Your duchess-aunt, informed her nephew; so, The lesson prompted and well conned, was moulded Into familiar dialogue, oft rehearsed, Till, learnt by heart, 'tis now received for truth.

War. Truth, in her pure simplicity, wants art To put a feigned blush on: scorn wears only Such fashion as commends to gazers' eyes Sad ulcerated novelty, far beneath The sphere of majesty: in such a court Wisdom and gravity are proper robes, By which the sovereign is best distinguished From zanies to his greatness.

K. Hen.

Your antic pageantry, and now appear In your own nature, or you'll taste the danger Of fooling out of season.

Sirrah, shift

War. I expect

No less than what severity calls justice, And politicians safety; let such beg As feed on alms: but if there can be mercy In a protested enemy, then may it Descend to these poor creatures, whose engagements, To the bettering of their fortunes, have incurred

A loss of all; to them if any charity

Flow from some noble orator, in death

I owe the fee of thankfulness.

K. Hen. So brave!

What a bold knave is this!—Which of these rebels Has been the Mayor of Cork?

This wise formality.— Daw.

Kneel to the king, ye rascals! They kneel. K. Hen. Canst thou hope

A pardon, where thy guilt is so apparent?

J. a- Wat. Under your good favours, as men are men, they may err; for I confess, respectively, in taking great parts, the one side prevailing, the other side must go down: herein the point is clear, if the proverb hold, that hanging goes by destiny, that it is to little purpose to say, this thing or that shall be thus or thus; for, as the Fates will have it, so it must be; and who can help it?

Daw. O, blockhead! thou a privy-counsellor? Beg life, and cry aloud, "Heaven save King Henry!"

J. a-Wat. Every man knows what is best, as it happens; for my own part, I believe it is true, if I be not deceived, that kings must be kings and subjects subjects; but which is which, you shall pardon me for that: whether we speak or hold our peace, all are mortal; no man knows his end.

K. Hen. We trifle time with follies.

Her. John a-W. Ast. Skel.

Mercy, mercy!

K. Hen. Urswick, command the dukeling and these fellows They rise.

To Digby, the lieutenant of the Tower:

With safety let them be conveyed to London.

It is our pleasure no uncivil outrage,

Taunts or abuse be suffered to their persons;

They shall meet fairer law than they deserve.

Time may restore their wits, whom vain ambition Hath many years distracted.

War.

Noble thoughts

Meet freedom in captivity: the Tower,— Our childhood's dreadful nursery!

K. Hen.

No more!

Urs. Come, come, you shall have leisure to bethink ye. Exit Urswick with Perkin Warbeck and his Followers, guarded.

K. Hen. Was ever so much impudence in forgery? The custom, sure, of being styled a king Hath fastened in his thought that he is such; But we shall teach the lad another language: 'Tis good we have him fast.

Daw.

The hangman's physic

Will purge this saucy humour.

K. Hen.

Very likely;

Yet we could temper mercy with extremity, Being not too far provoked.

Enter Earl of Oxford, Lady Katherine in her richest attire, Lord Dalyell, Jane, and Attendants.

Oxf.

Great sir, be pleased,

With your accustomed grace to entertain The Princess Katherine Gordon.

K. Hen.

Oxford, herein

We must be shrew thy knowledge of our nature.

A lady of her birth and virtues could not

Have found us so unfurnished of good manners

As not, on notice given, to have met her

Half way in point of love.—Excuse, fair cousin,

The oversight: O, fie! you may not kneel;

'Tis most unfitting: first, vouchsafe this welcome,

A welcome to your own; for you shall find us

But guardian to your fortune and your honours.

Kath. My fortunes and mine honours are weak champions,

As both are now befriended, sir: however, Both bow before your clemency.

K. Hen.

Our arms

Shall circle them from malice.—A sweet lady!
Beauty incomparable!—here lives majesty
At league with love.

Kath.

O, sir, I have a husband.

K. Hen. We'll prove your father, husband, friend, and servant,

Prove what you wish to grant us.—Lords, be careful A patent presently be drawn for issuing A thousand pounds from our exchequer yearly During our cousin's life.—Our queen shall be Your chief companion, our own court your home, Our subjects all your servants.

Kath.

But my husband?

K. Hen. By all descriptions, you are noble Dalyell,

Whose generous truth hath famed a rare observance. We thank ye; 'tis a goodness gives addition To every title boasted from your ancestry, In all most worthy.

Dal. Worthier than your praises,

Right princely sir, I need not glory in.

K. Hen. Embrace him, lords.—Whoever calls you mistress

Is lifted in our charge.—A goodlier beauty Mine eyes yet ne'er encountered.

Kath. Cruel misery

Of fate! what rests to hope for?

K. Hen. Forward, lords,

To London.—Fair, ere long I shall present ye With a glad object, peace, and Huntley's blessing.

[Exeunt.

SCENE III.—London: The Tower-hill.

Enter Constable and Officers, Perkin Warbeck, Urswick, and Lambert Simnel as a Falconer, followed by the rabble.

Const. Make room there! keep off, I require ye; and none come within twelve foot of his majesty's new stocks, upon pain of displeasure.—Bring forward the malefactors.—Friend, you must to this gear, no remedy.—Open the hole, and in with his legs, just in the middle hole; there, that hole. [Warbeck is put in the stocks.]—Keep off, or I'll commit you all: shall not a man in authority be obeyed!—So, so, there; 'tis as it should be: put on the padlock, and give me the key.—Off, I say, keep off!

Urs. Yet, Warbeck, clear thy conscience: thou hast tasted

King Henry's mercy liberally; the law Has forfeited thy life; an equal jury Have doomed thee to the gallows; twice most wickedly, Most desperately, hast thou escaped the Tower, Inveigling to thy party with thy witchcraft Young Edward Earl of Warwick, son to Clarence, Whose head must pay the price of that attempt; Poor gentleman, unhappy in his fate, And ruined by thy cunning! so a mongrel May pluck the true stag down. Yet, yet, confess Thy parentage; for yet the king has mercy.

Sim. You would be Dick the Fourth; very likely! Your pedigree is published; you are known For Osbeck's son of Tournay, a loose runagate, A landloper; your father was a Jew, Turned Christian merely to repair his miseries: Where's now your kingship?

War.

Baited to my death?

Intolerable cruelty! I laugh at

The Duke of Richmond's practice on my fortunes:

Possession of a crown ne'er wanted heralds.

Sim. You will not know who I am?

Urs. Lambert Simnel,

Your predecessor in a dangerous uproar; But, on submission, not alone received To grace, but by the king vouchsafed his service.

Simn. I would be Earl of Warwick, toiled and ruffled Against my master, leaped to catch the moon, Vaunted my name Plantagenet, as you do; An earl, forsooth! whenas in truth I was,

² "He (Perkin) had been from his childhood such a wanderer, or, as the king called it, such a landloper, as it was extreme hard to hunt out his nest."—Bacon.

^{1 &}quot;Thus therefore it came to pass. There was a townsman of Tournay... whose name was John Osbeck, a converted Jew, married to Katherine de Faro, whose business drew him to live for a time with his wife at London, in King Edward the IVth's days. During which time he had a son by her; and being known in court, the king... did him the honour as to be godfather to his child, and named him Peter. But afterwards proving a dainty and effeminate youth, he was commonly called by the diminutive of his name, Peter-kin or Perkin."—Bacon.

As you are, a mere rascal: yet his majesty,
A prince composed of sweetness,—Heaven protect him!—
Forgave me all my villainies, reprieved
The sentence of a shameful end, admitted
My surety of obedience to his service,
And I am now his falconer; live plenteously,
Eat from the king's purse, and enjoy the sweetness
Of liberty and favour; sleep securely:
And is not this, now, better than to buffet
The hangman's clutches, or to brave the cordage
Of a tough halter which will break your neck?
So, then, the gallant totters!—prithee, Perkin,
Let my example lead thee; be no longer
A counterfeit; confess, and hope for pardon.

War. For pardon! hold, my heart-strings, whiles con-Of injuries, in scorn, may bid defiance tempt To this base man's foul language!—Thou poor vermin, How dar'st thou creep so near me? thou an earl! Why, thou enjoy'st as much of happiness As all the swing of slight ambition flew at. A dunghill was thy cradle. So a puddle, By virtue of the sunbeams, breathes a vapour T' infect the purer air, which drops again Into the muddy womb that first exhaled it. Bread and a slavish ease, with some assurance From the base beadle's whip, crowned all thy hopes: But, sirrah, ran there in thy veins one drop Of such a royal blood as flows in mine, Thou wouldst not change condition, to be second In England's state, without the crown itself. Coarse creatures are incapable of excellence: But let the world, as all to whom I am This day a spectacle, to time deliver, And by tradition fix posterity Without another chronicle than truth, How constantly my resolution suffered A martyrdom of majesty.

Simn.

He's past

Recovery; a Bedlam cannot cure him.

Urs. Away, inform the king of his behaviour.

Simn. Perkin, beware the rope! the hangman's coming.

[Exit.

Urs. If yet thou hast no pity of thy body, Pity thy soul!

Enter Lady Katherine, Jane, Lord Dalyell, and Earl of Oxford.

Jane.

Dear lady!

Oxf.

Whither will ye,

Without respect of shame?

Kath.

Forbear me, sir,

And trouble not the current of my duty.—

O, my loved lord! can any scorn be yours
In which I have no interest —Some kind hand
Lend me assistance, that I may partake
The infliction of this penance.—My life's dearest,
Forgive me; I have stayed too long from tendering
Attendance on reproach; yet bid me welcome.

War. Great miracle of constancy! my miseries Were never bankrupt of their confidence In worst afflictions, till this; now I feel them. Report and thy deserts, thou best of creatures, Might to eternity have stood a pattern For every virtuous wife without this conquest. Thou hast outdone belief; yet may their ruin In after-marriages be never pitied, To whom thy story shall appear a fable! Why wouldst thou prove so much unkind to greatness To glorify thy vows by such a servitude? I cannot weep; but trust me, dear, my heart Is liberal of passion.—Harry Richmond, A woman's faith hath robbed thy fame of triumph Oxf. Sirrah, leave-off your juggling, and tie up The devil that ranges in your tongue.

Urs.

Thus witches,

Possessed, even to their deaths deluded, say
They have been wolves and dogs, and sailed in egg-shells
Over the sea, and rid on fiery dragons,
Passed in the air more than a thousand miles,
All in a night:—the enemy of mankind
Is powerful, but false, and falsehood confident.

Oxf. Remember, lady, who you are; come from That impudent impostor.

Kath.

You abuse us:

For when the holy churchman joined our hands, Our vows were real then; the ceremony Was not in apparition, but in act.—
Be what these people term thee, I am certain Thou art my husband, no divorce in Heaven Has been sued-out between us; 'tis injustice For any earthly power to divide us: Or we will live or let us die together. There is a cruel mercy.

War. Spite of tyranny
We reign in our affections, blessèd woman!
Read in my destiny the wreck of honour;
Point out, in my contempt of death, to memory
Some miserable happiness; since herein,
Even when I fell, I stood enthroned a monarch
Of one chaste wife's troth pure and uncorrupted.
Fair angel of perfection, immortality
Shall raise thy name up to an adoration,
Court every rich opinion of true merit,
And saint it in the calendar of Virtue,
When I am turned into the self-same dust
Of which I was first formed.

Oxf. The lord ambassador, Huntley, your father, madam, should he look on Your strange subjection in a gaze so public, Would blush on your behalf, and wish his country Unleft for entertainment to such sorrow.

Kath. Why art thou angry, Oxford? I must be More peremptory in my duty.—Sir, Impute it not unto immodesty
That I presume to press you to a legacy
Before we part for ever.

War.

Let it be, then,

My heart, the rich remains of all my fortunes.

Kath. Confirm it with a kiss, pray.

War.

O, with that

I wish to breathe my last! upon thy lips, Those equal twins of comeliness, I seal The testament of honourable vows:

Kisses her.

Whoever be that man that shall unkiss

This sacred print next, may he prove more thrifty

In this world's just applause, not more desertful!

Kath. By this sweet pledge of both our souls, I swear To die a faithful widow to thy bed;
Not to be forced or won: O, never, never!

Enter Earls of Surrey, Huntley, and Crawford, and Lord Dawbeney.

Daw. Free the condemnèd person; quickly free him! What has he yet confessed?

[PERKIN WARBECK is taken out of the stocks.

Urs.

Nothing to purpose;

But still he will be king.

Sur.

Prepare your journey

To a new kingdom, then, unhappy madman, Wilfully foolish!—See, my lord ambassador, Your lady daughter will not leave the counterfeit In this disgrace of fate.

Hunt. I never pointed
Thy marriage, girl; but yet, being married,
Enjoy thy duty to a husband freely.
The griefs are mine. I glory in thy constancy;
And must not say I wished that I had missed
Some partage in these trials of a patience.

Kath. You will forgive me, noble sir?

Hunt.

Yes, yes;

In every duty of a wife and daughter
I dare not disavow thee. To your husband,—
For such you are, sir,—I impart a farewell
Of manly pity; what your life has passed through,
The dangers of your end will make apparent;
And I can add, for comfort to your sufferance,
No cordial, but the wonder of your frailty,
Which keeps so firm a station. We are parted.

War. We are. A crown of peace renew thy age, Most honourable Huntley!—Worthy Crawford! We may embrace; I never thought thee injury.

Craw. Nor was I ever guilty of neglect

Which might procure such thought. I take my leave, sir.

War. To you, Lord Dalyell,—what? accept a sigh, 'Tis hearty and in earnest.

Dal.

I want utterance;

My silence is my farewell.

Kath.

O, O!

Jane.

Sweet madam,

What do you mean?—My lord, your hand. [To DALYELL. Dal. Dear lady,

Be pleased that I may wait ye to your lodging.1

[Exeunt Lord Dalyell and Jane, supporting Lady Katherine.

¹ Gifford quotes the following passage concerning her subsequent history from Sir R. Gordon: "Shoe wes brought from St. Michael's Mount in Cornuall, ane delyvered to King Henrie the Seaventh, who intertayned her honorablie, and for her better mantenance, according to her birth and vertue, did a signe vnto her good lands and rents for all the dayes of her lyff. After the death of her husband Richard, shoe mareid Sir Mathie Cradock (a man of great power at that tyme in Clamorganshyre in Wales), of the which mariage is descended this William Earle of Pembroke, by his grandmother, and had some lands by inheritance from the Cradockes. Lady Katheren Gordon died in Wales, and was buried in a chappell at one of the Earle of Pembrok his dwelling-places in that cuntrey. The Englesh histories doe much commend her for her beauty, comliness, and chastetie." And Bacon ends her story thus: "The name of the White Rose, which had been given to her husband's talse title, was continued in common speech to her true beauty."

Enter Sheriff and Officers with Skelton, Astley, Heron, and John A-Water, with halters about their necks.

Oxf. Look ye; behold your followers, appointed To wait on ye in death!

War. Why, peers of England, We'll lead 'em on courageously: I read A triumph over tyranny upon Their several foreheads.—Faint not in the moment Of victory! our ends, and Warwick's head, Innocent Warwick's head,—for we are prologue But to his tragedy,—conclude the wonder Of Henry's fears; and then the glorious race Of fourteen kings, Plantagenets, determines In this last issue male; Heaven be obeyed! Impoverish time of its amazement, friends, And we will prove as trusty in our payments As prodigal to nature in our debts. Death? pish! 'tis but a sound; a name of air.; A minute's storm, or not so much: to tumble From bed to bed, be massacred alive By some physicians, for a month or two, In hope of freedom from a fever's torments, Might stagger manhood; here the pain is past Ere sensibly 'tis felt. Be men of spirit! Spurn coward passion! so illustrious mention

Shall blaze our names, and style us kings o'er Death.

Daw. Away, impostor beyond precedent!

[Exeunt Sheriff and Officers with the Prisoners.

No chronicle records his fellow.

Hunt. I have

Not thoughts left: 'tis sufficient in such cases Just laws ought to proceed.

Enter King Henry, the Bishop of Durham, and Hialas.

K. Hen.

We are resolved.

Your business, noble lords, shall find success Such as your king impórtunes.

Hunt.

You are gracious.

K. Hen. Perkin, we are informed, is armed to die;
In that we'll honour him. Our lords shall follow
To see the execution; and from hence
We gather this fit use,¹—that public states,
As our particular bodies, taste most good
In health when purgèd of corrupted blood. [Exeunt.

HERE has appeared, though in a several fashion,
The threats of majesty, the strength of passion,
Hopes of an empire, change of fortunes; all
What can to theatres of greatness fall,
Proving their weak foundations. Who will please,
Amongst such several sights, to censure these
No births abortive, nor a bastard brood,—
Shame to a parentage or fosterhood,—
May warrant by their loves all just excuses,
And often find a welcome to the Muses.

The poet seems to apply this word in the puritanical sense (then sufficiently familiar) of doctrinal or practical deduction.—Gifford.
